MEMORIAL DAY, MAY 30, 1919

It is well to set apart a day in the year as a time for remembrance; a day when we can think of patriotism, heroism and sacrifice, and fearless unquestioning devotion to duty and to the high ideals that our country stands for; when we can remember and pay tribute to those who gave up their lives for the cause of freedom, freedom in not only this country, but of the world.

Memorial Day this year should have especial significance to the people of the United States. We have emerged victorious from the World's war where the American troops won new honor and glory on many a bloody battle field in bleeding France. Those of our boys whose bodies lie in cemeteries in France we can not decorate, but on that day we can pay silent tribute to our heroic dead who gave their all in the cause of humanity and right.

You may not see what this has to do with the clothing business; there is no particular field for heroism in such work. We don't have to "lay down our lives" selling clothes. But we have the same sort of spirit in it; a willingness to do all we can to conserve the resources, financial and otherwise, of our customers, and we give them better value for their money than can be found in any other store in this section of the state.
