Why See Only "Milady Militant?" among the country press, in the discussion of equal suffrage in Nebraska, We have noticed quite a tendency to take the tactics of the English militant suffragettes, and argue entirely on that line against our petition. We want to suggest for the consolation of these editors that the American suffragist does not now and never did approve of the policy of the English militant suffragette in any degree. American manhood, as we know it, does not have to be educated in that way and American womanhood does not teach lessons of political economy or ethics in a militant manner.

If the English methods, or English women must be brought into the discussion of Nebraska civil affairs, why not tell us of the methods of our dear Lady Henry Somerset, the lovely white-haired Countess of Carlisle, who is president of the World's W. C. T. U. Of Lady Ormiston Chant; Agnes Slack, and numbers more of good English women we could mention, who are ardently espousing the cause of votes for women, and who are the co-laborers of your own mothers, wives, sisters and friends in Nebraska, who have never thought of arson, destroying valuable relics, putting acids in mail boxes and other inexcusable crimes done in the name of "votes for women," and who depreciate these actions as heartily as boys, do not class the women of Nebraska who ask for suffrage in a womanly way, as among those whom you think unworthy of even respectful mention. The English militant is not at your door asking for any favor or recognition.

Your own neighbors, mothers, sisters and wives are asking only for what they honestly believe to be a just and equitable right to vote their opinions, wishes, and political privileges by the ballot, the same as yourself. And please do not ask them beforehand how they will vote or with which political party they will affiliate. Just give us the ballot on the same terms you, yourself, received it at your twenty-first birthday.—Chairman Holt County Suffrage Association.

His Twenty-eight Operation.

Omaha, April 22.—John J. Nolan, 53, retired soldier, residing at O'Neill, Neb., is at St. Joseph's hospital preparing for the twenty-eight operation on his left eye.

Twenty-seven operations have been performed on the same eye in Omaha during the last ten years. Mr. Nolan has not taken chloroform, ether, or any general anaesthetic during any of these operations, most of which were severe. He will not take any anaesthetics at this operation.

Mr. Nolan's right eye was removed by Dr. William C. Gorgas while Mr. Nolan was a soldier at Fort Randall, Dak., in 1886. Gorgas since has become famous for his work for the government in the Panama canal fever.

Except that he is able to distinguish light from darkness, Mr. Nolan is blind. Whether continued operations will restore the sight of the eye that is left, he does not know and doesn't worry about it.

Cobb and Stecker Wrestle to a Draw.

Several O'Neill lovers of the grappling game went to Stuart last night to witness the mat contest between Stecker of Dodge county and Cobb of Stuart. The two men struggled for five hours and 15 minutes without a fall and the contest was declared a draw. These men met about a month ago and wrestled for over two hours without a fall and many who attended from here were of the opinion that the Dodge county man was too fast for Cobb and that he could have pinned the latters shoulders to the mat had he been so inclined. But those who witnessed last night's encounter were of the opinion that if Stecker could have thrown Cobb he would have done so, and they came away from the match convinced that the Stuart man was a far better grappler than they had given him credit for being. It was a splendid encounter and the only regret expressed was that the contest did not develop which was the better man.

An Inheritance Law Proposition.

Opportunity, Neb., April 21, 1914. Mr. Editor: I read some time ago an article from the pen of Edward L. Keen of London, England, in which he quotes from a speech of Alfred Russel of the same place, a few statements to show why he (Wallace) believes a law should be passed prohibiting all unborn babes from inheriting property of their ancestors as a preventative measure against the accumulating of colossal fortunes by the few and to make better times for the many. Of course Mr. Wallace was only advocating such a law for his own country, but if England should legalize such an infamous proposition as that, by passing an inheritance law embodying that principle, does any one doubt for a minute that the big interests of this country would not use their power to coerce congress to pass a similar law which could not fail to result in great benefits to those who have now amassed fabulous fortunes?

A modification of that theory occurred to me when I read that article, and I am constrained to remark that if there is any inheritance legislation needed in this country, that the following plan may not be amiss. My plan is this: The government would not inherit on any sum under $5,000., and on that sum and under $10,000., 2 per cent, $10,000 to $15,000 4 per cent, $15,000 to $20,000 7 per cent, $20,000 to $30,000 10 per cent, $30,000 to $50,000 15 per cent, $50,000 to $75,000 20 per cent, $75,000 to $100,000 25 per cent and all sums over that 30 per cent. Now I will give an example to show how this would work: John Rogers dies leaving an estate valued at $5,000. Very well, the federal government would get 2 per cent of that and his heirs the rest. The government would get $100 and the heirs $4,900. Now if John Rogers left an estate valued at $100,000 the government would get 25 per cent, or $25,000. While the heirs got $75,000. But there would be a serious flaw even in that plan if such a law did not permit the state, county and township in which that property lay, to share its inheritance. Therefore I suggest that in such a law that there should be a provision allowing the federal and state governments each 15 per cent of the governments inheritance, the county 40 per cent and the township 30 per cent. I will give an example to show how that would work out: John Rogers leaves an estate valued at $5,000, his heirs inherit 98 per cent of his estate, or $4,900 and the remaining 2 per cent or $100, would be distributed as follows: Federal gov't 15 per cent... $15.00 State gov't 15 per cent... 15.00 County gov't 40 per cent... 40.00 Township gov't 30 per cent... 30.00

Thus it is obvious the poor man would get practically the whole of his ancestors estate while the small sums inherited by the government would scarcely be felt by him and it would help to lighten his taxes.

Now, Mr. Editor, I have tried to make myself understood, in this matter, and I virtually believe an inheritance law in this country would appeal to the candid judgment of our best citizens, if modeled on the plan I have herein suggested.

One more thing I must suggest ere I lay down my pen, and that in the event that there should be any attempt to evade the law when passed, as some law something like the foregoing may be some day, it would be well for our national law makers to safeguard the governments inheritance by appropriate legislation. I also believe that such a law would soon abolish direct taxation which after all is something that would be a great boon to the working classes. Having now expended much thought on this subject, I am willing to rest on my laurels and give some one else a chance to express their views.

R. J. Hatch.
