

A BROAD CHOICE OF WESTERN TOURS

Besides the low $50 California excursion rate basis, from June 1st there is a $60 excursion rate with limit of December 31st.

This will be a big season for Yellowstone Park. Join the throng! All kinds of circuit tours through the different gateways; inquire about the tour to Spokane, one way via Glacier Park, the other way via Yellowstone Park, also about the Mountain and Park tour, one way via Colorado and Salt Lake, the other via Gardiner or Cody.

Then there is Glacier Park with its incomparable scenery.

You have always near you, Colorado resorts and ranches, including beautiful Estes Park; no western resort has so increased in patronage the past few years as Estes Park.

Near also are the Black Hills, with their famous pine forests, Hot Springs, Sylvan Lake and scenic auto drives.

In the Big Horn Mountains are the summer ranches near Sheridan and Ranchester; in the Big Horn Basin is Theropolis Hot Springs, famous for its rheumatic cures. Look over the Burlington map; it will suggest some tours to you, then make inquiries and ask for descriptive publications of any locality you have in mind.

moisture than it has been for the past two or three years, according to soil moisture determinations made at the University Farm during the first week in June. Owing to the nature of the precipitation during the past few weeks, a larger per cent has entered the soil of the pastures, grain, and alfalfa fields, while in the corn fields there has been more run-off.

Previous to the last three weeks, the moisture content of the wheat and alfalfa fields was becoming rather low. During the last two months and a half the wheat had reduced the moisture content almost eight per cent in the upper six feet of soil, the most of this loss being confined to the upper three feet. A similar loss had taken place in alfalfa fields, although it had affected the entire six feet of soil. With the recent rains, the moisture content of all the fields has been increased, but early in June it was not as high as it was in the early spring.

In the oat and cornfields, where the crop is not far enough advanced to draw heavily upon the soil moisture, there has been very little change. The recent rains have supplied these fields with all the moisture they will hold through the entire upper six feet of soil.

Risky Scouting for Villa.

Tilden Citizen: George Savage, one of the Savage aviators of Ewing, passed through here Thursday night from Mexico. He had for some time past been engaged in aerial scouting for the Mexican general Villa and was paid a fancy salary. But two of his companions were captured and shot by some other general and George decided to fly over the border and make his way to safety on his Nebraska prairie home.

A Modern Fable.

Once upon a time there was a dog whose delight it was to bark at the moon. He knew nothing discreditable concerning the moon, but felt that he just naturally must show his superiority. So he yapped and yowled and called it names and made faces at it by the hour. All this caused the other animals great annoyance, and at last they held an indignation meeting.

"Something must be done!" was the general opinion. "Let us do it by taking this measly nuisance out to some secluded spot and abating him in a thorough and permanent manner!"

"Stop!" spoke the hog. "Let us not act hastily. I traveled widely in my younger days, appearing in the dime museums all over the land as the justly celebrated educated pig. I have looked this matter up. It is true that the varmint under discussion is an abomination. Still, he is one of the pests to whom all the rest of creation appear to feel compelled to give ear and deference—men call them reformers, or statesmen, as the case may be. As I understand it, there is no way of stopping his barking at the moon except by paying him to quit. And that, alas! would not give us permanent relief, for as soon as he had spent our money he would find something else to howl about, and we should have to buy him all over again."

Moral—From this we should learn that the average pest secures immunity from retribution because he has bluffed.—Judge.

Beef, Nebraska's Opportunity.

The growing scarcity of meat in the world has produced and probably will maintain a strong demand for beef cattle. Last year the cattle suitable for beef purposes on the farms of Nebraska were valued at $83,000,000. High priced beef is Nebraska's opportunity. Twelve years of careful experimentation at the Agricultural Experiment Station of Nebraska has conclusively proved that a combination of corn plant and alfalfa will produce beef cheaper than any other feed combination. The state of Nebraska is well adapted for the growing of both corn and alfalfa. Therefore, it may be said that with the possible exception of Kansas and the plains region, Nebraska presents the most favorable locality in the United States for the production of beef.
