The number of candidates that have accepted nominations on the people's independent ticket for the coming campaign, indicate that there will be a lively election in old Holt this fall.

The republican national convention will meet in Chicago in less than three weeks and nominate the next president of the United States. It seems to be quite generally conceded that the choice lies between Justice Hughes and Theodore Roosevelt. Well posted politicians are of the opinion that either would be successful at the general election.

Miss Genevieve McNicholas of Atkinson has accepted the People's Independent nomination for county superintendent, and the race for that office at the general election will be a three cornered fight. Miss Olivia Sturdevant is the republican-progressive candidate; Miss Minnie Miller, present county superintendent, the democratic, socialist and prohibition, and Miss Genevieve McNicholas the People's Independent candidate.

S. A. Hickman, who was a candidate for the People's Independent and democratic nominations for supervisor from the Sixth supervisor district, lost the democratic nomination to Tom Judge, but secured the nomination upon the People's Independent ticket. He has accepted the nomination and there will be a three cornered race for supervisor in that district this fall. F. C. Watson is the republican candidate; John Judge the democratic candidate and Samuel Hickman the people independent candidate.

Hy F. Nightengale of Atkinson, who was a candidate for the democratic nomination for clerk of the district court at the primary election and who was defeated by T. J. Coyne, received the nomination for that office on the People's Independent ticket and has accepted the nomination. The fight for this office will be a three cornered one, with D. M. Stuart the republican, progressive, prohibition and socialist candidate; T. J. Coyne, the democratic candidate and Hy F. Nightengale the People's Independent candidate.

A careful perusal of the returns of the late primary election discloses the fact that Chester H. Aldrich was not the weak candidate that many opposed to him tried to have the people believe prior to the election. Mr. Aldrich carried the state, outside of Douglas county, by 2,600 but the majority given Mr. Kennedy in that county give him the nomination. Mr. Aldrich is a power in Nebraska politics and no man in the political life of this state

JOHN BRENNAN Wants to See You

The farmers and the small towns are the backbone of the country and its the women in the small towns who are breaking the country's back, and their husband's pocket book.

Get your Sears Roebuck or Montgomery Ward's catalogue now and see what you get. You buy there now and you will get the best trimming you ever did get. Catalogue houses are up against it. They can't do a thing. Look at the prices they are asking. Why Joe Wise can beat them now. People claim the farmers send away for most of the stuff. The farmers do not; it's the women in town who have nothing to do but sit around the house reading advertisements. The farmers are all right. It the town people were as good to the towns as the country people are O'Neill would be as big as Lincoln. Credit stores make it so easy for town women to stay at home and order the goods over the telephone that they don't come down town to see the prices the cash store sells goods for and when they see a picture in a book they think if they had that they would look like the picture and so they send away for it. When it comes they have to burn it because they wouldn't dare wear the thing they got and they have to call up the credit store and ask for another month's time on their bill.

From the business I am getting from people who should be my friends they seem to want me to move. Am I going to do it? Watch me. Some people would like to push a man down deep in the dirt like a worm but you can't push me down. If you think you can, try it.

Now in regard to flour I want to say any woman who can't make good bread out of my cheapest flour ought to get out of the kitchen and let some one else bake who can bake. I don't care if you pay $2.00 per bag for flour you can't beat the flour I sell. And my Coffee is here in the store and I will put it up against any man's coffee at double the price and you can't beat it. I am here selling good stuff and I am saving you money and I am going to stay right here doing it 'till I get ready to quit. The sooner you wake up to the fact and get in line with the cash buyers who are already trading here the sooner you will find out how good a grade of stuff a man can sell at a cheap price.

I have a lot of good stuff here you need and you ought to buy it before I go busted.

I have five or six hundred dollars worth of stuff that you generally pay from 35 to 50c which I am selling, while it lasts, for 19c.

You will never know how many dollars I saved you people this year on Coffee, Sugar, Tea, Flour, Potatoes, Overalls, Shirts, Dry Goods, Shoes, Etc. But believe me there was a lot of profit cut off some of the big store's bank accounts this year.

Cash Done It

today has more earnest and loyal friends than he. He is still practically a young man and will be a powerful factor in the affairs of the party in this state for many years to come.

Holt and Boyd counties are at last to receive some benefit from the state aid bridge law, that was passed during the legislative session of 1911, through the efforts of the members of the house and senate from these counties, the bill being introduced by the writer. This law went into effect in July, 1911, and Holt and Boyd counties were the second counties to file application for state aid in the construction of bridges. They asked for state aid in the construction of a bridge across the Niobrara river at Parshall's crossing. The application was approved by the state and plans ordered drawn for the bridge. Then the personnel of the county board changed and the new members did not like the location and the matter was allowed to die. The question was again revived last fall and both boards decided upon a location for the bridge; the state board approved the application, bids were advertised for and the contract for the construction of the same was let a few weeks ago. Then about six weeks ago they applied for state aid to construct a span of the Rebird bridge that was taken out by high water some months ago. Last Monday the state board of irrigation, in session at Lincoln, approved the application and they will pay half the cost of the construction of this new span across the river, which will cost about $12,000, half of this to be paid by the state. The law also provides that the state will have to pay half the cost of the repairs upon state aid bridges, when the cost of the repairs exceed $100. Since the first bridge was built across the Niobrara river the up-keep and repairs of them has been one of the greatest burdens the county has had to carry and thousands of dollars have been spent in building bridges and in keeping them in repair after they were built. Now that we are to have two state aid bridges in the county, both of which will be built under the supervision of the state engineer, we will have two bridges at least that will cease to be a rat hole to pour the hard earned dollars of the taxpayers into. The board are to be commended for securing the appropriation for the Red Bird bridge. Their application was the last that will be allowed until after the next session of the legislature, as the state aid bridge fund is exhausted. Applications on file for state aid amount to $187,000.
