Hunting Season Opens Fifteenth.

Local nimrods must wait until September 15th before beginning the annual bombardment of the festive prairie chicken, and until the day following to turn their attention to ducks and geese. The fish and game laws were materially amended at the last session of the legislature. Under the new law it is unlawful to kill quail, doves, plover, or any insectivorous bird for which an open hunting season is not provided, at any time.

Following are the open seasons for hunting and fishing as provided in the new law:

Prairie chicken, sage chicken and grouse September 15 to November 15.

Wild ducks, geese, brandts, cranes and game waterfowl, September 16 to December 31.

Jack-snipe, wilson-snipe, keller and yellow legs, September 16 to December 31.

Trout, not less than eight inches in length, April 1 to October 1.

Bass, not less than eight inches in length, April 1 to November 15.

All other protected fish, April 1 to November 15.

The daily bag limits are: Ten wild geese or brant, ten prairie chicken or grouse, twenty-five game birds of any other variety, ten squirrels, twenty-five fish. It is unlawful for any person at any time to have in his possession more than ten wild geese or brant, ten prairie chicken or grouse, fifty other game birds, twenty squirrel or fifty fish. Possession of any number five days after season closes is forbidden.

The law provides that carp, suckers (fish), gars and buffalo fish may be taken with a spear at any time during the open season for fishing.

The killing of quail, swan, white crane, Chinese pheasants or any other game bird of any variety of species imported into this state for purpose of propagation is absolutely prohibited at any time.

Putting Fodder on the Table.

"Save your fodder by using the silo and feeding stock—that is really putting the fodder on the table." This is the pointed suggestion of specialists of the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Nebraska, who are urging the use of every means of increasing the amount of food available for humans.

How to handle silage properly is described in detail in Extension Bulletin No. 45, "Handling Silage," just issued by the Extension Service. Two other Extension bulletins recently issued, No. 39, "Wooden Silos Used in Nebraska," and No. 40, "Pit, Semi-pit, and Bank Silos," will help the man who wishes to build. Experiment Station Circular No. 1, "Measuring Silage and the Capacity of Silos," will enable the builder to determine the capacity and proportions most suitable. Any of these bulletins will be sent free upon application to the College of Agriculture, University Farm, Lincoln.

Consider the County Fair.

"Consider the county fair. It teaches the older folks the miracles that care and intelligence will work; it inspires pride in the farming business; and, above all, it tends to keep the boys on the farm, because it shows them the results of the better grade of farming."

This is the advice of one of the best stock judges in the country, a member of the animal husbandry force of the university. "My father did not start keeping fine cattle and exhibiting them at fairs until after most of my brothers grew up," said he. "As a result, of the eight children in the family, I am the only one who is a farmer. I am sure I stuck to farming because good stock taught me to like the country."

According to this judge, it is not necessary to exhibit animals loaded heavily with fat. "The judge overlooks fat these days," said he. "Good breeding conditions is all he asks. Everybody should boost the county fair."

Join the National Guard Reserve.

The Adjutant General of Nebraska has authorized the undersigned to assist in the organization of a company of National Guard Reserves. All men in good physical condition, between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years, and not already called into the National army, are eligible for enlistment. Members will be required to take the dual oath which makes them subject to the call of the president, if necessity arises. The removal of our National Guard from the State, which is now in progress, will leave the State without any military protection and it is the purpose of the National Guard Reserve to remedy this condition and to be ready to respond to the needs of the State or national government in case of emergency. This will be a real military organization on the same status as the National Guard, although for the present the duties will be light, consisting for the most part of weekly drills. Members will not be required to relinquish their ordinary occupations. This is a splendid opportunity for eligible men to demonstrate their patriotism and show their colors. Do something for your State and your county in the great war. Applications for membership may be signed at the office of the undersigned or at the office of James A. Brown.
