LOCAL MATTERS.

F. E. Foreman, one of Emmett's leading merchants, was in the city last Friday.

Will Biglin went to Jackson Wednesday morning to spend Thanksgiving with friends.

George Parham went to Atlantic, Iowa, Tuesday afternoon, to spend Thanksgiving with relatives.

Ed. Davies, Ewing's hustling hardware merchant, was transacting business in this city last Monday.

Fred Niebaur and Miss Orta Karr, both of Atkinson, were granted a marriage license last Tuesday.

Homer Mullen, who is attending university, at Lincoln, returned home Tuesday evening for the Thanksgiving season.

Miss Viola Hough will leave the latter part of the week for Omaha, where she will take a commercial course.

J. M. Hunter, Jess Mellor and Henry Grady went to Wahoo Monday morning, where they will be witnesses in a land suit.

Omaha News: James Hanley, jr., small son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hanley, who has been seriously ill of scarlet fever, is doing nicely.

R. G. Rackey and Miss Irene Butler, both of Ewing, were granted a marriage license in county court on November 22nd.

Austin L. Hynes and Miss Dorris Brown, both of this city, were granted a marriage license by County Judge Malone last Tuesday.

Miss Vera Clyde left Tuesday morning for Ashland, to spend Thanksgiving with relatives, after which she will go to Omaha, to attend business college.

Tuesday evening's passenger on the Burlington did not arrive until Wednesday morning, being late out of Sioux City and delayed enroute by engine trouble.

Mr. and Mrs. Barto P. Smith, pioneer residents of Ewing, arrived in the city the first of the week to spend Thanksgiving at the home of their daughter, Mrs. E. D. Henry.

Mrs. D. H. Cronin left last Friday morning for Onawa, Iowa, to spend Thanksgiving at the home of her sister. Mr. Cronin left this morning for Onawa, where he will spend Thanksgiving.

Students of the heavens enjoyed a rare treat Saturday. In the morning, until about 8:58 o'clock, an eclipse of the sun was visible in this locality. In the evening a comet was visible in the northern sky.

Last Saturday Judge Malone issued a marriage license to Leonard W. Ullrich and Miss Nona Hayes, both of Atkinson. Miss Hayes is a daughter of W. T. Hayes, chairman of the Holt county board of supervisors.

George Bay, who for years has been one of Holt county's most prosperous farmers, moved into town the first of the week and is now comfortably settled in his home in the western part of the city, which he purchased last spring. Mr. Bay disposed of his farm last spring and now proposes to take things easy.

One of the Washington highbrows is out with the statement that 10 cents a pound is a sufficient wholesale price for sugar and that therefore 11 cents should be an ample retail price. Unfortunately 10 cents isn't the wholesale price of sugar and if it were it could not be sold for 11 cents retail with freight rates under government operation of railroads what they are.

The Sunday World-Herald society page contained an account of the experiences of an Omaha society girl in the orient. In the account the society editor states that the young lady is eating fresh coconuts that she picks, herself, from the garden each morning. The story does not state whether the young lady uses an aeroplane or stationary balloon in plucking the toothsome fruit.

Mr. and Mrs. Lysle McRoberts departed Tuesday morning for Sidney, Nebraska, where they will make their future home. Mr. and Mrs. McRoberts are among the pioneer residents of this county, coming here about forty years ago from Wisconsin. They were for many years owners of a splendid ranch in the Blackbird country which they disposed of upon their removal to this city about fifteen years ago. They have many friends in O'Neill and Holt county who wish them many years of happiness and prosperity in their home.

Inman Leader: C. E. Doughty of Norfolk, traveling salesman, was shot through the fleshy part of the hand, between the thumb and first finger Monday afternoon. Mr. Doughty is the father of Mrs. Leon Tompkins residing south of Inman, and it was while on a visit here that the accident occurred. Mr. Doughty in company with Mr. Tompkins were riding across the meadow on a hay rack. Mr. Doughty was holding a shot gun which slipped from his hands, the trigger striking the edge of the rack discharging the weapon. Dr. Noyes was called and dressed the injured hand and Mr. Doughty returned to his duties on the road Tuesday morning.

Last week, when the senate defeated the League of Nations covenant, the president threatened to take the issue to the people in next year's campaign. Evidently the president spoke without first consulting with those of his advisors who have had their ears to the ground, for when Senator Lodge announced soon after that the senate probably would not take any new action on the treaty at the coming term, but would submit it to the people at the election he promptly was scored by he president's mouthpieces as playing politics. Having ascertained that the treaty, if submitted to the people, would stand about as much chance of ratification as a snowball would on the equator, the wise-acres have decided that the question is far too important to be submitted to the base-passioned rabble. Compromise, which it now appears the president always favored, well be endeavored at the coming session, else the heart of the world, which is breaking, go entirely "bust."

Last week, while the big oratorical guns of the United States senate were thundering about the peace treaty and the league of nations, and the railroad experts in the lower house of congress were learnedly discussing the railroad bill, Congressman William W. Larsen of Beckley county, Georgia, happened to recollect that it is getting close to election time. He also bethought himself that one of his constituents owned a Duroc Jersey boar pig that won a first place in the national swine show at Omaha. Recollecting these things, the congressman laid his chew of tobacco on his desk, rose to a question of personal privilege and while the league of nations and the railroad bill hung in the balance modestly asked leave to extend his remarks in the record. He hadn't made any remarks, but nevertheless permission was granted to extend them, and Mr. Larsen sure extended. His extended remarks appear in the Congressional Record of Friday, November 14, and in them Larsen discourses solely on the resources of Beckley county and its champion boar pig. His speech as extended is a literary gem that would make a real estate prospectus writer turn green with envy, for that is just what it is—a real estate prospectus. Congressman Larsen should receive the vote of every real estate man in Georgia dealing in Beckley county lands, for the speech as a part of the record may now be printed in pamphlet form at government expense and mailed out by the real estate men under the congressman's franking permit. Nebraska congressmen please take notice.

ATKINSON HAY DEALERS WANT CARS

Nebraska State Journal: Hay dealers of Atkinson filed a warm protest with the state railway commission Monday against the Northwestern railroad. They say they have orders in for cars that are not filled and cars that are loaded are not being moved. While they are languishing for cars Newport and Stuart, rival shipping stations, get what they desire. They have complained to the division superintendent, but the promised relief does not appear. They would like to have the commission issue an order giving preference to the men with the most hay to ship.
