

THE O'NEIL FRONTIER

O'NEIL, NEBRASKA.

A spectrum of Hubble's variable nebula N. G. C. 261, which has as its nucleus the variable star R. Monocerotis, shows the nucleus and the nebula to have the same peculiar spectrum consisting of bright lines or bands—not those typical of gaseous nebulae and a continuous spectrum. This observation suggests that the nebula shines by reflected light of the pulsating nucleus, and that the flow of the light pulses over the nebula causes its variation and could give its distance. From the material now available it is estimated that the apparent displacement of the nebula is as great as 15 seconds of arc. Taking this value and the simplest case of displacement perpendicular to the line of sight, which would be given a maximum value for the distance and would generally overstate it, the parallax would be about 0.00027 of the distance some 12,000-light years.

During the year ending March 31 next $5,500,000 will be added to the British debt of the British government, according to an estimate by the London Statist. If this estimate proves accurate, the gross debt will then stand at $27,500,000,000. Of this sum, however, $7,500,000,000 will represent loans to British allies and dominions leaving a net debt of $20,000,000,000. At the close of the fiscal year ending March 31, 1914, the debt totaled $2,250,000,000, so that the war will have added $17,750,000,000 to the net debt if hostilities should continue until March 31, 1918.

The "Emilienne Moreau," one of the new roses that won a prize in the annual competition at the Bagatelle Rose Gardens, was named after the heroine of Loos, the girl who helped save British wounded under fire and even shouldered a rifle to help the soldiers drive the Germans from the town in the great battle which resulted in its capture. It is a magnificent white rose with very large petals and with a foliage of a very deep green. The Edith Cavell, one of last year's productions at the Bagatelle gardens, was shown alongside it.

The cockades of the French revolutionists were composed of the red of the Paris commune and the blue of the ancient monarchy. In the troubled times just before the deposition and execution of Louis XVI Lafayette, to signify the desire of the people for a reconciliation with their king, added the Bourbon white to the cockade. The tricolor as a national emblem was adopted by the convention in 1794.

Just before graduating last June as honor man at the Harrisburg (Pa.) Technical high school, modest John Watchman disappeared, leaving a note that he could not stand "all this raving about being at the head of any class." A few days ago his parents received a letter which said only: "I am with the British army in France."

It is not likely that the apples on the apple tree as we know them were the tree or fruit mentioned in the bible. Most modern writers maintain that it is either the quince or the citron, as being more in accord with passages in scripture (Canticles, ii, 3; Job, i, 12; Proverbs, xv, 11; Canticles, ix, 1; Job, vi, 6).

The Mexican national commercial congress which convened in Mexico City about the middle of July recommended to the national congress that the exportation from Mexico of articles of prime necessity be prohibited. The list as outlined in the resolution would include corn, wheat, flour, beans and cotton.

Jenny was continually boasting of his "family mansion in the old country." Pat, who came from the same place in Ireland, was very fond of it and with withering scorn exclaimed: "Your family mansion is it, Jenny? Bead, I could have ratched down the chimney an' put the four out wid me hand!"

Cheese today is not common among the Bedouin Arabs, butter being preferred. There is a substance closely corresponding to those mentioned in Samuel. This consists of congealed buttermilk which is dried until it becomes quite hard. It is then ground and the Arabs eat it mixed with butter.

Due to the scarcity of broom corn, State Senator J. R. Domeneaux, of Louisiana, has experimented successfully with palmetto leaves as a satisfactory substitute. Experiments will also be made with palmetto roots in the making of pulps and paper. The supply of palmetto is inexhaustible.

In Exodus the "embroiders" is contrasted with the "canning workman." The art of embroidery by the loom was extensively practiced by the nations of antiquity. The Egyptians and Babylonians were noted for it. Embroidery with the needle was a Phrygian invention of a later date.

The Jews learned the art of brick-making in Egypt. We find the use of the brick kiln in Deuteronomy (x, 1; Samuel, xii, 3). A complete kiln made by Isaiah that the people built at the cost of brick, instead of unburnt stone as the law directed (Isaiah, lxx, 3; Exodus, xx, 25).

Cheese is mentioned only three times in the bible and on each occasion under a different name in the Hebrew (Job, x, 10; I Samuel, xviii, 12; I Samuel, xvi, 20). It is difficult to decide how far these terms correspond with our notion of cheese.

A good mushroom, properly cooked, is a delicious morsel and as such is a wholesome addition to the dietary. If you are absolutely sure that the variety that grows on your lawn or in the neighboring fields is of the edible kind, by all means cook and eat it.

RUSH FOR MINERAL RIGHTS ON STATE SCHOOL LANDS

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 27.—The office of state land commissioner is being swamped with applications for mineral rights growing out of the potash industry. Recently the board of education has desired to lease the mineral rights of the state school lands. The potash lakes in northwestern Nebraska, mostly located in Sheridan county are being plastered with mineral filings. Lakes in some other counties are also the object of eager wealth chasers and the school trustees are being besieged by the biggest in the state. If the war continues the industry is expected to produce immense financial returns. Incidentally the state will get a big royalty out of it.

He was arrested at Lincoln two weeks ago by a railroad watchman after the latter claimed the young German had made treasonable remarks about the United States. This is the first case of its kind handled at Lincoln.

DAMAGE TO CORN BY FROST NOW THOUGHT IMPROBABLE

Norfolk, Neb., Aug. 27.—Experts say that conditions for a wonderful corn crop are unusually favorable and that damage in the Norfolk territory by early frost is improbable, the greater part of the corn in this section to be cut in the next two to four weeks. The slower maturing corn is in the valleys and lowlands. Oats now being threshed are exceptionally heavy in yield and reports of from 90 to 100 bushels per acre are not uncommon. The lowest is about 50 bushels and the average 75. Several 50-bushel wagon boxes weighed out 70 bushels, showing that the grain is very heavy.

The governor has issued an order under authority of a section of the law creating the state council for defense by the Nebraska act of last winter. DRINKING AMONG TROOPS ROUSES NORFOLK CITIZENS

Norfolk, Neb., Aug. 25.—Considerable excitement has been occasioned in Norfolk by the evidence of drinking among the soldiers of Company I, Sixth Nebraska. Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 25.—After reviewing appraisement of state lands subject to sale, State Land Commissioner Shumway and Secretary of State Pool have returned from the western part of the state. The state officers declare that western Nebraska is booming and land is increasing rapidly in value. Dirt which brought comparatively nothing 10 or even five years ago now readily sells for from $25 to $50 an acre. START FISH FIGHT OVER WATER RIGHTS

Suit Filed at North Platte by Government to End Ancient Dispute.

North Platte, Neb., Aug. 24.—A fight to a finish over water rights growing out of the big irrigation projects in the western part of the state is on between the United States and Nebraska, by the filing of a suit by Federal District Attorney T. S. Allen, in the federal court at North Platte. The government asks that the defendant be enjoined from interfering in any way with its projects and that it be permitted to use and develop its seep, drainage and waste waters within the North Platte project.

The state of Nebraska contends that once after the water gets into Nebraska it becomes the property of the state, and that the state board of irrigation can convert and use the seepage water. The national government has already spent $9,000,000 in bringing waters into the state to reclaim arid land. Mr. Allen says that the suit is brought to ultimately help the state. He points out that if the contention of the state is sustained by the federal court it will result in Nebraska getting no water because other states will appropriate it, which will mean ruin to the people of the irrigated section of western Nebraska.

The title of the suit is the United States of America by T. S. Allen, under the special direction and authority of the attorney general of the United States, against the Ramshorn Ditch company, a corporation, George E. Johnson, as state engineer, C. A. Lilljantelpe, as water commissioner of District No. 1, the state board of irrigation, highways and drainage and Keith Neville, Willis E. Reed and Grant L. Shumway, members of the state board of irrigation, highways and drainage.

STATE WAREHOUSE LAW TO BE DECLARED NULL

Aurora, Neb., Aug. 24.—A circular letter from Food Director Hoover has caused some elevator men operating under the state warehouse law to reach a conclusion that they will not be allowed to keep grain in storage longer than 30 days and must at the end of that time turn the grain on hand and turn the proceeds over to the owner of the stored grain. Some elevator men have written to the state railway commission asking for light. The commission is not in a position to give a definite reply because the food control act is being regulated by the government have not yet been interpreted by the federal officials. Naturally, the grain elevator men are anxious to know as soon as possible if the state warehouse law is to be set aside by the national law and regulations. It has been suggested that a way out of the difficulty would be to make the warehouse men agents of Uncle Sam.
