Memorial Day 1915

IT is well to set apart at least one day in the year as a time for remembering; a day when we think of patriotism, and heroism, and sacrifice, and fearless, unquestioning devotion to duty; when we remember the brave men, North and South, who gave their lives to a cause they believed in.

The differences for which they battled have disappeared; our Memorial is no longer for the Cause; it celebrates the Courage. We may formally decorate their graves or not; the true memorial is in the hearts of the men and women and children who now share the heritage of heroism those men left to us.

You may not see what this has to do with the clothing business; there's no particular field for heroism in such work. We don't have to "lay down our lives" in selling clothes. But we have the same sort of spirit in it; a willingness to do all we can in the interests of our customers.

You will find Varsity Fifty-five in all the above models, which produces the most classic and up to date idea of young men. I feel it my duty to call the Young Men's attention to this fact—that there is no day more appropriate for him to look his best than on Memorial Day, for as the old veteran sits in his carriage in the parade and views the young manhood of the country he helped to deliver to the present and future generations, it gives him great pleasure to see the improvement that meets his view.
