MINOR MENTION

During a thunder storm Last Sunday morning lightning struck a large barn on the ranch of Mert Dierks, southeast of Chambers, and burned the building to the ground and twenty-one head of horses that was stabled there. We understand that Mr. Dierks carried insurance upon the barn.

Chambers Bugle: On Monday Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Sather started on the return trip to their home in Bellingham, Wash. While here Mr. Sather and Mr. Johnson sold their interests in the "S. and J. Ranch Co." Mr. Shearer purchased the entire property and will take possession soon as Mr. Johnson vacates the premises. The place will be hereafter known as "Shearer Ranch."

Dan McClellan, one of the pioneer settlers of northern Holt, was a caller at this office Tuesday renewing his subscription to this household necessity of which he has been a reader for over a quarter of a century. Mr. McClellan says that with favorable weather for the next six weeks Holt county will harvest the largest and best crop of corn in the history of the county.

Mrs. Peter Kelley started Tuesday morning on her return journey to her home in San Diego, Cal., after a weeks visit with old time friends in this city and vicinity. It has been six years since they moved from O'Neill and she says that she was greatly surprised at the growth of the city since that time. She loves California, however, and believes that San Diego is destined to become one of the greatest cities in that state.

John A. Golden and brother, Barney Fitzsimmons of Creston, Iowa arrived in the city last Friday evening, for a few days visit with relatives and friends. Mr. Golden is looking fine and says that he is getting along fine in his new home at Creston, but that the Emerald Tinted city, where he spent a quarter of a century of his life, seems more like home to him than Creston does. One thing he says that has been quite noticeable is the great number of strangers that are here. He was of the opinion that he knew everybody in the city but says that about every other man, he has met on streets has been a stranger, which he says is evidence that the town is growing very rapidly. They returned to their home Tuesday morning.

The chautauqua, which closed last Tuesday evening, was very successful, more so than even the most ardent supporters of it had anticipated. M. W. Gaines of Lincoln, who was the manager of the local chautauqua for the lyceum bureau, informed a reporter for the Frontier that it was the most successful first chautauqua that he had ever heard of as the total receipts exceeded their most sanguine expectations. The program during the entire chautauqua was good, the one of last Sunday being especially fine and said by many to have been the best of the entire program. Tuesday afternoon and night the people were regaled with some splendid music by one of the best bands in the country and the music was so good that it was enjoyed by those who are not devotees of music. The matter of a chautauqua will be taken up at the next meeting of the Commercial Club when the matter will probably be decided.

Arthur Ryan, secretary of the Race Meet association, returned Tuesday night from West Point where he had spent two days interviewing owners of harness horses with a view to getting them to enter their horses in the local meet. The mission was not very successful as many of the horses that have been on the circuit are going to Iowa and Kansas after the conclusion of the West Point meeting. The management of the race meet at Neligh have also been unable to secure sufficient horses to fill their harness races and the management of the meet there and here decided to out out the harness races at a running meet, which will be attended by between 60 and 100 of the fastest running horses in the west. This is the first exclusive running meet ever held in this section of the state and the management of the local meet are being congratulated upon all sides by the people of this section for having a strictly running meet instead of the harness races. In addition to the races there will be ball games for the championship of Holt county that will be very interesting as every team in the county that will enter the contest will be upon their toes all the time in an attempt to carry off the honor of the championship and the good sized purse that will go with the title. The Stuart Commercial Band of fifteen pieces will furnish the music during the three days of the meet and the visitors will be assured of lots of good music all the time.

D. S. Farnsworth, one of the pioneer residents of Verdigris township, was a caller last Thursday and had his name enrolled upon the Frontier's rapidly increasing list of readers. Mr. Farnsworth informed us that on August 4, accompanied by Mrs. Farnsworth, they will leave for an extended trip among their native Pennsylvania hills and visit scenes of their childhood and friends and relatives of bygone days. On August 21, near Pittsburg, they will attend the annual reunion of the Kiester family, being present at the unveiling of a monument to their great ancestor George Kiester, who served under General George Washington during the revolutionary war. His estate, still the property of the Kiesters, was purchased direct from William Penn, it being part of the Penn grant from the English government. In the archives of family history are many thrilling tales of this sturdy pioneer and the older of his descendants, how part of the men with loaded guns stood guard to protect from savage Indians, while others planted or gathered their crops. Sometimes all had to fly to the historic block house at Pittsburg for safety, and when they dared return to their home found home and crop destroyed and cattle driven away by the marauding Indians. Each year the gathering of the Kiester clan increases in size, coming from Maine, Canada, the Pacific coast and New Orleans. A history of this family is being prepared for early publication, and when completed a copy will be one of the treasured possessions of Mr. and Mrs. Farnsworth.

A Good Investment

W. D. Magli, a well known merchant of Whittemound, Wis., bought a stock of Chamberlain's medicine so as to be able to supply them to his customers. After receiving them he was himself taken sick and says that one small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was worth more to him than the cost of his entire stock of these medicines. The Live Stock Market

South Omaha, Neb. July 29.—From the Standard Live Stock Commission Co. The cattle market is strong and active thus far this week helped, no doubt, by the recent rains. Grass stock is selling better and stockers and feeders a dime higher with a good demand.

We quote:
Choice beef..... $8.25@8.85
Common Beef down to..... 7.40
Choice Corned cows..... 6.75@8.00
Good butcher grades..... 5.25@6.70
Canners and cutters..... 3.50@5.20

To the Hon Board of Supervisors of Holt county, Nebraska.
Your petitioner E. Roy Townsend, prays you to make an order to the county treasurer ordering him to strike the taxes for the year 1887 on lot 1 in block A. in Millards addition in the city of O'Neill for the following reason: When the Scavenger tax list was made up the taxes for the year 1887 were not shown against this land and your petitioner relying upon the Scavenger tax records and tax books in the county Treasurer's office bought this land from Edward E. Hunter, thinking there were no unpaid taxes against this property. You can verify this statement by consulting the records in the county treasurer's office.

The State of Neb., Holt county. ss. I, Henry Jennings of lawful age of Stuart township during the year 1912, and assessed the land in said township for said year 1912, and in making the assessment of section 26, township 31, north of range 16, west of the 6th p. m. there was a mistake made as to the valuation of the north half of said section which was valued at $20.00 per acre which in fact I intend to place the value at $15 the same valuation placed on the south half of said section. The south half of the section being of as great a value as the north of the section. The north half of the section should have been valued at $15 per acre, instead of $20 per acre and was intended to be assessed at $15 per acre.

Petition

To the Hon Board of County Commissioners, Holt county, Nebraska:

The undersigned petitioner, M. Drury, now comes and states the following facts:

That on the 9th day of November, 1912, the undersigned was a purchaser at the tax sale in Holt county, Neb., and purchased the east one-half of the northeast quarter (E1/2 of NE1/4) of section thirty-one (31) in township thirty-three (33) range twelve (12) Holt county, Nebraska, in the manner provided by law, at the public tax sale for the delinquent taxes for the year 1911. That the sum of five and 75-100 dollars was paid for which it included the taxes, interest and penalty thereon, and that the said amount was the highest bid for the same, and that tax certificate is now the property of the undersigned, and has been ever since the date that it was delivered.

The undersigned has been informed that the above described tract of land is Government land at the time of the assessment made upon above described land, and is not a legal tax and should be refunded by the board of county commissioners. That the slip hereto attached is the information received from the county treasurer of Holt county, Nebraska, showing that it will be necessary to present this petition for a refund.

The undersigned respectfully asks that the aforesaid amount with the legal rate of interest allowed by law be refunded to the undersigned petitioner.

PAID FOR TAX CERTIFICATE..... $5.75
Interest on said amount..... .38
Total amount due..... $6.13
The undersigned respectfully requests that the sum of six and 13-100 dollars be refunded.
M. Drury
State of South Dakota, County of Brule. ss.

M. Drury, being duly sworn, deposes and says that the aforesaid petition has been duly read and the contents thereof noted. That the facts as stated therein are true to the best of her knowledge and belief, and as to those facts stated on information and belief she verily believes to be true.

M. Drury.

As they row over the surface, seeking a likely spot, they chew a very oily fruit known as the candle nut. When they consider they have reached a good fishing ground they spit out this nut, which forms a thin film on the top of the water, over which the wind passes without leaving a ripple. This enables them to see right down into the clear sea, and if they are satisfied with the outlook they prepare to fish.

Taking the brush in one hand and the net, the mouth of which is propped open by means of a twig or two in the other, they dive noiselessly and quietly overboard. Having arrived at the face of the coral reef, they literally brush the frightened fish out of their dens, endeavoring to catch them in the net as they dart away.

There is one place at least on the coast of Belgium where they go shrimping on horseback. The trawling nets are attached to the sides of saddles carried by horses or big donkeys, and on their back men, and women, too, for that matter, ride into the sea until the animals are almost under water, when they drag the trawls behind them, walking parallel to the shore.—Stray Stories.

The right hand doubtless owes something of its prominence to the Bible. The Hebrews singled it out for special honor, and the Scriptures contain quite a hundred references in which "the right hand" is made the type and symbol of everything noble, praiseworthy and desirable. It is worth noting, however, that the tribe of Benjamin once boasted 700 left handed slingers who "could sling stones to a hair's breadth and not miss" and that among the "mighty men and helpers" of King David were many who "could use both the right hand and the left in hurling stones and shooting arrows with the bow."—London Standard.

Plain and Painful Talk.
During a senatorial investigation one time Senator Clapp experienced great difficulty in getting some information from a nervous witness.

"Now," said the senator somewhat sharply, "out with it, my man; out with it!"

"If the committee will excuse me," said the lawyer representing the witness, "I do not like the term 'Out with it!' This is not the office of a dentist."—Popular Magazine.

STUDY YOUR NOSE

It Is a Most Wonderful Organ and a Really Fine Furnace.

ACTS AS A PERFECT FILTER.

This Facial Ornament Strains, Heats and Moistens All Air Drawn Through It Into the Lungs—Its Delicate Nerves and Microbe Catching Mucus.

Ordinarily we regard our own or another person's nose from the standpoint of personal beauty. If the organ is a becoming one it wins our admiration, and unless occasion arises we give it no further thought. A delicious or a repugnant odor reminds us at times that we possess a sense of smell, and a cold in the head is apt to make us wish that there was no such thing as a nose.

Beyond these points, however, we rarely penetrate, and as a rule we fail to fully realize what an important part of the human anatomy is this most prominent feature of the face.

No stove or furnace that ever was made by man can equal in efficiency the human nose, for the nose, in the space of three inches and in two seconds of time, can raise the temperature of the air it draws in nearly fifty degrees and at the same time saturate it with moisture and thoroughly purify it.

The nose is really one of the most extraordinary organs of the body. Its nerves are more sensitive than those of fingers or ears or eyes, for they can perceive distinctly an almost incredibly minute amount of a gas so subtle that its presence can be detected in no other way. It is also a perfect filter and thus the most important guardian of the body against disease.

All air that is breathed into the lungs should be at a temperature of nearly 90 degrees F. It should also be moist, even wet. Cold, dry air is fine for the outside of the body, but has no place in its interior. In heating the air the nose works on the principle of a steam coil. It is not merely two tubes leading up into the head and so down to the throat, but from the bones on either side three twisted bones curl out into the passage, one above the other, each coated with elastic cushions of blood vessels and tiny glands. These form coils with a great, hot, damp surface, over which the air spreads as it is drawn up. Thus is the air warmed for its entrance to the lungs.

A furnace maker told the present writer that any man who could invent an efficient apparatus for mixing moisture with air in its passage through a hot air furnace could make a fortune, as every device now in use is only a makeshift and of very little real value. The Almighty Maker of the human—and the animal—nose solved the problem. The entire surface of the inside of the nose is composed of a membrane that pours forth a fluid called mucus. This is composed largely of salt water, which is taken up by the passing air until this is saturated before it reaches the throat.

This mucus is also a microbe catcher and a dust catcher. Almost all the dirt and germs of disease that enter with the air through the nostrils are trapped by the mucus. The living enemies are killed, for the mucus is antiseptic and germicidal. Thus the air is heated, moistened and purified before it reaches the lungs.

Air breathed in through the mouth is not warmed, moistened or purified except to a very slight extent. Consequently it reaches the lungs cold, dry and laden with dust and disease. Bronchitis, tonsillitis, diphtheria and consumption are the result.

The mucous membrane of the nose is subject to diseases such as catarrh, "cold in the head" and hay fever. Adenoids grow in the back of the nose and stop up its tubes. A simple and easy operation will remove the latter, while the former if taken when they first show themselves can be cured without difficulty. If neglected they may become incurable. Thus not only do they prevent the necessary warming, moistening and filtering of the air, but they spread and cause many diseases of the throat and lungs and are the commonest cause of serious and intensely painful trouble with the ears.—New York World.
