O'Neill Clothing Company.

Fowler-Powell. St. Cloud (Florida), Tribune: The wedding of Miss Renah Fowler, of St. Cloud, and Mr. Bert Powell, of O'Neill, Nebraska, at the Presbyterian church on Wednesday, December 8th, was a beautiful affair, and very largely attended. The church decorations were typically Floridan in character, all the windows, doors and choir rail draped in Spanish moss and wild grape vines, while tall pine trees stood as sentinals at each door, filling the whole building with their spicy odor. The back of the organ was draped with moss and on top were bouquets of roses and a large moss basket filled with pure white starry blossoms. The high handle tied with a large fluffy bow of pink tulle, every window ledge was banked with laurel and bouquets of roses, pink and white being the colors used. The recess back of the pulpit was filled with branches of bay trees and cabbage palm, all banked with Spanish moss and trailing vines of Southern simalax, while hanging from the arch was a moss basket trimmed with smilax and filled with roses. The entire decorative scheme was the work of Mrs. C. L. Gibbs, of Tampa, ably assisted by Mrs. Manuel Hollenbaugh, Mrs. James Rowland and Mr. Lynn Daugherty. After the seating of the invited guests, Mrs. J. K. Conn sang very sweetly "Because," by Guy de Hardelet, and promptly at 3 o'clock Mrs. Gibbs began the bridal music from Lohengin, and the ushers, Mr. Lynn Daugherty and Mr. Frank O. Gilbert, advanced down the west aisle of the church, followed by the two little flower girls, Ruth and Helen Cisne, in sheer white dresses and white ribbons, carrying baskets of pink and white roses, the handles tied with pink ribbons. Next came little Miss Eileen

Moon, carrying a moss basket filled with rose petals, which she scattered before the bride, who never looked sweeter or prettier than in her dainty wedding gown of white silk crepe de chine, with lace yoke and pearl trimmings. She carried a large arm bouquet of white roses and asparagus ferns, tied with white tulle, with shower of tulle and narrow satin ribbon. She was met at the altar by the groom and the impressive ring service was used by Rev. W. L. Hackett to unite them in marriage. The dream music was softly played during the ceremony and the march motif for the recessional. The bridal party and invited guests were driven to the Presbyterian parsonage, where the wedding reception was held, and the newly wedded pair received the congratulations of their friends, who wished them every happiness in the future life. The house was beautifully decorated by Mrs. I. O. Gilbert, an intimate friend of the bride. The reception room, where the wedding gifts were displayed, was exceptionally pretty, as was also the dining room, where the color scheme was white and green. A lovely basket of white roses was suspended from the ceiling over the table and broad, white satin ribbons ran from it to each corner, ending in a large bow. Here were served refreshments of wedding cake and cream to the guests present, who were entertained during the afternoon with music from a fine victrola furnished by the Seminole Pharmacy and played by Mr. Dougherty. The many lovely gifts of silver, cut glass, linen and china mutely testified to the love and esteem felt for the young girl who has endeared herself to a host of friends, both old and young, during her four years' sojourn
