Meredith, Fort Sheridan, Ill. We have still a large number on our list whom we hope will emulate the example set by the above readers

Joe McDonald, one of the pioneers residents of Atkinson township, was a caller at these headquarters last Tuesday extending his subscription to this household necessity. Mr. McDonald owns some land in Florida, which he purchased two years ago and is figuring on going down there next month to spend a few weeks in that balmy climate. Mr. McDonald says that land has greatly increased in value there, during the past two years and that he would have no trouble now in disposing of his holdings at five times the amount he paid for it. John McNichols of Atkinson also owns some land near Mr. McDonald's and the latter says that John is also figuring on going down there to spend a few weeks.

Daniel Burr, manager of the O'Neill Cement Works, died in a hospital in Omaha last Monday of heart disease after an illness of three months. Mr. Burr had not been feeling well for the past three months, although he has been able to attend to business. On Christmas day he went to Omaha to consult physicians there in regard to his condition and died in a hospital where he had been receiving treatment. Mr. Burr was 65 years of age and had been a resident of this city for the past four years. He organized the O'Neill Cement Company and had built up an extensive business, shipping blocks from this city to all parts of the state. In the early nineties he was quite wealthy and was at the head of one of the largest wholesale implement houses in the west, located in the city of Omaha. Business depression at the time of the panic, on account of poor collections, forced his firm into insolvency. After that time until he located in this city he was a traveling salesman. Deceased leaves a wife, three sons and a daughter to mourn the death of a loving husband and father. The funeral will be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock from the Methodist church.

Searching for a Girl.

Last Saturday Miss Blanche Walmer departed over the Burlington for a visit with her aunt, Mrs. Loy, at Allen. Word from Mrs. Loy to her mother, Mrs. Jones of this city, that Miss Walmer had not arrived there put the parents and other relatives of the girl into a state of anxiety and worry. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Walmer, came in from the ranch in the Cache creek country Wednesday, after hearing of their daughter's disappearance.

The first story of the mystery came from the Burlington train men in charge of the Sioux City passenger on which the girl took passage. This was that she had left the train in company with a woman at Dixon, the first station west of Allen. On receiving this information Mr. Walmer, accompanied by his brother-in-law, Hurley Jones, went to Dixon on the Burlington freight last night. C. E. Hall also went east on the Burlington passenger this morning to help in the search.

Another story told the girl's mother this morning relieves her anxiety somewhat and indicates that Miss Walmer merely went on to Sioux City to see some old friends. It appears that it was another girl who left the train at Dixon. M. R. Horiskey, the mail clerk, says that Miss Walmer got off the train at Allen and not finding any of her relatives at the station, got back on the train with the remark that she would go on to Sioux City.

Miss Walmer is an attractive girl sixteen years of age but looks to be older. Mr. Walmer returned Thursday evening, after discovering that the strange actions of his daughter were the result of a romance and that she was to be married Friday morning.

The Grand Champion Steer

Twentieth Century Farmer: Something to talk about, something to think about, has been introduced into the cattle-feeding and cattle-breeding world by the capture of the grand champion prize in the fat steer classes at the International Live Stock Show by the Canadian steer Glencarnock, exhibited by J. D. McGregor of Brandon, Manitoba. This 2-year-old steer commenced his existence April 10, 1910 and weighed at Chicago when exhibited 1,600 pounds.

The very remarkable life history which attaches to this steer is a revelation to the ordinary feeder and exhibitor of fat cattle. Glencarnock is said to have never tasted corn nor had access to concentrated food, having attained his very remarkable condition of flesh by his plain and simple life, common to the cattle of that north-west country. His daily rations were found in the combination of native grass pasture, upland prairie hay and the small grains common to that district—oats and barley.

Just how fat this example of beef production can be carried, or can be depended upon for the developing and finishing of beef for the market, is not yet fully established in the minds of the corn belt cattle feeders from this one example. It is, however, a very encouraging prospect for the cattle raisers of the northwest who is situated so as to produce small grains and forage crops and turn them into the market through the steer, the animal now of greatest concern and admiration before the American people, and who must continue to hold this position for many years to come, and until greatly extended beef-producing interests are established.

The final disposition of a grand champion steer is the end of all cattle—the butcher's block. Glencarnock sold at public auction for 50 cents per pound, bringing $805. The history of this animal will be a profitable lesson to cattle owners. Glencarnock was sired by a pure-pred Angus bull; his dam was a grade Angus cow.

CHOOSING A HOBBY.

Make It One That Will Relieve the Tension of Business.

Writing on the advantage and enjoyment that a busy man will derive from a hobby, Arnold Bennett says in the Metropolitan:

"In choosing a distraction—that is to say, in choosing a rival to his business—he should select some pursuit whose nature differs as much as possible from the nature of his business, and which will bring into activity another side of his character. If his business is monotonous, demanding care and solicitude rather than irregular, intense efforts of the brain, then let his distraction be such as will make a powerful call upon his brain. But if on the other hand the course of his business runs in crises that string up the brain to its tightest strain, then let his distraction be a foolish and merry one.

"Many men fall into the error of assuming that their hobbies must be as dignified and serious as their vocations, though surely the example of the greatest philosophers ought to have taught them better! They seem to imagine that they should continually be improving themselves in either body or mind. If they take up a sport, it is because the sport may improve their health. And if the hobby is intellectual it must needs be employed to improve their brain.

"The fact is that their conception of self improvement is too narrow. In their restricted sense of the phrase they possibly don't need improving, they possibly are already improved to the point of being a nuisance to their fellow creatures; possibly what they need is worsening. In the broad and full sense of the phrase self improvement, a course of self worsening might improve them.

"I have known men—and everybody has known them—who would approach nearer to perfection if they could only acquire a little carelessness, a little absentmindedness, a little illogicalness, a little irrational and infantile galeity, a little unscrupulousness in the matter of the time of day. These considerations should be weighed before certain hobbies are dismissed as being unworthy of a plain man's notice."

GROWING BOYS AND GIRLS

are under double strain—strength to live and learn and strength to grow—they must have nourishment—not overloaded stomachs, but concentrated nutriment to aid nature during the growing period.

The wonderful record of Scott's Emulsion as a body-builder has been proved for three generations. It strengthens the bones, muscles and sinews; builds the body, creates energy and vigor; prevents and relieves colds and fortifies the lungs.

Millions of delicate and undeveloped children have been made strong, sturdy and hearty with Scott's Emulsion.

Insist on having SCOTT'S.
