MORE LOCAL MATTERS.

Dr. J. L. A. Burgess enjoyed a several days visit from his father, Mr. C. Burgess of Julesburg, Colo., the first of the week. Mr. Burgess departed this morning.

Arthur Waldman of Swan township is in the city today. Mr. Waldman says that during the years he has lived in the south country he has never seen it as wet as it has been this spring.

C. M. Smith, one of the pioneer residents of the south country, died at his home in Chambers last Tuesday morning, after an illness of several months of dropsy. Mr. Smith has been one of the prominent residents of southern Holt for the past thirty years and has always taken an active interest in public affairs. He served on the county board about twenty-five years ago, representing Conley township. In the early nineties he was the populist candidate for sheriff of this county, but was defeated at the election. For the past ten years he has been engaged in the general mercantile business at Chambers.

G. C. Hazelet of Valdez, Alaska, arrived in the city last Saturday for a week end visit at the home of his brother-in-law, W. T. Evans. Mr. Hazelet was one of the pioneer residents of this county, having been principal of the Atkinson Public schools thirty years ago. While at the head of the Atkinson schools, in the eighties, he was elected county clerk, which position he held for four years. After retiring from office he organized the American Chicory Company in this city and for years this was the largest factory of this kind in existence. Pure food laws and the low price of coffee, for which chicory was a substitute, put this enterprise out of business. Mr. Hazelet went to Alaska some twenty years ago and has been engaged in business there since that time. He was one of the delegates from Alaska to the republican national convention at Chicago and was on his way home when he stopped here for a short visit with relatives and old friends.

CONNOLLY-WALSH.

Frank J. Connolly and Mrs. Anna E. Walsh were united in marriage last Wednesday morning at 7 o'clock at the Catholic church, Rev. M. F. Cassidy officiating, in the presence of a few of the relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties.

After the wedding ceremony a splendid wedding breakfast was served the bridal couple at the home of the groom's brother, Patrick Connolly, after which they left on the Northwestern for a wedding trip to the bride's former home at Hoboken, N. J. They expect to return in about three weeks and will make this city their future home.

The Frontier joins their many friends in wishing them many years of happiness and prosperity.

O'NEILL LINE EXTENSION.

Sioux City Tribune. Representatives of business interests in Bassett, Rose, Duff, Purdem and Thedford, Neb., conferred with the railroad committee of the Chambers of Commerce last week concerning an extension of the O'Neill branch of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad.

The extension has been proposed by the Chamber of Commerce and business men of the town named are in favor of the improved connection to Sioux City. This will enlarge Sioux City trade territory in northern Nebraska.

The desirability of the extension was discussed at the meeting. A request will doubtless be submitted to the Burlington railroad to extend their line to the town mentioned.

CURRENT PRESS COMMENT.

Chicago Tribune: The candidate is a four-square American, who has worked his way up from the humblest position to the highest position from which he is, we believe, to be called to the highest office in the land. His character is unblemished and he has proved himself in private and public life worthy of unhesitant confidence. His experience is many sided, as that of a chief executive of our government must be if he is to fulfill his complicated and heavy duties with judgment tested by real knowledge of affairs.

Baltimore American: The voters can be sure that Mr. Harding is right in his views of the domestic needs of the Nation, right in his views as to the functions of the Executive, right in his ideas of the balanced co-ordination of the respective department of the Government, right in his sense of the Nation's international responsibilities, right in regard to all the things that are now of such importance in the vista of the four years in which there shall be a new Executive in the White House.

Hartford Courant: Other men well qualified to sit in the President's chair were considered but the choice went to Harding, for in him was recognized an able and worthy leader who could command the united support of his party and the adherence of a large part of that politically unclassified body of voters called, for lack of a better term, independents. He is a standard bearer worthy of the party he represents.

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle: There is a platform of principles upon which any loyal American may stand proudly. A worthy ticket, a winning ticket, has been nominated. America expects every Republican to do his, or her, duty in this crisis which means so much.

Philadelphia Enquirer: By the selection of Warren G. Harding as the candidate of the Republican party for the high office of President and Calvin Coolidge for Vice President the convention at Chicago has reached a happy solution of the difficulties that confronted it.

Pittsburgh Gazette Times: The Republican party and all the people of the United States are to be congratulated on the manner in which the Chicago convention solved the situation which confronted it. It was an open race. There were some hot, if not odds-on favorites, but every contestant ran on his merits alone and got the position at the finish to which his powers in competition entitled him. The common verdict is that "the best man won."

New York Sun-Herald: It is no reflection upon any of the other men whom it had under consideration to say that the Republican national convention has given to the party and the country a ticket more closely approaching the ideal than any other combination that could have been made up from the material at the convention's disposal. It is a ticket which deserves and will receive the support of every Republican—one which every independent voter ought to be glad to support.

Los Angeles Times: In nominating Harding for President, the Republican national convention has made a capital choice. Senator Harding is a good American, a good Republican and a good citizen—and a good winner. At no time in his public career has he been false to the traditions, the ideals, the principles of the candidates of the Republican party. As a fitting close of a good day's work the convention named Calvin Coolidge, governor of Massachusetts, for Vice President. No more popular selection could have been made.

Baltimore News: Senator Harding is simply an able, clear-headed, steady figure about whom to rally and through whom to exercise such ability for government as the Republican party contains. He is avowedly the champion of the sort of government—irrespective of which party controls it—that we had under William McKinley; a stronger man by far than McKinley, an abler man, but yet a man who would be willing to look for the John Hays and Elihu Root's of his party to help him run the executive department and who would do his best to get the best out of that co-ordinate branch of government, the Congress, and still see in the latter the formal embodiment of the power and functioning of the body politic.

San Francisco Chronicle: The Chronicle had hoped for the nomination of Hiram W. Johnson. It regrets that the decision has been otherwise. But that ends it. It is not the individual who is of most national interest. It is the principles and not men to which party loyalty must be given if parties and indeed, the republic is to endure.

Philadelphia Press: Mr. Harding is a man of brains and force and high character. He is a senator of strong, reliable, conservative type, who will bring to the White House the qualities that make for sobriety, sanity and safety.

St. Louis Globe Democrat: Harding resembles Garfield somewhat in his qualities, but the people of Ohio, who know him best, see a closer comparison with McKinley. He is, without doubt, a man of the McKinley type, having much the same sane soberness of demeanor, the same conservatism of speech.

Providence Tribune: There is not the slightest taint of heterodoxy in his partisanship. He is much of the staid, plodding, respectable and always dependable type of McKinley—without the Hanna handicap. But as a forward looking man for these new times that are opening to a future imperious finger to our puissant American, Mr. Harding is an own brother to Lot's wife.

Springfield (Mass.) Union: The nomination of Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio, came finally as the logical, if not the inevitable result of the rivalry for the nomination in the convention, though he had been counted out of the probabilities at the start.

Houston Post: We stop the press to report that the rumor Mr. Burleson has called a cabinet meeting is without confirmation.

If the United States is to undertake a mandate over any country, why not take a mandate over Mexico and help restore peace and order in that country? Mexico is nearer home.

A leading Democratic paper says that "the only chance of success the Democratic party has is to repudiate Wilsonism, lock, stock and barrel, at San Francisco."
