After eight years' work, Miss Irma Cox has completed the task of copying 150,000 diagrams of the trade routes which were partly destroyed by fire in 1906, thereby giving a complete history of original surveys of every lot in San Francisco from 1862 to 1906. Miss Cox found it necessary to split every sheet of paper by hand and to mount each separate sheet on a linen slate so it could be handled.

With practically no tools, a man in the Bridgewater (Mass.) state farm, has made a perfect teapot out of a cent. The center of the cent is kept intact for the bottom of it. The handle, cover, snout and entire outline are perfect symmetrically. It is even possible to place water in this tiny receptacle and have it run out through the wee snout, which is about as large as a small common pin.

The Russian ministry of agriculture is planning to construct a new town, to be called Anu-Darjinsk, in the Hunger steppe of Central Asia, which has not been made available for agriculture by the irrigation system of the Romanov canal. Parcels of land are to be leased and will ultimately become the property of the tenants. More than 4,000 applications for the land have already been received.

The Philippine islands as a market for athletic goods give great promise. A noteworthy feature of the trade is the number of orders local dealers are receiving from China and Japan. The far eastern Olympic games, in which China and Japan are taking part, originated in the Philippines, and the athletes of China and Japan are looking to Manila largely for athletic supplies.

The Detroit federation of labor will circulate petitions asking that the people have a chance to vote on the question of a minimum wage for municipal workers when charter amendments are submitted. The proposed bill provides that contractors violating the law may be punished by a fine of $50 to $500 for each offense or 10 to 30 days in jail.

The Bark Platina, one of the last of the old New Bedford whalers, was recently broken up for firewood. She was according to Shipping Illustrated, the only vessel there ever captured a white whale. "Triplex" glass, consisting of two sheets of ordinary glass interleaved with a sheet of celluloid and amalgamated under heavy pressure, may play an important part in automobile manufacture in the future. This glass will not fly about when shattered but merely breaks up into adhering pieces, and hence will not cause injuries in case of accident.

An amusing repartee is recorded of a student sentry in a military school. Hearing a noise while on night guard, he called: "Halt! Who goes there?" It was an important return in sportive mood, who answered, "Moses." This brought the retort from the sentry, "Advance, Moses, and give the 10 commandments!"

Reuben Chapman, of Hildeford, Me., when near Cape Elizabeth in his boat, was startled by a cry like that of a human being, and found it to come from a baby seal. He took it aboard, fed it and put it back into the water. When it returned twice, wailing pitifully and climbing on Mr. Chapman's lap, he decided to keep it.

St. Pierre, Martinique, which was destroyed by the eruption of Mt. Pelee in 1902, has never been rebuilt, but it is said that even yet the ruins are being searched for valuables. The place is under police control, and two or three streets have been excavated, but it is still a "city of desolation."

ONE CANDIDATE SAYS LOCKEYING HIS NAME CAUSED HIS DEFEAT

Heartless Printer Abbreviated "Raymond E." To Just Plain "R. E."—So There!

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 31.—Raymond E. Dale, of Loup City, who was defeated for state senator on the democratic ticket in the Twenty-second district, has filed a protest with the attorney general against his treatment by the man who had charge of printing tickets in Sherman county. Dale says that the name of Senator Wink, democratic candidate for re-election, was printed in larger type than the names of anyone else. Dale says that the postoffice address of all other candidates than himself was given on the ballot and that, while the secretary of state certified his name as Raymond E. Dale, it appeared on the ballot as R. E. Dale. Mr. Dale is convinced that these discriminations were not done accidentally. The attorney general can do nothing for him, however, as any contest must be started within five days after election.

SUFFRAGETS WELL PLEASED WITH FIRST AUTO TOUR

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 31.—So successful was the first extensive automobile tour taken by the Nebraska suffragist committee that it is planned to make use of this method of campaigning for the months remaining. The plan is to start out from campaign centers with two automobiles loaded with speakers, and these travel on a schedule laid out in advance. It was found that a properly arranged schedule made it possible to keep dates to the minute, the first automobile crowd of speakers beginning a meeting in the second town while the second one was closing the first meeting.

The speakers say they were well received and that, in each instance, audiences in excess of the population of the smaller towns heard them.

FORMER POSEN VETERAN SAYS FORTS IMPREGNABLE

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 31.—Frank Marischewsky of Lincoln is quite sure that the Russians have a big job cut out for them in assaulting the German forts at Posen. Marischewsky served two years in the army of the kaiser, and spent the entire time as a private at Posen. He says a strong garrison is always maintained there, and that there are several artificial barriers that make approach difficult. There is a big angle of barbed wire several hundred yards from the fortifications, and tons of broken glass have been thrown upon the intervening ground to make footing treacherous. He says that all of the German fortifications in eastern Prussia were built in the most modern style, as the invasion from Russia has long been looked for. Marischewsky is a member of the German reserves, but does not anticipate being called home. His father is a merchant of Stettin.

BULLDOG TENACITY OF ENGLAND MAY PROVE DECIDING FACTOR IN GREAT EUROPEAN WAR

Kitchener's Grim Note Indicates That John Bull Has Entered Conflict To See It Through and Will Stop At Nothing To Break Down German Militarism.

BY JOHN SNURE.

Overshadowing all other facts with respect to the European war, as the developments today are reported, is the grim and ominous note sounded by Lord Kitchener to the house of lords. His warning that the war may last three years or more and that England is prepared to go to the utmost limit of the effort to strike down German militarism, serves to bring home to Americans more fully than anything yet, the full scope of the possibilities in the great tragedy being staged abroad.

This statement of Lord Kitchener's along with reports that Germany is beginning the training of her youth of the ages of 16 and 19 years, makes it plain that unless some unforeseen way is found to end the war advanced lines of genuine life and death struggle for domination in Europe and perhaps in still wider fields.

The news of the last few days has served to throw a clearer perspective on this unparalleled situation. The strategy of the campaigns can be understood only when the vast political considerations involved are taken into account. Practically all along a 200-mile line from Maubeuge near the Franco-Belgian frontier, to the frontier of Alsace, a series of battles constituting in fact one vast engagement, is raging, with its fortunes ebbing and flowing. Seriously reversed in the early operations along this line, the German forces have since the fall of Namur the allies have fallen back, taken new defensive positions, called up additional masses of reserves and are now struggling desperately to hold back the waves of the German inundation.

How futile it is to make predictions as to the final outcome of such an unprecedented struggle may be imagined by conceiving of this deadly grapple as like unto a half dozen battles of the Wilderness roughly connected into one. The scenes shift daily, even hourly. Now one side gains an advantage and now is driven back. If the latest reports are to be believed, the allies are meeting the onsets of the Germans more successfully than they did along their more advanced lines and in some instances even are resuming the offensive.

But the best indication that the allies' lines are in grave danger of being smashed is to be gathered from the dark tone of the dispatches from London. The English war office is not deceiving itself and apparently is seeking to tell the truth to the public. Dispatches tell glibly of the vast numbers engaged here and there. The figures are not known. The one thing that is clear is that Germany is doing the very thing her strategists, like Bernhardi, have been writing about.

GERMANS RECRUIT AMERICAN CITIZENS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 31.—American consuls in Europe are being overwhelmed with appeals for aid from claimants of American citizenship who have been forced to take up arms for their land of birth.

In Germany the situation is the most complicated, for the only treaties the United States has which touches on this subject were made with separate states and principalities before the confederation of the empire. None of these accept first naturalization papers as a valid obstacle against repatriation.

Many Americans by adoption who are surgeons or physicians, mechanics or at least material for able bodied soldiers, have been or are about to be sent to war. In the cases of those who are bona fide citizens the state department is making representations, but it was pointed out today diplomatic bodies move slower than recruiting sergeants.

BANKERS OBJECT TO RESERVE BANK OCT. 1

system into operation by October 1, but the objections raised by bankers to this are strong. In the first place they say this is not a good time for the banks to have to meet the assessment on them for the capital of the reserve banks. Further they hold the shifting of the reserves at this time is inopportune and they point out that it would not be easy to replace the emergency circulation which is out under the Aldrich-Vreeland act and which is doing good service. It is impossible to predict whether the putting into operation of the federal reserve act will be delayed as the result of the conference.
