

SEE WYOMING NOW! AT HARVEST TIME--

See for yourself the bumper crops of the homesteaders. Meet these people on their own places and hear of the opportunities that await you there. See 40 bushels per acre wheat; see the alfalfa, potatoes, sugar beets and practically every farm product now.

During the past year more than a thousand families have found homes in this state along our lines. There is room for you. You now have a chance of a 320 acre Mondell homestead of good agricultural and grass land, or an 80 acre government irrigated farm in the Big Horn Basin. Think this over; get in touch with me. This should be a big question with you. This is better than a rented or mortgaged farm and is a sure way to get ahead and own your home.

Ask about personally conducted excursions to this territory on FIRST and THIRD Tuesdays of each month.

I have ready for free distribution literature that tells all about what Wyoming offers you, if you are in search of a home. Write me.

SPEECH, U. S. SENATOR SHERMAN

Speech of Hon. Lawrence Y. Sherman, United States Senator From Illinois, Before the Home Market Club at Boston, Mass.

Imperative as the need is for a Republican victory in 1916 there is something greater and more enduring now and hereafter. It rises above party and politics and race and creed. It dwells in a region bounded only by our flag.

It calls for the allegiance of every son of the republic, native or alien born. It is found on that higher level where only patriots walk. It lives only in the deathless spirit of those who made us free. It calls from Concord and Lexington and from every name and event on lettered tablet and memorial stone near us tonight. It broods above the monument on Bunker Hill, where was written the genesis of free government in the New World. It spoke of free seas and neutral rights more than a hundred years ago. It made the sacrifice from the river banks of Shiloh to the red hillside of Gettysburg that the Union might be saved from dismemberment, its institutions respected, its laws supreme.

It is the spirit of Americanism regenerated, redeemed and rededicated to our republic by all who are gathered within its sheltering folds. Half the world is at war. None may ask that the ties of nativity be broken. We ask only that they be subordinated to the welfare of our country.

This country is what the people make it. If it fails it will be one failure. If it succeeds, it will be our success. We can succeed. We must not fail. It would proclaim to crowns and sceptered might that the people cannot rule. It would write in the world's history our dishonor and shame.

We are of many races. It was so from the beginning. The founders built for all and shall not all sustain with loyal will what they did? It must not be a republic of racial hate, of alien jealousies, of people entangled in the ancient feuds of Europe. The wars of the Old World must not be waged in our country.

The foreign and the native born must fuse in an unconquerable patriotism of America first and loyalty to our republic forever. Let us make it American, self-restrained, dignified, powerful, peaceable, but adequately prepared and capable of self-defense against either foreign or domestic enemies.

Our nation is sovereign and rules its territory, its people and its institutions. It is neutral. Amidst the perils of a world conflict it has held the course chartered by the law of nations. This republic cannot be the theater of alien plots and murderous strife.

The Republican party knows that the production of wealth precedes its distribution. Its adversaries do not recognize the simple truth that the American people cannot distribute either wages or wealth they do not have. With this maximum as a corner stone of its party edifice, it strives steadfastly that all may share in supplying each other's wants. It declines to see the wisdom of buying anything elsewhere if we can produce it at home.

In 1916 must be told again the story of American protection. It will not now fall on heedless ears. Experience has taught the time-honored expensive lesson of Democratic victory. It will not be forgotten or unlearned by listening to strange tales of tariff reformers or visionaries riding their theories into industrial ruin. The protective periods of the Republican party write the chapter of the country's prosperity. Industrial activity, living wages and prices, with steady employment and constant markets naturally follow a Republican administration.

President Wilson in his message to Congress, April 8, 1913, speaking for the Democratic party, said:

"The object of the tariff duties henceforth laid must be effective competition, the whetting of American wits by contest with the wits of the rest of the world."

The American people have now had two years of "effective competition." So effective has it been no one has escaped its devastation. Distrust was substituted for confidence. Enterprise halted. The paralysis of idleness fell upon the industry of the country. The rising tide of increased imports and a decrease of exports lost our home market and denied, until mitigated by the temporary calamity of war, an expansion of trade abroad.

Whetting our wits against the wits of the world because a contest of American wages against foreign wages and standards of living. It is an unequal contest. It pits at last the American home, its women and children, against the conditions and wage struggles of the Old World. Success can come under the Democratic plan of whetting wits only by the debasement of our labor and consequent impoverishment of all dependent on it. It is not the first tariff operation the Democratic party has tried on the productive industries of the country. The offense has been committed so often as to merit a long term sentence in 1916 under the habitual criminal section of economic laws.

It is the mission of the Republican party, among other high duties of government, to rescue the industries of the country from the misfortune caused by the mistakes of the Democracy. It will restore industry, revive business, and give work to the idle. The time lost to the wage earners cannot return. An idle day can never be redeemed.

On October 3, 1913, when the President signed the present tariff act, Mr. Underwood, then Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, stated:

"I am absolutely confident that this law will reduce the cost of living in the United States and it will provide ample revenue for the Government."

The high cost of living was 7 per cent higher in September, 1914, than in 1913.

The only relieving feature of the prophecies of abundant revenue is that few believed them when made and nobody believes them now. The observant ones long ago discovered a treasury deficit was a normal system of a Democratic administration and a logical result of its tariff legislation. It has been fortified by a European war tax, by an income tax and a corporation tax, and still the deficit grows. The Democracy has tried everything but economy in its efforts to keep even. This would be tried if it were not in their 1912 platform. Treasury reports advertise a constantly decreasing net balance. The months of July and August, 1915, present the Government with a deficit of $30,000,000 as the ample revenue of Speaker Clark and Chairman Underwood. Free trade prophecies again yield to mathematics. The fiscal delusion of Democratic statesmen require treatment by Republicans who are able to distinguish between a surplus and a deficit.

The great interior region between the Alleghenies and the Rocky Mountains is known as the Middle West. In territory and agriculture it is the great body of the North American Republic. It is washed by no tidewater and its southern borders blend where both corn and cotton grow. It contains the nation's granary. Without its generous yield we would depend on foreign markets to support our people. It numbers among its cities the second largest in the Western Hemisphere and one of the most cosmopolitan cities in the world. Manufacturers, mining, railways and agriculture, commerce and banking have sprung from its fertile resources since the Civil War.

When peace returns to a troubled world we face the nations who must turn their surplus to our markets. They must sell their excess. Their highly perfected organizations for war purposes will be diverted to peaceful pursuits. A vast production must result. The temporary protection given our markets by war will end. The free lists of the Democratic tariff will flood our markets in an unprecedented volume. The crippled and the maimed must live. Their handiwork will help swell the flood until our people must feel the strain. Wage scale adjustments alone cannot meet merchandise produced under such conditions.

Subject to the essential principle of protection, reciprocal advantage must be sought in return from other nations so that our surplus may reach foreign markets. A constructive policy, not an exclusive and destructive course is required.

The most abhorrent act of the present Democratic administration is the statement that an American who seeks to open a market or extend the area of proper American influence abroad must expect no help or protection from the mother country. They are told all who enter on a foreign soil for gain are guilty of greedy commercialism and must assume there the risks of life and prosperity. A more reprehensible, un-American declaration never came even from the Democratic party.

The Democratic party appeals for support and asks that President Wilson be re-elected because he has kept us out of war with Europe. In 1853 Franklin Pierce, a Democrat, was President. The Crimean War began then. For more than three years Great Britain, France, Turkey and Sardinia fought Russia. President Pierce maintained peace. In 1871 the Franco-Prussian War broke out. General Grant, a Republican, was President. He kept the peace. A few years ago the Russo-Japanese War presented similar questions of neutrality and the rights of neutrals. Theodore Roosevelt, a Republican, was President. He, too, kept us at peace.

Why should Pierce, Grant or Roosevelt have involved us in any of these past wars of the Old World? Why should President Wilson involve us in the present European war? Other Presidents did only their duty then. It is equally President Wilson's duty now. There is no more reason why the President should enter into war now than the Presidents named in other years.

The Government at Washington is not now representative. It is sectional. It represents neither voting power, wage earners, occupations, nor material resources. The thirteen States of Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Texas, Tennessee and Virginia are a group of solidly Democratic States. Connecticut, California, Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, Iowa, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Wisconsin are thirteen States that are certainly Republican, or may be regarded as fighting ground. The thirteen Democratic States in 1912 cast 1,818,000 votes. The thirteen Republican States cast 7,985,115 votes. The Democratic States have 869,583 wage earners. The Republican States have 4,778,340.

The legislative machinery of the United States is framed and operated by a combination of States having less than one-fourth of the total population and less than one-eighth of the total votes cast in 1912.

The Democratic party is itself in power by a minority of over a million votes. It, in turn, is ruled by a sectional minority, through which one-fourth of the population casting one-eighth of the votes is the ruler and law-giver for 100,000,000 people and 15,000,000 votes. The Republican party will substitute national government for sectional control.
