Represented, Anyway.

A couple of old codgers got into a quarrel and landed before the local magistrate. The loser, turning to his opponent in a combative frame of mind, cried: "I'll law you to the circuit court." "I'm willin'," said the other, "An' I'll law you to the supreme court." "I'll be thar." "An' I'll law to 'ell!" "My attorney'll be there," was the calm reply.

Was He An Incumbance?

The Hoosier schoolmaster still remains in some parts of Indiana. One of these "last leaves" recently declared that she wished a new position. She went to one of the younger generation of teachers and told of her plans. "I'm writing a letter to the trustees of the town in which I wish to teach," she said, "and I wish to tell about my work here. I've taught ever since Mr.
B. became superintendent here." Now shall I say I've worked for twenty-five years under his administration or his incumbance?"

Young Logic.

"The logic of the child is always amusing and oftentimes embarrassing," remarked a well-known educator.
"They tell a story of little Bess, who had been complaining that her stomach felt bad, and her mother said: 'Perhaps it's because it's empty, dear. It might feel better if you had something in it.' Shortly afterward the minister called. In reply to a question as to his health he said that he was well, but that his head felt rather bad that day. 'Perhaps it's 'cause it's empty,' spoke up Bessie. 'It might feel better if you had something in it.'"

In a New Light.

His client was being sued for divorce by her husband and the attorney was trying to get her as much alimony as possible. Right in the middle of a flow of eloquence the attorney was interrupted by the husband, who said to the court: "Your honor, I have suddenly decided to withdraw my suit, and if my wife is willing, I would like to have her come back to me." Pressed for explanation, he said: "Mr. Blackstone has presented her in such an attractive light that I've fallen in love with her all over again."

Took Her Choice.

An unhappy experience for a witness is a cross-examination by a clever lawyer, but now and then a sharptongued and quick witted victim succeeds in making the experience unhappy for the lawyer, too.

A burglar's wife was in the witness box, and the prosecuting counsel was conducting a vigorous cross-examination.

"Madam, you are the wife of this man?"

"Yes."

"You knew he was a burglar when you married him?"

"How did you come to contract a matrimonial alliance with such a man?"

"Well," said the witness sarcastically, "I was getting old and had to choose between a lawyer and a burglar."

You'll be satisfied to say good-bye to the dollars you spend at this laundry, because you'll get full value for every dollar spent here.
