The Stock Market.

South Omaha, Jan. 5. From Standard Live Stock Commission Co.—Cattle seem to come very liberally following every little advance in the market so that each alternate week seems to bring a decline in the market. Receipts are not only very liberal here but also other places this week. While the choicer kinds as usual, held nearly steady, the medium grades, together with cows and butcher stock were dull and 10c to 25c lower. However, there seems to be an active demand for feeders and some of the more desirable kinds in this class sold at stronger prices with the commoner kinds slow and lower.

We quote: Good to choice cornfed beefs $8 to $9, common kinds down to $6.25. Good to choice cows and heifers $5.60 to $7.25, fair to good $4.80 to $5.50, canners and cutters $3.75 to $4.75. Veal calves $7 to $8.75. Bulls, stags, etc., $5 to $6.50. Good to choice feeders $7.25 to $8.10, common grades down to $5.75. Stock cows and heifers $4.75 to $6.25. Stock calves $6 to $8.

Hog receipts are heavy this week with a slump of 15 to 20c. Bulk $7 to $7.05, top $7.10. The sheep market shows a decline of 15 to 25c with heavy receipts. We look for a lighter run the balance of the week.

Gleanings.

January 1, 1915, was the nicest day we had this winter. Word was received recently from O. B. Hatch that he was going to move on January 1st to Topeka, Kansas. He had been driving an oil wagon in Lincoln, Nebraska.

In our last items we wrote a little in favor of a corn contest for the boys which should be from 10 to 16 years old. A contest by farmers would be exceedingly appropriate, and it should be so arranged as to permit them to contest for the largest yield for any given amount of acres, and also to extend the contest to include any or all varieties of farm produce, for by that method we could learn best what was the greatest yield of the various farm products on a large scale through the system of intense cultivation and fertilization. Now, because barn yard manure is rather scarce on most farms to fertilize the necessary large number of acres, and as commercial fertilizers are somewhat expensive, it will be seen at a glance that the farmers are up against it pretty hard, as there is no doubt that the prevailing droughts during the last decade in this country, has had more effect than if the land had been properly fertilized. The reason I think that, is because when we do have a normal season, we do not get such bumper crops as we did when our land was new, which indicates pretty thoroughly that what our land needs today is fertilization in some manner, as the soil, fertility that was previously in the soil is pretty well exhausted. But how shall we remedy it you ask? Under present conditions it would be hard to answer, but if the farmers could get along with only one half of their cultivated land while they were raising and plowing under green fertilizers on the other half two or three times for one season, the next year they should be able to raise more than twice as much products on the fertilized portion of their farm than they formerly did on the whole and during the second season they could fertilize the rest in the same manner, thereby insuring them the most productive farms in the state. It really seems to me that something will have to be attempted along these lines pretty soon or the farmers will not produce enough to pay the taxes on them, to say nothing about personal taxes and living expenses.

A BONE OF CONTENTION
Ranch Corporations Said to Want "Friendly Indian" in Valentine Land Office.
Omaha Bee: The fight over Nebraska patronage threatens to get larger instead of smaller, as it is disclosed that the candidates recommended by Senator Hitchcock are chosen specially because of their known antagonism to Secretary Bryan. A protest has come in now against the appointment of James C. Quigley of Valentine as register of the land office there, for which he has been endorsed by the senator, which draws the curtain from some of the conditions that have created the patronage deadlock.

According to the narrative in this protest the Hitchcock favorite is one of the incorporators and also a director of the Bar T Cattle company. James H. Quigley, an incorporator and president of the company, and reputed to be its heaviest stockholder, is the father of James C. Quigley, the tentative appointee. William D. Bachelor is also an incorporator and active manager. This cattle company operates in this, Cherry county, owning several thousand acres of land, holds large leases for grazing purposes on Pine Ridge reservation and runs several thousand head of cattle.

Again James H. Quigley is the sole owner of a large ranch property consisting of several thousand acres, whereon he runs a private brand of cattle. This ranch is located south of Cody in Cherry county. Bachelor has a private ranch property which he leases to his brother-in-law. This is located south of Valentine. This Mr. Bachelor has two brothers, John H. Bachelor, who owns and operates one of the largest individually owned ranches in this country, and who, with his brother, C. B. Bachelor, controls the Boardman Cattle company with thousands of acres and several thousand cattle.

John H. Bachelor and his associates again in turn own the controlling interest in the Sand Hills Land and Cattle company, controlling with their several ranches a country fifty to sixty miles long, of which John H. Bachelor is general manager.

All the lands above enumerated are within the jurisdiction of the Valentine land office and aggregate 100,000 acres or more.

"Under these circumstances," so the protest continues, "it is not to be wondered at that Quigley, sr., and his friends would and have pulled every political wire possible to secure the appointment of Quigley, jr., as register of the Valentine land office. The business expediency of such a move is readily apparent. The company of which Quigley, sr., is principal stockholder and Quigley, jr., is stockholder and director, is directly and vitally interested in securing the purchase of isolated tracts and of homesteads after final proof has been made."
