They say they had a splendid trip and had exceptionally good luck, each member of the party being able to bring back near the limit, fifty fish each.

Cam Tinsley and Mrs. Ethel Tinsley were united in marriage last Friday by County Judge Carlon. They were divorced a little over a year ago but decided that wedded life was preferable to single and were again united. Their many Holt county friends hope that nothing but sunshine and happiness will be their lot in the future.

Several of the musical boys of the city met last Tuesday evening in Golden's hall and organized a cornet band. D. H. Clauson was elected president; E. D. Henry, secretary and Jess Mills, treasurer. The boys will meet every Tuesday night for practice and in a short time expect to be discoursing sweet music to the inhabitants of the city.

Tim Ryan met with rather a painful accident in the ball game yesterday afternoon that will cause him to carry a highly decorated optic for several days. Tim was playing third, in his usual faultless style, and ran over toward the fence after a high foul. When he was nearly under the ball he glanced down to see how far he was from the fence and as he raised his head the ball fell striking him just over the left eye, putting him down and out for the count. Outside of carrying the discolored optic he is none the worse for the encounter.

The home of Roy Townsend, in the southeastern part of the city, was broken into last Monday night and a large quantity of jewelry and silverware stolen. The property was found Tuesday morning by some children hid in the grass near the stock yards. Mr. and Mrs. Townsend have been at Upton, Wyoming, the past month and the house has been closed for about three weeks. Mrs. Ekert has been looking after the house and she had spent a couple of weeks visiting her children at Ainsworth. She came home Monday morning and went down to the house and opened the doors and windows to air the building out. She fastened the screen doors and came up town for supper that evening. After supper she took in the picture show and upon her return to the house about 11 o'clock discovered the robbery. The officials are of the opinion that the thieving is the work of some boys of the city who seen Mrs. Ekert leaving the house and took this opportunity to ransack the place.

W. B. Graves is feeling exceptionally good these days and dreams of the future surrounded with wealth and all that money can buy. And it seems as if Bill had good reason to feel particularly good. Some eight years ago he invested in some stock in a mining company, the property of which was located in North Carolina. As the years passed and nothing was heard of the matter he had about decided that it could be charged up to the list of poor investments when a couple of days ago the daily newspapers contained an article that gold was discovered on the property and the indications were that the mine was a bonanza and everyone who had invested in stock in the company was urged to hold onto their stock. The mine is located next to another great mine that the government values at $60,000,000. Bill says that if the strike pans out as rich as they say it is going to that the first dividends he acquires will be invested in an automobile. We are all hoping to see him soon the possessor of a buz wagon.

The case of the State of Nebraska vs. J. M. Ward, real name unknown, who, with his partner was accused of beating a board bill, occupied the attention of County Judge Carlon and six time-pressed business men all day Monday. It appears from the evidence offered at the trial that Ward and his pal, W. C. Floyd, who were in the city soliciting subscriptions for an Indiana farm paper, on Sunday the 28th day of June after partaking of the hospitality of our local hotels for a week departed without paying their bill which amounted to $8.75 apiece. They were later located at Niobrara and brought back for trial. E. H. Whelan represented the defendants, County Attorney Hodgkin the state. Several witnesses were examined on both sides after which the jury deliberated a couple of hours and found them not guilty. The county attorney then dismissed the complaint against Loyd and they both left town Tuesday morning. A short time before their first hurried departure Chief of Police John Kane discovered them prowling around in the residence section of the city and arrested them, but they were later released. It is also understood that they were arrested while at Neligh.

Grace Fouts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fouts of this city, and Alice Burns, daughter of a farmer living just north of this city, caused some anxiety upon the part of their relatives last Monday when they ran away from home. The young ladies left O'Neill and drove to Emmet, where they took the afternoon passenger for Long Pine intending to take the evening passenger for Wyoming. Their parents heard of the affair and Mr. Fouts and Mr. Burns went to Long Pine on the evening train and found the young ladies sitting in the depot at the Pine waiting for the train. Miss Fouts then displayed to her father her marriage certificate, showing that she had been married on July 3, in Omaha to S. B. Loomis and was on her way to Wyoming to join her husband. Loomis formerly worked in the Burlington depot here and her folks knew that she was engaged to him but did not know they contemplated getting married so soon. Her father then offered no objections and she went on west that night to join her husband, who is station agent at Orion Junction, Wyoming. Miss Burns had become dissatisfied here and was on her way to Wyoming where she figured on securing work. Her father persuaded her to return home with him and everything is now serene.

The ringing of the fire bell last Tuesday morning about 7:30 brought the citizens of O'Neill to the fire house from all directions. The alarm was given in order to bring the citizens of the city together to organize searching parties for Dorothy Davidson, aged 11 years, who disappeared Monday afternoon. When Dorothy did not return home that evening her parents searched for her and when they were unable to find her several searching parties were organized and searched most of the night, some of the searchers just returning to town shortly after daylight to get breakfast and start again. A little girl was seen walking east on the railroad track Monday evening and the country east of town along the track was thoroughly searched Monday night. Nearly every home between here and Inman, near the track, was called at except the home of Joseph Singleman, about four miles east of this city and it was there that the little girl was. She arrived there about 8:30 Monday evening and was put to bed and when the second searching party were on their way out they met Mr. Singleton coming to town with the little girl. She was affected with the heat and does not have a very distinct recollection of her travels of Monday afternoon but is rapidly improving.

O'Neill Trims Dorsey.

The Dorsey boys came in last Sunday to try conclusions with the O'Neill ball club upon the local diamond. The boys were short some of their regular players and did not put up a very creditable game on that account. Bill Martin was on the firing line for the visitors and while he was not touched for very many hits, several of them with errors coming in the same inning allowed the local boys to run away with the game. Lintt twirled his usual good game for the locals, holding Dorsey down to three hits and fanning eight. Following is the score by innings:

O'Neill 1 2 0 2 7 0 0 1 *—13
Hits: O'Neill 9; Dorsey 3. Struck out: Lintt 8; Martin 3; Karr 1. Errors: O'Neill 4; Dorsey 9.

A Tribute to the Irish.

Through the courtesy of C. E. Stout we are in possession of Harcourts' Midsummer Magazine, devoted to stationary retailers, in which referring to Daniel A. Hagerly, an Irishman in the U. S. Marines, who was one of the first to fall in the recent Mexican trouble, they pay the following tribute to the Irish:

Sure you'll always find the Irish where there's fighting to be done. Be it fists, or rough-and-tumble, or the handlin' of a gun. When they sound the charge, you'll always find the Irish in the van. For there's somethin' in his heart that makes the Mick a fightin' man. Sure, it had to be Hagerly to be the first to fall. If it wasn't for the Irish, sure we'd win no wars at all. An' it's proud we are of Daniel an' of all his gallant clan. For there's somethin' in his veins that makes the Mick a fightin' man.
