MAKE DOLLARS FROM DUST

Very Little is Allowed to Remain Useless in This Day of Scientific Knowledge.

Save the useless waste! That is the new policy of progressive metal and coal mining managers in the United States; and it is based on the theory that what is useless today may become worth much money tomorrow. Coal screenings, for instance, must be carefully saved in piles, which will be handy for future use when inventors perfect a practical way of getting valuable heat out of them.

A Pennsylvania coal mining company is applying the idea to the extreme. From its anthracite coal mines vast quantities of coal have been shipped to market, but millions of tons of screenings have accumulated for many years. These culm piles were considered to be worthless, and coal ashes and other refuse were dumped on them. At the present time, however, the very small sizes of anthracite, down to a sixteenth of an inch in diameter, can all be sold profitably; so the company is digging out the culm piles and sifting the old waste for salable coal.

The managers know it will not be long before even the fine dust may do good work under boilers and sell at a fair figure; therefore the new culm piles resulting from the present sifting operations have been carefully planned to be handy and in good shape for selling whenever the inventors succeed in making it profitable.

Dust from the chimneys of a copper smelter is not now of much value, as a general rule, because there is no economical way of recovering the copper, zinc, silver and gold in the dust; but great quantities of this fine dust are collected in modern smelters, in an attempt to prevent the smelter fumes from bothering neighboring farmers. The dust is useless and gathers so fast that much money is expended in disposing of it.

A California smelter company has discovered just how much copper, gold and other metals are carried away in fine dust. There is enough to make every ton valuable if somebody could invent an easy way to extract the metals.—Saturday Evening Post.

WITNESS HAD NO STANDING

Defendant's Unqualified Condemnation of Man Prepared to Testify Against Him.

A correspondent of the New York Sun recalls the case of the "Rev. James Johnson" of New Jersey, who was indicted years ago as the chief of a band of chicken thieves that had plundered the farmers near New Brunswick. The testimony was something like this:

"Now, Mr. Johnson, these chickens, as evidence shows, were found in your possession. Did you steal them?"

"No, sah, I got 'em from one of mah fr'en's."

"Did you know where he got the chickens?"

"I didn't ask him, sah."

"Did you believe them to be lawfully his to give?"

"I didn't ask no questions, sah, I jus' tuck 'em."

"What did you do with them?"

"I sold 'em to the market man."

"What did you do with the money?"

"I kept some and divided the rest with mah fr'en's."

"Now, Mr. Johnson, be truthful. Did you, or did you not, believe these chickens to be honestly yours?"

"Sure I knowed they wasn't mine. I jes' tuck 'em."

"And you used them to benefit yourself, by passing them on to other people?"

"Yes, sah. They was very good chickens."

"Now, Mr. Johnson, here is a witness who says these chickens belong to him, and proves that they were stolen from his farm, at night, by men in your employ. What have you to say to that?"

Witness (pointing)—Is that the man over there?

"Yes."

"Dunno him at all. He don' belong to our conference! He's an onregenerate sinner, an' he ought to go to hell!"

Noble Dissatisfaction.

It is said that Tennyson was 17 years in writing "In Memoriam." He wrote the little song, "Come Into the Garden, Maud," 50 times before he published it. The wife of a distinguished painter said: "I never saw my husband satisfied with one of his productions." Self-dissatisfaction lies at the root of our noble achievements. What is true generally is particularly true as a condition of growth in the divine life. Even if we have been kept from outward and disgraceful sin, how we came short of the glory of God! Never yield to discouragement, never admit that failure is a necessary part of your life, never abandon your quest for the highest! Remember that Christ is just in front! By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my side and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pains. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could take to help me and they said there was nothing that they knew of. I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."

MAKE FINAL EFFORT IN BEHALF OF FRANK

Attorneys Ask Governor Slaton to Commute Sentence to Life Sentence.

Atlanta, Ga., June 14.—Attorneys for Leo M. Frank, today began before Governor Slaton their final effort to secure commutation of their client's death sentence to life imprisonment. Former Congressman W. M. Howard, appearing in Frank's behalf, announced he would not present new evidence or introduce new witnesses, but would rely on the record in the case and such evidence as had already been laid before the Georgia prison commission.

Governor Slaton announced he would hold a night session if necessary to conclude the hearing. Solicitor Dorsey, former Governor Joseph M. Brown and A. E. Stephens were among those to oppose Frank's appeal for clemency.

Mr. Howard presented a mass of documentary evidence.

"We expect to convince you by what is contained in the records," he said, "that Frank is innocent. I shall show by the record that Frank logically could not have had a part in Mary Phagan's murder. I shall also undertake to show that the negro, James Conley, first robbed, then assaulted and finally murdered the girl."

The allies are reported also to have occupied hills around Mardos, about 15 miles from the tip of the peninsula.

NAVAL RESERVE NOW RAPIDLY INCREASING

Washington, June 12.—Naval officials have observed with satisfaction the growth of the naval reserve under the law enacted at the last session of congress. While it is too early to give numbers, Secretary Daniels today said there had been an increase in reenlistments due to increased pay and the standing the re-enlisted man has in the reserve.

Mr. Daniels pointed out that the proportion of reenlistments to first enlistments for the first months since the act became effective were 61 to 100 for March, 81 to 100 for April and 143 to 100 for the first 10 days in May.

With a basis of $125 being paid, some operators will receive as high as $128 a ton, their ore being of high grade and demanding premium.

BRYAN PIQUED BY WANING PRESTIGE WASHINGTON SAYS

Resented Fact He Was Premier of Cabinet in Name Only and Used Note as Pretext, Claim.

APPEALS TO THE GERMANS

Urges Those in America to Be Loyal, Condoning Criticism of U. S. Policies in Foreign Affairs.

Washington, D. C., June 14.—Washington has about come around to the belief that the resignation of William J. Bryan from the cabinet was due not to the new note to Germany, not to the belief that this note was really a warlike ultimatum, but, to a feeling on Mr. Bryan's part, extending over a period of some months, that he was no longer the premier of the cabinet, except in name, and that his influence on the administration was waning.

Pique and dissatisfaction because he felt he was being more and more ignored, and because he believed other men about the president were dominating the policies of the government, rather than he; likewise the feeling that elements in the democratic party to which he is hostile have lately been getting into the saddle. These are among the basic reasons for the course taken by the recent secretary of state, ignored; Resented It.

In this connection, it is an interesting fact that in diplomatic circles the trend of inside comment on the resignation of Mr. Bryan is that it was primarily, but because Mr. Bryan considered he was being ignored.

For weeks and months intimates of Mr. Bryan have been whispering in his ear that men close to the administration were trying to strike taking pains to get on foot gossip, through the newspapers and otherwise, calculated to "get" him.

Mr. Bryan would not believe such stories at first, but gradually he is said to have become convinced. Newspaper stories tell how he was being ignored, how the president and Robert Lansing were conducting the foreign affairs of the government, how his chief part in the correspondence with foreign powers was to sign names, how the war was being conducted, and how the things and others akin to them more and more made Mr. Bryan restive and determined to quit.

That he was casting about for a plausible reason for making his exit, and likewise for a change of stage as dramatic departure, has come to be the accepted view in well informed quarters here.

Old Friends Criticize Him.

In high administration circles, it is well known that this substance is the opinion which is held. The affectionate protestation of Mr. Bryan that he is out to help the Wilson administration is not taken seriously. It is certain that practically every politician in Washington, whether democratic or republican, entertains no illusions as to the purposes of the lately resigned secretary of state to make himself useful in giving support to the president. Some of the bitterest men in the capitol with respect to the course taken by Mr. Bryan are old Bryan men who have come to entertain a feeling of regard and confidence for the Wilson administration. Many of these men have switched overnight and casting off their old friendship for the Nebraskan, are condemning him more strongly than those who have never been listed with his political followers.

Mr. Bryan last night issued an appeal addressed to the "German-Americans," urging them to aid in maintaining peace between the United States and the fatherland by exerting their influence with the German government to persuade it not to take steps that would lead in the direction of war.

JAPAN, CRISIS PAST, LIFTS EMBARGO ON ARMS FOR CZAR

Washington, D. C., June 14.—The sudden collapse of the apparently overwhelming Russian military march of the Russian armies into Prussia and across the Carpathians into Hungary and the severe reverses which they suffered since the turn of the tide at Przemyśl, were directly attributable to the recent crisis in the relations between China and Japan, according to information which has reached diplomatic circles here.

According to these accounts, in the beginning of the war Russia turned to Japan for a supply of war materials. Japan was in position to sell any quantity of ammunition and small arms and even cannon after the successful siege of Kiao Chow, when there was no longer need for maintaining the large army mobilized for that purpose. So all the Japanese reserve ammunition which could safely be spared was loaded on to freight and express cars and even passenger coaches on the Siberian railroad and dispatched overland to Russia. In addition, the Japanese arms factories and metal works received and began to execute rapidly great contracts for the supply of all sorts of military equipment for Russia, varying from field guns to uniforms and saddles.

Slapped on an Embargo.

When the negotiations between China and Japan regarding Manchuria and Mongolia and Kiao Chow suddenly assumed a critical phase, it is said that the Japanese government regarded it as prudent to retain in Japan these military supplies as a precautionary measure in case the Chinese should actually go to war and also because of the possibility that some of the powerful nations which guaranteed Chinese integrity, even Russia being kept in mind, might endeavor to intervene.

The effect of the conservation of Japanese resources was almost instantly manifested at the far distant Russian front, for it developed that the Russians had exhausted all their own reserve stock of ammunition and with their limited manufacturing facilities were dependent upon Japan for the greater part of the powder, shot and shell needed by the army.

In that emergency, appeals were made to Japan to loosen the embargo and pressure was brought to bear on that country through her allies, so that it is understood that now the current of supply has again been established, Japan having become satisfied that there was no longer imminent danger of trouble with China.

Owing to the enormous number of guns lost by Austria, the artillery were recently provided with guns discarded as obsolete.

RUSSIAN ATTACKS DRIVE FOES BACK ACROSS DNEISTER

Grand Duke Nicholas Hurling Heavy Forces Against Austro-Germans Between Stry and Przemyśl.

SEVERAL TOWNS RETAKEN

Claimed That Stanislaw Was Voluntarily Evacuated—Severe Fighting Continues in Baltic Region.

Petrograd, (via London), June 14.—Additional successes for the Russian army with the capture of many prisoners and guns are chronicled in an official statement issued last night at the war office. Probably the most important of these victories was on the Dniester, not far from Stry. Several villages also have been captured by the Russians on the left bank of the Dniester in the same region. In this fighting a section of the Prussian guard is said to have suffered severely. The report state that Stanislaw was evacuated voluntarily.

Text of Statement.

The communication follows: "On the night of the 10th and the following day the Germans, after a furious bombardment, renewed their former attacks from the west of Shavli on the front of Koujilice, Raklevo and Elnoraitz. Several times during the night they reached our barbed wire entanglements but each time they were thrown back leaving piles of killed and wounded. "In the region north of Shavli an enemy detachment composed principally of cavalry advanced slightly in the direction of Sazkinov, coming from the west.

"On the left bank of the Buhysa from Shavli and to Iztigava, renewed the offensive and on the morning of the 10th gained an important success, taking by a vigorous night attack over 500 prisoners with guns, mitrailleuses and other booty.

"The enemy continued his attacks in the region of Koselka.

Campaign on Dniester.

"On the right bank of the Dniester we continued on the 9th and 10th to press the enemy on the front between the rivers Tysmenica and Swica, capturing many prisoners, quick firers and booty. In this region, the enemy, to cover his retreat, dispatched a train of five armored automobiles supported by infantry, toward Stry and Mikolow, but the accurate fire of our guns compelled the train to beat a rapid retreat. In this action the head of our infantry column developed an energetic offensive and made prisoners in the Fifth company of the Seventy-ninth Austrian regiment.

"On the left bank of the Dniester, in front of Olchowice and Bukasowice, the fighting has been obstinate since the 10th, for the villages of Olchowice, Nowochine, Wozhobice and Kosara, terminating in the complete defeat of the enemy, who was thrown across the Dniester. The enemy suffered especially severe losses among a section of the Prussian guard in the village of Wyszchnue, where we captured 10 guns, 18 mitrailleuses and many prisoners.

"Attacks by the enemy, the 9th, on the bridge head near Halicz, were repulsed.

"The deployment of our troops on the line of the Dniester, at Halicz, rendered necessary a considerable modification of the front of troops occupying the Pruth line. In executing this maneuver our troops evacuated Stanislaw without fighting.

"Near Podloguie we repelled a German attack. Further south in the direction of Otylna we captured 1,100 prisoners during a counter attack, on the 9th.
