The NORTH PLATTE VALLEY

Government Irrigated Homestead land, Carey Act land, and private deeded lands are yet available on favorable terms in this great rich valley, so close to all the good markets.

THE NEW RAILROAD: This great agricultural valley is on the new main line through Central Wyoming, now being completed, and this is an important factor in considering the future value of these rich agricultural lands. There is no other irrigated valley so close to all the Eastern markets.

BEET SUGAR FACTORY: Already located in the valley, and thousands of acres are planted to beets each year; other thousands of acres are growing alfalfa, but there is lots of room for more people.

Levi Lines died at the home of his son, George Lines, southwest of this place, Friday night, January 30, at 11:15. Mr. Lines had been a sufferer for nearly a year and passes away at the good old age of 85 years. The funeral was conducted from the Methodist church, Rev. Norfleet preaching the funeral sermon Monday at 10:30, the remains being laid to rest in the Inman cemetary.

OBITUARY.

Levi Lines was born in North Hamptonshire, England, January 9, 1829. At the age of 26 years he was married to Miss Sarah Burton in North Hamptonshire, England. To this union were born six children, three of whom are living: Mrs. Hattie Bolton, of Iowa City, Iowa; William Lines of Atlantic City, Iowa, and George Lines of Inman, Neb. When he came to America Mr. Lines settled at Auburn, New York, where he resided for twelve years, then moving to Nebraska and settling in Johnson county. Here his wife died and then he took land in Keya Paha county, moving on the homestead, four miles northeast of Springview,. For the last twenty years he has made his home with his son, George. He was always a stout, robust man until the 4th day of June, 1913, when he was taken sick and was a great sufferer up to the time of his death.

Mr. Lines was a member of the Luthern church, which he joined when a young man, and has lived a true christian. The bereaved family have the sympathy of their many

His Stomach Troubles Over. Mr. Dysyeptic, would you not like to feel that your stomach troubles were over, that you could eat any kind of food you desired without injury? That may seem so unlikely to you that you do not even hope for an ending of your troubles, but permit us to assure you that it is not altogether impossible. If others can be cured permanently, and thousands have been, why not you? John R. Barker, of Battle Creek Mich, is one of them. He says. THE CURIOUS AXOLOTL.

It's a Regular Jekyll and Hyde Sort of

Reptile. Persons of only ordinary powers of observation know that tadpoles become frogs. This process of transformation is one of the most interesting of the many curious things that go on about us every day. The case of the tadpole and frog is mentioned that the reader may more easily understand a reptile that is found in southern California and Mexico.

There are several varieties of salamandrine reptiles in North America, all of them perfectly harmless. One in particular lives in the desert regions of the southwest. The Mexicans call it the axolotl. It is perhaps the most curious of all reptiles. It is a light gray or pure white translucent reptile about seven inches in length. It lives in lakes and ponds, breathes through gills just back of the front legs, has a long tail and caudal fins above and below that extend its entire length and four stout legs, with which it creeps about the bettom of the pond.

In the region where these reptiles live long continued droughts are common. Then the ponds and lakes dry up. As the water falls evaporation begins. Instinct warns the avoioti that there will shortly be no water, and he makes preparation for a terrestrial life. The gills disappear, and he comes to the surface for air just as a tadpole does when he is about to become a frog. As the water grows shallower the axoloti loses a portion of his tail. sheds his caudal fins, changes from white to brown with gray spots and when the water is quite gone takes to the sand hills and becomes a spotted salamander.

The most remarkable thing about it all is that when the water supply is not exhausted be lives his entire life as an axoloti and never tries to become a spotted salamander By experimentation an axoloti has been made to undergo almost complete transformation and then has been turned back into an axoloti again - Youth's Companion.

MYSTERY OF THE SALMON.

Their Annual Mad Rushes and Death After Spawning.

The world's greatest salmon runs are to be found along the shores of the north Pacific ocean, in the states of Washington, Oregon and California, the province of British Columbia and Alaska, on the American side, and Siberia and Japan, on the Asiatic side So far, however, but few salmon have been canned on the Asiatic side.

To one who has never witnessed these annual runs it is almost an impossibility to convey an adequate impression of the countless numbers of fish that swim in from the sea in the late spring and summer, all imbued with the same desire-to gain suitable grounds in the upper reaches of the rivers, some of which are from 1,500 to 2,500 miles in length, where they may perpetuate the species.

No obstacle appears too great to be surmounted in this feverish rush. Jumping falls, shooting rapids, dodging nets, bears, birds, mink, otter and other enemies, fighting with other males, whom the near approach of the breeding season renders especially savage-all these are taken as a matter of

And yet one sometimes wonders i the heroic struggle is worthily repaid. for the moment of victory is also that of death, as sad to relate, these valiant voyagers can breed but once and then must die, their wasted bodies which have received no nourishment since leaving salt water, becoming the prey of any prowling bear or carrion bird which may chance upon them Why these fish should all die after spawning still remains one of the great unsolved mysteries of the scientific world.-Wide World Magazine

Pocket Hunters. There is no more interesting character in California than that class of prospector known as the "pocket hunt-In certain sections of the mountains the rich gold deposits are contained in small scattered pockets near the surface. The pocket miners often discover many rich deposits by tracing the particles of gold in the soil to their sources As soon as a pocket is gonged out and colors of gold are no onger shown the place is abandoned In one pocket in Trinity county as much as $45,000 was yielded in a few feet.-Argonaut.

How He Uses His Hands. Some curious facts about Mr. Townend, the art editor of London Punch. are narrated. He is a curious instance of ambidexterity. His drawings are done with the left hand, but his letters are written with the right hand. He is left handed as a billiard player, but right handed as a card dealer. And when he plays cricket he is a left handed bowler but a right handed batsman.-London Answers.

Way to Marital Happiness. "Marry a bright woman for success and a pretty one for happiness," advises a student of the problem. Also one who can cook for the benefit of the digestion might be advisable, but the pesky laws limit you to one.-Louisville Courier-Journal.

Between Girls. Marie-How are you going to reform him? Kate-By marrying him. Marie -Goodness! Does he require such heroic treatment as that?-Boston Tran-
