Grow Wheat in Western Canada

One Crop Often Pays for the Land

Western Canada offers the greatest advantages to home seekers. Large profits are assured. You can buy on easy payment terms. Fertile Land at $15 to $30 per Acre—land similar to that which through many years has averaged from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre. Hundreds of cases are on record where in Western Canada a single crop has paid the cost of land and production. The Governments of the Dominion and Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta want the farmer to prosper, and extend every possible encouragement and help to Grain Growing and Stock Raising. Though Western Canada offers land at such low figures, the high prices of grain, cattle, sheep and hogs will remain. Loans for the purchase of stock may be had at low interest; there are good shipping facilities; best of markets; free schools; churches; splendid climate; low taxation (none on improvements). For particulars as to location of lands for sale, maps, illustrated literature, reduced railway rates, etc., apply to Dept. of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or G. A. Cook, Deser 197, Watertons, S. The League of Nations Discussed

From the London Spectator, October 26, 1918.

It is no exaggeration to say that the fate of the civilized world and of all human progress hangs upon whether we take the right or the wrong path in dealing with the problem of the league of nations. Remember, the vision of peace by agreement and of the federation of nations has haunted the minds of men in one shape or another for countless centuries. Greek statesmen had these ideas at the end of the Persian war, during the whole of the great Peloponnesian contest and after its conclusion, and though the cynics and the professors of Realpolitik smiled at their simplicity, thinkers and poets like Plato chose the larger hope. Once more the idea is in the ascendant, and minds and spirits are "finely touched" to these fine issues. Men of light and leading are wondering whether it may not be possible in a more enlightened and more democratic age actually to do what our progenitors could dream about but never accomplish.

Success or failure in this great venture must depend upon the prime object aimed at. We do not want to make the object of the league of nations the abolition of war in the abstract, or the erection of some mixed tribunal into whose hands men and nations shall entrust the dearest things which they possess—their liberties, their rights, and their independence. We do not want the object of the league of nations to be the establishment of some committee or collectivist form of the Pax Romana which will crush all national individuality, or will prove a kind of benignant upas-tree that will shelter everybody and yet shrivel while it shelters. We do not want the nations in their mood of humanity caused by the horrors they have witnessed and experienced, first to rush into the extreme belief that anything is better than war, and then to find that they were mistaken and revert to the old and hopeless regime of armed peace. What we ask them to do, and it is all we believe it is safe for them to do, is to pledge themselves severally and jointly to insist that solemn treaties between nations shall not be treated as "scraps of paper," but shall be strictly and honestly observed. We want to make contracts between nations, while they remain, the most solemn and essential things in the world—something a thousandfold more sacred than contracts between individuals, just as the interests of the nation are a thousandfold more sacred than those of the single individuals that compose it. But though the nations of the earth must agree to think no crime greater or more despicable than the illegal repudiation of a treaty contract, whether made for some specific purpose or for general amity and goodwill, we must recognize that the world of nations can never be put into a straight waistcoat, that there must always be the capacity for free change and free development within the international circle. Above all, we must never forget that freedom is essential to human happiness, and, further, that freedom to do right must involve freedom to do wrong, and that it is never possible to give man the beneficial power to choose the one path without taking the risk of his choosing the other. Therefore, treaties which are not to prove veritable swaddling clothes, and to turn the nations into mummies rather than free limbed human organisms, can never be perpetual. They must be revocable, and revocable within a time that will not make men despair of seeing what they will regard as an essential improvement. Thus, though treaty contracts as long as they are in existence must be maintained by the whole weight and power of mankind, the nations which entered into them must be able to free themselves from their contractual bonds, if they deem it essential to their welfare to do so, without intolerable difficulty or delay.

We suggest that if mankind acting in unison shall be bound to uphold the sanctity of treaties, a year's notice shall free any nation from its diplomatic instruments. Any recourse to arms before that year has expired, no matter what the alleged excuse, and no matter what the merits, must be dealt with the utmost sternness. But it must not be dealt with by war, for that would mean some system of international armies and fleets and air squadrons, which, men being what they are, would open up a hopeless vista of intrigue. We must have recourse to non-intercourse as the weapon by which the sanctity of treaties is to be upheld. We believe that compulsory disarmament, compulsory arbitration, compulsory entry into an international federation, can only lead first of all to disappointment, tyranny, and intrigue, and ultimately either to the loss of that national individuality which the peoples rightly cherish, or to the breaking up of the league as a hopeless failure. Instead of all these high sounding aims, we desire to have the one clear obligation that nations must respect their treaty pledges.

Remember that no nation which was restrained from fighting for one year would be able to say, as it might in the case of arbitration, that it must refuse to submit to the ruling of a court of which the judges could be alleged to be foolish, inhuman, prejudiced, bribed, or capable of acting as politicians rather than as jurists. By our plan we avoid all these apparently good excuses for war. We avoid also the danger of the great powers being judges in their own cause, or else of having to submit issues of supreme importance to the legal representatives of the smaller nations, as the only persons procurable who could be regarded as wholly impartial.

Fighting Famine.

From the Springfield Republican.

The world is now face to face with a supreme struggle against famine. Mr. Hoover understates the gravity of the food situation rather than overstates it. American can be of incalculable service to humanity during the coming year by practicing self denial and exporting its surplus of food to the starving millions in the devastated continent of Europe. Our task in feeding our friends now includes that of feeding those who were our enemies.

Anarchy knows no national boundaries and patriotism cannot be nourished on an empty stomach.

The north temperate zone is on the edge of winter. Not in many generations has there been in this zone so small an amount of food in proportion to the number of human beings to be fed. During the last growing season none of the allied countries in Europe produced enough to feed its own inhabitants for the coming year. Going east from France the situation becomes steadily worse in this respect, until in European Russia millions are now in danger of actual starvation before the next crops can be grown.

The salvation of the European populations now depends upon North and South America, Australia and even India, the land of traditional famine. Mr. Hoover estimates that North America, including the West Indies, must send abroad at least 20,000,000 tons of food-stuffs in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, as compared with 11,882,000 tons in the last fiscal year and previous normal export of 6,600,000 tons. Yet the United States this season harvested a total crop of cereals and their substitutes that was 225,000,000 bushels less than the total crop of 1917 and 451,000,000 bushels less than the record crop of 1915.

Of wheat the United States can furnish a goodly amount for export: it is in corn fed animals that we will be short, on account of the corn crop shortage this year, and this means an inadequate amount of meat and fats. Particularly under nourished in fats the European populations will be in the immediate future, or until the production of pork and bacon can be greatly increased.

Wheat for Europe can be drawn somewhat from India, whose surplus is estimated at about 50,000,000 bushels, and from Australia and the Argentine. There is doubt, however, concerning the available surplus for export in the two countries last named, for the much talked of surplus of 150,000,000 bushels awaiting shipment in Australia is reported to have shrunk very materially on account of various pests, while it is asserted that Argentine wheat has maintained a fairly normal export movement throughout the war and its influence on Europe's food problem is already discounted. The surplus of Java, however, should alleviate the European sugar scarcity as soon as the idle Dutch shipping can make the long outward ocean passage and return.

Any survey of the world's available food supply must show how near the dead line of starvation the lowest down populations of the war swept countries of Europe now are. We shall hear more about their needs, in one way or another, before we hear less. The gravity of their plight cannot be exaggerated. The fight for the preservation of civilization has not ended, although it is no longer being waged with high explosives and machine guns.

In commenting on Mr. Scott's statement, the Medicine and Surgery Magazine says:

"At a time like this when the pituitary body is the paramount topic of conversation in medical circles on account of its influence on our underweight or overweight, on our sluggishness or regard to its attitude toward music should give us pause. The faulty pituitary body can be corrected, no doubt, by treatment; made super-sensitive and vibrant; thus to a person indifferent to music may become highly appreciative to it."

NO ROOM FOR PESSIMISM

Canada as a Nation Builder.

With Canada's great task in the war before the public, the burdens that she so willingly took and so ably carried, and her recent victory in subscribing $175,000,000 to the 5th Victory Bond Loan more than she asked, he would be a skeptic who would associate the word pessimism with her present condition. Canada deplores the heavy human loss which she has suffered, but even those akin to those lost in battle say with cheerfulness that while the sacrifice was great, the cause was wonderful, and accept their sufferings with grace. It may well be said there is no room in Canada today for the pessimist. The agricultural production of the country has doubled in four years. $140,000,000 are the railway earnings today or 3 1/4 times what they were ten years ago, while the bank deposits are now $1,733,000,000 as compared with $133,000,000 thirty years ago.

There is a wonderful promise for the future. It is with buoyancy that Canada faces an era of peace. She has triumphed over the soul-testing crisis of war. Before the war Canada was a borrower, and expected to continue so for many years. For the past year and a half we have seen her finance herself. She has also been furnishing credits to other nations.

A recent article in the "Boston Transcript" says:

"The people at home have not been lagging behind the boys at the front in courage, resourcefulness and efficiency. The development of Canada's war industry is an industrial romance of front rank. American Government officials can testify to the efficiency of the manufacturing plant Canada has built up in four short years. In Department after Department where they found American industry faltered they were able to turn to Canada. The full story may be revealed some day."

The same paper says:

"It is a new Canada that emerges from the world war in 1918—a nation transformed from that which entered the conflict in 1914. The war has taken from Canada a cruel toll. More than 50,000 of her bravest sons lie in soldiers' graves in Europe. Three times that number have been more or less incapacitated by wounds. The cost of the war in money is estimated to be already $1,100,000,000. These are not light losses for a country of 8,000,000 people. Fortunately there is also a credit side. Canada has found herself in this war. She has discovered not merely the gallantry of her soldiers, but the brains and capacity and efficiency of her whole people. In every branch, in arms, in industry, in finance, she has had to measure her wits against the world, and in no case has Canada reason to be other than gratified.—Advertisement.

Suffered For Years Back and Kidneys Were in Bad Shape, But Doan's Removed all the Trouble

"My kidneys were so weak that the least cold I caught would affect them and start my back aching until I could hardly endure the misery," says Mrs. D. C. Ross, 973 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y. "In the morning when I first got up, my back was so lame, I could hardly bend over and any move sent darts of pain through my kidneys. It was hard for me to walk up stairs or stoop, and to move while lying down sent darts of pain through me."

"The kidney secretions were scanty and distressing and the water remained in my system, making my feet and hands swell. There were dark circles under my eyes and I became so dizzy I could hardly see. I had rheumatic pains in my knees and it was all I could do to get around. For years I was in that shape and I wore plasters and used all kinds of medicine to no avail until I tried Doan's Kidney Pills. They rid me of the trouble and strengthened my back and kidneys. When I have taken Doan's since, they have always benefited me."
