MORE LOCAL MATTERS.

F. M. Pelletier, editor of the Springfield Herald, and W. H. Briggs, one of the hustling real estate dealers of that city, were O'Neill visitors last Saturday and favored this office with a fraternal call. Mr. Briggs is an old time printer and was at one time editor of the Herald, but he finds the real estate game a more prolific avenue to wealth than the newspaper business, hence he retired from the game. He says, however, that the smell of printers ink still is very agreeable to him and that he might again enter the field, after he has "made a fortune" in the real estate game.

James Kelley received word last Saturday that his nephew, John Regan, was drowned at Pe Ell, Washington, on June 22. The body was recovered. Mr. Regan was working in the ship yards and fell from the scaffolding into the water. He was not missed by his companions for some time when they commenced searching for him and found his body in the water. He was twenty years of age and was married on June 2, 1920, to a young lady of Seattle. Mr. Regan made his home with his grandfather, the late J. J. Kelley, here for several years and was well known in this city and vicinity. He left here for the west about five years ago.

The entertainment by five of the boys from the Father Flanagan home at Omaha, Monday evening, at the K. C. hall, draw a large audience, which was much pleased with and enlightened by the program given. The Father Flanagan home is doing one of the greatest of works in reclaiming the parentless and friendless youth and is one of the most efficient and commendable of its kind in the west, worthy of the undivided support of all sects and creeds as the institution draws no lines at all in its work of making useful citizens. The boys, who are accompanied by Father Flanagan, remained in the city a major portion of the week and many subscriptions to the support of the home have been made, among the larger ones being $500 subscriptions by John Carr and Patrick O'Connor, one of $200 by Joseph Petr and a number for smaller amounts. Wednesday evening Charles Stout, in addition to a liberal subscription, turned over the receipts of the soda fountain to the home, the boys waiting on the tables. Fifty dollars were realized.

The Nebraska State bank has inaugurated a campaign to inculcate a spirit of saving not only in the youth but also the older members of the community through a system of savings accounts to take care of the nickles and dimes too frequently lightly regarded and thoughtlessly squandered. These stray pieces of small change when laid aside until a sufficient amount accumulates to justify their deposit then become workers and begin to grow of themselves. The bank has secured a number of handsome and durable shake-proof savings banks. Once a piece of money is dropped in one of them it is there to stay until the bank is opened by the master key at the bank and the money then is deposited in an interest bearing account. That the little banks will not be sought for merely as souvenirs, the bank requires a deposit of $1 when the little bank is secured. The bank then is locked and a slug good for one dollar is dropped therein. When the holder presents his bank for the first deposit he is given credit for the amount advanced. The campaign is more thoroughly explained elsewhere in this issue.

Mrs. Frank Phalin and daughter, Loretta, narrowly escaped drowning Sunday afternoon in the river down near Cassidy's lake, when Miss Phalin stepped off beyond her depth while wading and Mrs. Phalin, who could not swim, attempted to rescue her. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Phalin, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Enright, and their families, with Ed. Peterson, were spending the afternoon on the river, picnicing and fishing. After lunch the men went down the river a short distance to fish, while the women and children went in bathing in shallow water near the river bank. Loretta while playing in the water backed off into a deep hole and Mrs. Phalin promptly went to her assistance and the water being deep also went under. Loretta in her struggles managed to grasp a willow and drew herself out, but seeing her mother still in the water jumped in again to assist her. The younger children in the meantime had summoned the men and Mr. Phalin, the only one who could swim, rescued them. After first aid the two were brought to the city for medical attention and later taken to their home. Miss Phalin was none the worse for her experience and was able to be about Sunday evening. Mrs. Phalin, although suffering no injurious effects, was confined to her bed from the shock for several days.

You can make this surprising experiment in our store - The Test of the Two Violins

Violins differ subtly in tone! Test the New Edison-Realism by that fact.

We have an "Ave Maria" RE-CREATION played by Albert Spalding with his Guarnerius. This famous violin has a brilliant, singing tone. We have a second "Ave Maria" RE-CREATION played by Carl Flesch with his genuine Stradivarius. This violin has a rich, mellow tone.

Come in and compare these two RE-CREATIONS—tone for tone. If the New Edison makes clear the distinction between the singing Guarnerius and the mellow Stradivarius, you know it has perfect realism for you.

The NEW EDISON "The Phonograph with a Soul"

Albert Spalding himself recently took part in a test of the New Edison's Realism, at New York City. He played in direct comparison with the RE-CREATION of his performance by the New Edison. Mr. Henry Hadley, one of the jury of the three distinguished musicians who listened from behind a screen, said: "The RE-CREATION matched Mr. Spalding's performance tone for tone." The New Edison is the only phonograph which has given this conclusive proof of its perfect realism. It has triumphed in 4,000 such comparison-tests.

PRICES! HALT!
Since 1914, the total price-increase in the New Edison has been less than 15%. Mr. Edison has, personally, absorbed more than one half of the increased costs of manufacture. He may not be able to do this much longer. Buy now—if you want today's prices. Our Budget Plan will help you. It distributes the payment over the months to come.
