When Work Is Hard

That kidney troubles are so common is due to the strain put upon the kidneys in so many occupations, such as; Jarring and joiting on railroads, etc. Cramp and strain as in barbering, moulding, heavy lifting, etc. Exposure to changes of temperature in iron furnaces, refrigerators, etc. Dampness as in tanneries, quarries, mines, etc.

Inhaling poisonous fumes in painting, printing and chemical shops.

Doan's Kidney Pills are fine for strengthening weak kidneys.

An Iowa Case

O. W. Emery, retired farmer, West Decorah, Iowa, says:
"My back got so bad I couldn't get much rest and often had to be propped up with pillows. The pain was terrible and it seemed as if my kidneys were being torn loose. The kidney secretions were painful in passage and I lost weight until I was but a shadow of my former s e I f. Doan's Kidney Pills restored me to good health and I haven't had any kidney trouble since."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 50c a Box DOAN'S RIDNEY FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y

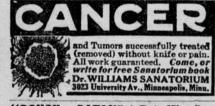

Mr. Wite-"Do you know what's good for rats?" Miss Slowe -"Why, poison, of course." Wire-"No that would kill them-cheese."

Do you know what's good for a cough, throat and lung troubles, that will allay inflammation and insure a good night's sleep with free and easy expectoration in the morning? The answer always the same year after year. Is

Boschee's German Syrup

Soothing and healing to bronchial and throat Irritation. 25c. and 75c. sizes all Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Your grandfather used it 51 years ago. Try it yourself and see how it stops a hacking cough like magic.

"ROUGH on RATS" Ends Rats, Mice, Bugs LANDS INDIAN IN BROADWAY

Half Starved Tramp Shod in Moccasins is Elevated to the "Movies."

A man was strolling, or rather, cringing up Broadway the other afternoon, writes a New York correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch. He had high cheek bones, black hair and wore moccasins. He had no overcoat and the collar of his thin sack coat was turned up about his neck and held with a hand blue with cold. Three men standing at the curb saw the man and George," said one, "there's a bit of luck. Go after him, Tony, and tell him to come over to the studio. He's down on his luck and we need an Indian." Tony pursued the shivering figure and told him about the chance at the studio. "Sure, I'll come," said the alleged redskin. "I look line one, but my name is Schwartz. A fellow gave me these moccasins, and I'd be willing to wear a chief's hat and a red blanket if it would keep me warm." And so another Indian went straight to the "movies."

Consequences.

"I notice that young man is settling down."

"Exactly, and the old man is set

The Conebo, Shippo, Cocoamo and Yahua tribes of Amazon Indians are still wearing clothes of grass.

> Before Drinking Coffee, You Should Consider Whether Or Not It Is Harmful

"There's a Reason" for

POSTUM

THE BEST MAN

Grace Livingston Hill Lutz

Author of "Marcia Schuyler," "Dawn of the Morning," "Lo, Michael!" etc.

Philadelphia & London.

J. B. Lippincott Company.

CHAPTER XVII .- (Continued.)

"Why, I don't know. Couldn't we get "Why, I don't know. Couldn't we get along without announcements? You can explain to your intimate friends, and the others won't ever remember the name after a few months—we'll not be likely to meet many of them right away. I'll write to my chief and tell him informally leaving out the date entirely. He won't miss it. If we have announcements at all we needn't send him one. He wouldn't be likely ever to see one any other way, or to notice the date. I think we can manage that the date. I think we can manage that matter. We'll talk it over with your—" he hesitated and then smiling tenderly added, "we'll talk it over with mother. How good it sounds to say that. I never knew my mother you know."

Celie nestled her hands in his and murmured, "Oh, I am so happy—so happy! But I don't understand how you got a wedding trip without telling your chief about our marriage."

"Easy as anything. He asked me if I I would mind running across the water to attend to a matter for the service and tend to a matter for the service and said I might have extra time while there said I might have extra time while there for a vacation. He never suspects that vacation is to be used as a wedding trip. I'll write him, or 'phone him the night we leave New York. I may have to stay in the city two or three days to get this Holman matter settled, and then we can be off. In the meantime you can spend the time reconciling your mother to her new son. Do you think we'll have a very hard time explaining matters to her?"

"Not a bit," said Celia, gaily. "She never did like George. It was the only thing we ever disagreed about, my marrying him. She suspected all the time I thing we ever disagreed about, my marrying him. She suspected all the time I wasn't happy and couldn't understand why I insisted on marrying him when I hadn't seen him for 10 years. She begged me to wait until he had been back in the country for a year or two, but he would not hear to such a thing and threatened to carry out his worst at once."

at once."

Gordon's heart suddenly contracted with righteous wrath over the coward-liness of the man who sought to gain his own ends by intimidating a woman,—and this woman, so dear, so beautiful, so lovely in her nature. It seemed the man's heart must indeed be black to have done what he did. He mentally resolved to search him out and bring him to justice as soon as he reached New York. It puzzled him to understand how easily he seemed to have abandoned his purpose. Perhaps after all he was more of a coward than they thought, and had not dared to remain in the country when he found that Celia had braved his wrath and married another man. He would find out about him and set the girl's heart at rest just as soon as possible, that any embarrassment at some future time might be avoided. Gordon stooped and kissed his wife again, a caress that seemed to promise all reparation for the past.

But it suddenly occurred to the two that trains did not writ for lever's lever. Gordon's heart suddenly contracted kissed his wife again, a Carves seemed to promise all reparation for the past.

But it suddenly occurred to the two that trains did not wait for lovers' long loitering, and with one accord they went to work. Celia of course had very little preparation to make. Her trunk was probably is Chicago and would need to be wired for. Gordon attended to that the first thing, looking up the number of the check and ordering it by a chart of lunch while he got together some ling from the telephone he rang for the man and asked Celia to give the order for lunch while he got together some things that he must take with him. A stay of several weeks would necessitate a little more baggage than he had lake no New York.

He went into the bedroom and began the miling out things the pack, but when ling out things the pack, but when the ling out things the pack of the little more baggage than he had ling out things to pack, but when the ling out things to pack, but when the ling out things the pack of the little more baggage than he had ling out things to pack, but when the ling out things to pack, but when the ling out things the pack of the little more baggage than he had ling out things the pack of the little more baggage than he had ling out things the pack of the little more baggage than he had ling out things the pack of the little more baggage than he had ling out things the pack of the little more baggage than he had ling out things the pack of the little more baggage than ling out things the pack of the little more bearing in love with any girl before—" he turned white with horror at what her beloved and cherished child had been enduring; and the prother got up and the prother got up and the prother of the little more bearing the whole story of the eventful wed around in graduate of Harvard and I've traveled a little. There was some mone pleft from my father's estate, not jewel case in his hand which he had just taken from the little safe in his room. His face wore a wonderful tender light as if he had just discovered something precious.

"Dear," he said, "I wonder if you will

"Dear," he said, "I wonder if you will care for these. They were mother's. Perhaps this ring will do until I can buy you a new one. See if it will fit you. It was my mother's."

He held out a ring containing a diamond of singular purity and brilliance in quaint old fashioned setting.

Celia put out her hand with its wedding ring, the ring that he had put upon her finger at the altar, and he slipped the other jeweled one above it. I fitted perfectly.

"It is a beauty," breathed Celia, hold-ing out her hand to admire it, "and I would far rather have it than a new one. Your dear little mother!" "There's not much else here but a

"There's not much else here but a little string of pearls and a pin or two. I have always kept them near me. Somehow they seemed like a link between me and mother. I was keeping them for—" he hesitated and then giving her a rare smile he finished:
"I was keeping them for you."

"I was keeping them for you."
Her answering look was eloquent, and needed no words which was well, for Henry appeared at that moment to serve lunckeon and remind his master that his train left in a little over two hours. There was no further time for sentiment.

And yet, these two, it seemed, could not be practical that day. They idled over their luncheon and dawdled over their packing, stopping to look at this and that picture or bit of bric-a-brac that Gordon had picked up in some of his travels; and Henry finally had to take thimpres in his own hands pack

tween mether and daughter, husband and wife, brother and sister.

As soon as the meal was concluded the mother led them to her private sitting room; and, closing the door, she stood facing them all as half breathless with the excitement of the moment

"My three dear children!" she mur-mured. Gordon's eyes lit with joy and his heart thrilled with the wonder of it all. Then the mother stepped up to it all. Then the mother stepped up to him and, placing her hand on his arm, led him over to the couch and made him sit beside her, while the brother and sister sat down together close by. "Now, Cyril, my new son," said she, deliberately, her eyes resting approvingly upon his face, "you may tell your story. I see my girl has lost both head and heart to you and I doubt if she story. I see my girl has lost both head and heart to you and I doubt if she could tell it connectedly."

And while Celia and Jeff were laughing at this, Gordon set about his task of winning a mother, and incidentally an eager eyed young brother who was more than half committed to his cause already.

Celia watched proudly as her handsome husband took out his credentials and began his explanation. "First, I must tell you who I am, and these papers will do it better than I could. Will you look at them, please?"

He handed her a few letters and papers.
"These papers on the top show the rank and position that my father and grandfather held with the government grandfather heid with the government and in the army. This is a letter from the president to my father congratulating him on his approaching marriage with my mother. That paper contains my mother's family tree, and the letters with it will give you an idea of the honor in which my mother's family was held in Washington and in Virginia her old home. I know these matginia, her old home. I know these mat-ters are not of much moment, and say ters are not of much moment, and say nothing whatever about what I am myself, but they are things you would have been likely to know about my family if you had known me all my life; and at least they will tell you that my family was respectable."

Mrs. Hathaway was examining the papers, and suddenly looked up, exclaiming: "My dear! My father knew your grandfather. I think I saw him once when he came to our home in New York. It was years ago and I was a

York. It was years ago and I was a young girl, but I remember he was a fine looking man with keen, dark eyes, and a heavy head of iron gray hair."

She looked at Gordon keenly.
"I wonder if your eyes are not like his. It was long ago, of course."
"They used to say I looked like him I do not remember him. He died when I was yery young." was very young."
The mother looked up with a pleas

The mother looked up with a pleasant smile.

"Now tell me about yourself," she said and laid a gentle hand on his.

Gordon looked down, an embarrassed flush spreading over his face.

"There's nothing great to tell," he said. "I've always tried to live a straight, true life, and I've never been in love with any sirl before."

mother.
"I know," said Gordon, "but it is a detail you have a right to be told. I understand that you care far more what I am than how much money I can make, and I promise you I am going to try to be all that you would want your daughter's husband to be. Perhaps the than words could have done, and after a moment she spoke again.

"But I do not understand how you could have known one another and I never have heard of you. Celia is not good at keeping things from her mother, though the last three months she has had a sadness that I could not fathom, and was forced to lay to her natural dread of leaving home. She seemed so insistent upon having this marriage just as George planned it—and I was so afraid she would regret not waiting. How could you have known one another all this time and she never talked to me about it, and why did George Havne have any part why did George Hayne have any part whatever in it if you two loved one another? Just how long have you known each other, anyway? Did it be-gin when you visited in Washington last spring, Celia?"

With dancing eyes Cella shook her head.
"No, mamma. If I had met him then I'm sure George Hayne would never have had anything to do with the mat-their packing, stopping to look at this and that picture or bit of bric-a-brac that Gordon had picked up in some of his travels; and Henry finally had to take thmings in his own hands, pack them off and send their bagagae after them. Henry was a capable man and rejoiced to see the devotion of his master and his new mistress, but he had a practical head and knew where his part came in.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The journey back to New York seemed all too brief for the two whose lives had just been blended so unexpectedly, and every mile was filled with a new and sweet discovery of delight in one another; and then, when they reached the city they rushed in on Mrs. Hathaway and the eager young Jeff like two children who had so much to tell they did not know where to begin.

Mrs. Hathaway settled the matter by insisting on their going to dinner immediately and leaving all explanations under a terror and the matter is was a spirit well and the matter is the sundined and the eager young Jeff like two children who had so much to tell they did not know where to begin.

Mrs. Hathaway was where the explanations underly and eaving all explanations and afterward; and, with the servants proceeding the property of the

But his mother gently reproved him But his mother gently reproved him "Hush, my son, let us hear the story."
Celia sat quietly, watching her hus band with pride, two bright spots o color on her cheeks, and her hand clasping each other tightly. She wa hearing many details now that wernew to her. Once more, when Gordon mentioned the dinner at Holman's Jefinterrunted with:

interrupted with:

"Holman! Holman! Not J. P.? Why of course—we know him! Cella waone of his daughter's bridesmaids las spring! The old lynx! I alway, thought he was crooked! People him a lot of things about him—"

"Jeff, dear, let us hear the story,' again insisted his mother, and the story continued.

Gordon had been looking down as he talked. He dreaded to see their faces as the truth should dawn upon them but when he had told all he lifted honest eyes to the white faced mother and pleaded with her: "Indeed, indeed, I hope you will believe me, that not until they laid your daughter's hand in mine did I know that I was supposed to be the bridegroom. I thought all the time her brother was the bridegroom. If I had not been so distraught, and trying so hard to think how to escape, I suppose I would have noticed that I was standing next to her, and that everything was peculiar about the whole matter but I didn't. And then when I suddenly knew that she and I were being married, what should I have done? Do you think I ought to have stopped the ceremony then and there and made a scene before all those people? What was the right thing to do? Suppose my commission had been entirely out of the question, and I had had no duty toward the government to keep entoward the government to keep en-tirely quiet about myself, do you think I ought to have made a scene? Would you have wanted me to for your daugh-ter's sake? Tell me, please," he in-ter's sake? Tell me, please," he insisted, gently.

And while she hesitated he added:
"I did some pretty hard thinking during that first quarter of a second that I realized what was happening, and I tell you honestly I didn't know what was the right thing to do. It seemed awful for her sake to make a scape, and to tell you the truth I seemed awful for her sake to make a scene, and, to tell you the truth, I worshiped her from the moment my eyes rested upon her. There was something sad and appealing as she looked at me that seemed to pledge my very life to save her from trouble. Tell me, do you think I ought to have stopped the ceremony then at the first moment of my realization that I was being married?"

The mother's face had softened as

The mother's face had softened as she watched him and listened to his tender words about Celia, and now she answered gently:

"I am not sure—perhaps not! It "I am not sure—perhaps not! It was a very grave question to face. I don't know that I can blame you for doing nothing. It would have been terrible for her and us and everybody and have made it all so public. Oh, I think you did right not to do anything publicly—perhaps—and yet—it is terrible to me to think you have been forced to marry my daughter in that way."

"Please don't say forced, mother," said Gordon laying both hands earnestly upon hers and looking into her eyes, "I tell you one thing that held me back from doing anything was that I so earnestly desired that what I was passing through might be real and lasting. I have never seen one like her before.

ing through might be real and lasting. I have never seen one like her before, I know that if the mistake had been righted and she had passed out of my life I should never have felt the same again. I am glad, glad with all my heart that she is mine, and—mother!—I think she is glad, too!"

The mother turned toward her daughter, and Celia with starry eyes came and knelt before them, and laid her hands in the hands of her husband, saying with ringing voice:

saying with ringing voice:
"Yes, dear little mother, I am gladder than I ever was before in my life."
And kneeling thus, with her husband's arm about her, her face against or the little newsboy with fruit and toys and many promises; and they brought home a happy white dog from his boarding place, whom Jeff adopted as his own. Gordon had a trying hour or two at court with his one time host, the scoundrel who had stolen the cipher message; and the thick set man glared at him from a cell window as he passed along the corridor of the prison whith-best thing I can say for myself is that I love her better than my life, and I mean to make her happiness the dearest thing in life to me."

The mother's look of deep understanding answered him more eloquently than words could have done and after. Gordon in his search for the lost bridegroom, whom for many reasons he desired to find as soon as possible, had asked the help of one of the men at work on the Holman case, in search-ing for a certain George Hayne who needed very much to be brought to justice.

"Oh, you won't have to search for him," declared the man with a smile. "He's safely landed in prison three days ago. He was caught as neatly as rolling off a log by the son of the man whose name he forged several years ago. It was trust money of a big corporation and the man died in his place in a prison cell, but the son means to a prison cell, but the son means to see the real culprit punished."

And so Gordon, in the capacity of Celia's lawyer, went to the prison to talk with George Hayne, and that miserable man found no excuse for his sins when the searching talk was over. Gordon did not let the man know who he was, and merely made it understood that Celia was married, and that if he attempted to make her any further trouble the whole thing would be ex-posed and he would have to answer to a grave charge of blackmail.

The days passed rapidly, and at last the New York matter for which Gor-

AMERICAN GIRL MAKES HER BOW III FRENCH DRAMA

Miss Katherine Rush, the daughter of Captain Rush, U. S. N., has invaded the difficult field of the French drama by becoming a mem-ber of the Theater Francaise company, at the Garrick theater, New York. Miss Rush has already created several small parts and she is now appearing in support of Miss Yvonne Garrick in "Petachon." She was educated in France, Italy and Germany and speaks all three languages fluently. She spent five years in Paris, part of which time she devoted to the study of dramatic art. to the study of dramatic art.

City Wealth a Menace.

From the Chicago Tribune. Ten families own a very large part of Chicago real estate. Five families control—and are supported by enormous and holdings. One estate owns 4 per cent of all Chicago land.

Each year sees additions to the hold-lngs of those estates. During 1916 more than $1,000,000 worth of land, the best land for commercial purposes, was add-ad to them. Between these 10 families most loop property is monopolized.

The 10 families themselves are scattered all over the world. Few members of them personally count for anything in Chicago. They are able, because Chicago is a profitable and prosperous enterprise, to build palaces abroad. They can buy peerages if they like. They can live in California or Florida, or England or Italy. They can forget all about Chi-

Large fortunes in the hands of men happened in the hands of help who live in Chicago and work in Chicago are not especially dangerous. The interests of such men run parallel with the interests of the city. Their personal happiness depends somewhat on their relations with less pecunious Chicago.

But the beneficiaries of "estates" do But the beneficiaries of "estates" do not have to come into contact with Chicago opinion at all. They are out of reach. So long as the checks continue to arrive and the coupons are paid at the banks, they are not aware of Chicago one way or another. Their estates are enormous impersonal things. They are operated in the interests of Chicago only as the interests of Chicago are profitable to them. And Chicago is in their hands.

Every other city in the United States

Every other city in the United States is faced with the same problem. New York tenements build palaces for cows on the English Astor estate, contribute to English war funds, buy peerages. New York society supports a pillar of English society and gets snubbed in return. There is a way out for Chicago and for New York. We must impose an about one of the proposed that the second of the proposed in nheritance tax so graduated that no family or group of families can ever ccumulate so much property as to detroy the fact of our republic.

Some Hints About the Fashions. Grace Margaret Gould, the fashion

Grace Margaret Gould, the fashion editor of the Woman's Home Companion, says in the January issue:

"Afternoon tea veils are the lovellest ever! They are black mesh, some embroidered in gold threads and others in gray worstel. The embroidered portion is draped over the hat, really forming a fascinating hat trimming.

"In the latest gaiters the buckle is no longer at the side. The strap fastens under the shoe. Box cloth is the material; preferable colors gray and light tan. The gaiters are leather bound and have what is known as the waving top—higher in the back than waving top-higher in the back than in the front. in the front.

"Many skirt hems are edged with an inch wide fringe. On street dresses, gray, black and brown fringes are most used; on evening dresses, gold

"Not a ribbon trims the latest to ar-"Not a ribbon trims the latest to arrive French underwear. Nightgowns and envelope chemises of the sheerest handkerchief linen are trimmed with scallops or squares of colored linen in pink, yellow and French blue. Narrow strips of this colored linen take the place of lingerie ribbons.

"The Paisley shawl has come to life again, but not in its old demure form. Though you can fairly smell the camphor, yet the new Paisley dress accessories are the latest things out. They come in sets. They are com-

They come in sets. They are combined with fur—sealskin the favorite. There is the close fitting hat which resembles the stove pipe; the pointed cape with the chin-chin collar, and the quaint hand bag."

TESTS FOR GOOD BREAD.

Salt is used for flavor. Americans temand salt in all starchy foods. Too buch salt retards the growth of yeast thuch salt retards the growth of yeast The proportions are as important as the ingredients. Too much flour or too little water gives a coarse, crumbly dark and tasteless bread. Too little flour or too much water gives a seggy dark, flat bread. Too much yeast gives a "yeasty" taste," while too little yeast will not raise the bread sufficiently. Too much fat or sugar have about the same effect as too much flour. Asy one in excess gives a dense dough in which the yeast finds difficulty is growing. We say "the bread doesn" the bread doesn't rise well."

A plank road in norfable parts is being laid in the California deserts for economy and convenience.

Pimples, boils, carbincles, dry up and disappear with Dector Pierce's Gokien Medical Discovery. In tablets or hund.—Adv.

A plank road in norfable parts is being laid in the California deserts for economy and convenience.

Pimples, boils, carbincles, dry up and disappear with Dector Pierce's Gokien Medical Discovery. In tablets or hund.—Adv.

A scene while parts is being laid in the California deserts for economy and convenience.

Pimples, boils, carbincles, dry up and disappear with Dector Pierce's Gokien Medical Discovery. In tablets or hund.—Adv.

A scene while parts is being laid in the California deserts for economy and convenience.

OPPORTUNITIES THAT ARE MISSED

Why Wait? Why Not Go to Western Canada Now?

The writer has frequently heard the remark that "after the war we will go to Western Canada." It does not occur to those making the remark that if they wish to secure lands in Western Canada, whether by homestead on purchase, the best time to go is now After the war the welcome will be fust as hearty as ever, but the chances are that land values will increase and today homesteads are plentiful and land is reasonable in price. There is no question about what the land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will do, what it will give under proper cultivation.

Farmers in Western Canada are paying for their land holdings with the proceeds of last year's crop. That this is no idle statement may be gleaned from the three following items, which are picked out at random;

"In the spring of 1916 a half-section of land was offered for sale at $17.00 per acre. There were 105 acres of summer-fallow, which, because the owner could not at the time find a buyer, were seeded to wheat. A yield of 40 bushels per acre, 4,200 bushels all told, grading No. 1, was obtained. The price the day the grain was sold (which was very early in the season, before grain prices advanced to round about $2.00) was $1.60, which brought the handsome total of $6,720.00. Three hundred and twenty acres at $17.00 equals $5,440.00, so that a buyer, by placing less than half of the whole under crop, would have made a profit of $1,280.00."-Robson Messenger, Robson, Sask.

"That the 'Indiana Boys' farm this year raised sufficient crop to pay for the land, all the machinery and all overhead expenses as well as make a handsome profit, is the information given by N. B. Davis, the manager. The wheat yield was over 22,000 bushels. Of twelve cars already soid, nine graded No. 1, and Mr. Bavis has sold over 2,000 bushels locally for seed at $2.00. Naturally, when he gets to Indiana he will be a big booster for Alberta."-Bassano Mafi, Bassano, Alta. "Oscar Castalor, who bought and at Blusson after the crop had been put in last spring, for $3,800.00, has threshed 3,900 bushels of wheat, which is worth at present prices about $7,500.00. He refused an offer of $5,000.00 for the land after the crop had been taken off."—Bethbridge Herald, Lethbridge, Alta.

Reports from the wheat fields are highly encouraging and show that the wheat crop of many farmers in Western Canada was highly satisfactory.

Coblenz, Sask .- W. A. Rose has threshed an average of 33 bushels per acre and $3 bushels of oats.

one cars of grain have already been shipped.

Stoop Creek, Sask,—James McRae has threshed 5,400 bushels of grain, 2,000 bushels of which were wheat, grading No. 1 Northern. One field averaged 44 bushels per acre, and a large field of oats averaged $3 bushels.

If information as to the best location is required, it will be gladly furnished by any Canadian Government Agent, whose advertisement appears elsewhere.--Advertisement.

Unbreakable Windows.

Repeated coats of raw or boiled lin-sed cil aplied to a newly meshed wire fabric will give a good substitute for window glass. The wire may be used for many purposes, and is especially good where glass might easily be broken. The fabric may be dipped in the oil instead of applying it with a

CUTICURA COMPLEXIONS

Are Usually Remarkably Soft and Clear-Trial Free.

Make Cuticura Soap your every-day toilet Soap, and assist it now and then as needed by touches of Cuticura Ointment to soften, soothe and heal. Nothing better to make the complexion clear, scalp free from dandruff and hands soft and white.

Free sample each by mail with Book. Address postcard, Cuticura, Dept. L. Boston. Sold everywhere .- Adv.

Justification.

"Jinks drinks like a fish." "Why, I thought he was strictly tensperate."

"So he is, but then fishes, you know never drink anything but water

Garfield Tea was your Grandmother's Remedy for every stomach and intestinal ill. This good old-fashfoned herb home remedy for constipation, stomach ills and other derangements of the system so prevalent these days is in even greater favor as a family medicina than in your grandmother's day .- Adv.