Shameful!
More than once has comment been offered on the prevailing ignorance of the Bible. Things are credited to the Bible which are distinctly not scriptural either in idea or in phrasing; and quotations from the holy book are sometimes queerly misplaced. In this relation one is reminded of the lady giving her address at a dry goods counter.
"Deontas avenue."
"How do you spell it, ma'am?"
"Young man, you ought to know your Bible better. The idea!"

A Lady of Distinction

Two country women were arguing about their.
"I've seen that purse?" demanded one with a triumphant air. "It's the one I bought when I was married, 20 years ago, and it's as good as new yet."
"That's nothing!" sneered her friend. "You know my husband, John?"
"Of course I do. What about him?"
"Well, he's my first husband and you've had three. Don't you preach thrift to me!"—Stray Stories.

CALLED "MYSTERY WITNESS" IN MURDER

Mrs. R. C. Peete.

The reticence of police and detectives working on the murder of J. C. Denton, wealthy Los Angeles mining man, regarding the facts surrounding the questioning of Mrs. R. C. Peete, has caused Los Angeles to refer to Mrs. Peete as the "mystery witness." She is not accused of having any part in the mysterious disappearance of Denton last June. His body was found early this month buried in the basement of his palatial home.

SUCCESS DEPENDS ON OUR WISE CHOOSING

Forbes Magazine, (New York).
All success in life, all business success depends upon wise choosing. Failure is the result of choosing unwisely.
Life is one continuous series of choices, decisions.
When we start going to school we have to choose whether we shall apply ourselves diligently to our studies or dodge them.
When we start work we have to choose whether we shall make it our first consideration and apply our whole selves to it, or whether we shall treat it as secondary to having a "good time."

In our youth we have to choose between giving rein to our appetites or keeping them under control.
Every human being is early confronted with the problem of choosing what line, or mode, of life to adopt. Does it not seem to you, on reflection, that the reason why we make so many poor choices is that we do not attach adequate importance to each choice we make?
Do we often tell ourselves that it is entirely unimportant whether we choose one course or another?
Life can be likened to a mosaic. Each particle is small, but whether the whole mosaic is a masterpiece or a hideous monstrosity or merely mediocre depends upon whether its builder chose each particle wisely or unwisely.
You and I are mosaic workers.
Each day we have to choose a certain number of particles to be fitted into the framework of our lives.
Although we may not fully realize it, the beauty or the ugliness of the product depends on the choice we daily make of the kind of particles we use.

Our choices are actuated by what we are, by what we have stored in our heads, by what we have in our hearts, by how we have disciplined our bodies, by how we have shaped our ambitions.
Our choices in short, reflect ourselves.
To make right choices we must strive to make ourselves right.

WHICH, AMERICA?

Anatole France.
The American people make me think of a powerful, young, amateur boxer. His profession is other than fighting. But his vitality is superabundant; his muscles love action, crude action. He is inclined at times to be violent. He is clean at heart and in body. There are many generous impulses in him, as in all youth. But he is not averse to fighting. Now, I don't believe in predestination. This young man may mellow and turn out to be a great force for spirituality, or he may develop into a bully. It all depends on what industrialism does for him. If it brutalizes America, the whole world will suffer. If America humanizes, socializes, industrializes, the whole world will be the gainer.

Accommodating.
From the Liverpool Post.
There was not even standing room in the crowded tramcar, but one more passenger, a young woman, wedged her way along just inside the doorway. Each time the car took a sudden lurch forward she fell helplessly back, and three times she landed in the arms of a large, comfortable man. The third time it happened he said quietly: "Hada't you better stay here?"

Three Chicago burglars last week ignored $1,700 in the cash register, and went off with a quart of bourbon.

FLEEING FROM POLLENS

Yesterday we published a list of hay fever resorts as reported by the state health officers to the president of the American Hay Fever Protesters' association and printed in the public health report for September 24, 1920.

This article also gave the periods of the spring and fall hay fever seasons in the different states. It is true the information is belated, but those who are interested can clip the article and save it for next year. I have come to the conclusion that being belated is a quality of those interested in hay fever, since 99 per cent. of the thousands who write in here about hay fever postpone writing until they are sick or are about due to be sick.
The article from which I quoted also gave the various grasses, flowers and weeds responsible for hay fever in the different states. What a person is driving at when he goes to a hay fever resort is to get away from the pollens which cause his trouble. He may run away from all pollens by going to sea, by mooning himself on some seagirt rock or he can spend his hay fever period in the mountains above the snow line.

As one runs through the list of resorts he notes that the aim is to change flowers, or the resorts are high up in the mountains—high enough to be away from the vegetation of the section when the disease prevails.

Another type of resort is located on a rocky peninsula partly surrounded by broad expanses of water. At that finding a hay fever resort is a good deal of a gamble. A person hears that a certain resort has been satisfactory to some friend. The next year he goes and gets no relief.

What is the explanation? The first man had hay fever caused by pollen from some family of plants not present in large numbers near the resort. The second man had a sensitivity to plants which grew in some abundance near the resort. That man lost the money he paid for railroad fare and hotel bills because he did not go to the bottom in analyzing his own case.

That was the whole story. What could he have done? The proper way for him to have proceeded was to have had skin tests made to determine what plants were poisonous to him. He should then have taken a list of hay fever causing plants in each state such as was published in the public health reports for September 24, 1920, and with this list before him picked out the resort suited to his case.

FOR "ANXIOUS MOTHER."

Anxious Mother writes: "My little girl of 3 has had a navel hernia since infancy. At 6 weeks it bled and the doctor said to stop it by putting on alcohol. At 3 months another doctor said it was a rupture or navel hernia. We have kept adhesive tape on it almost constantly, but when not bound down it stands out about a half inch."
"Is a navel hernia dangerous?"
"2. Is there a chance of outgrowing it?"
"3. If not, will operation be necessary?"
"4. If so, is it a dangerous one?"
"5. At what age would it be best to operate, or is there any other way to cure it?"
"6. Is a navel hernia the result of neglect at the time of birth?"
Reply.
1. Very little.
2. Yes. Binders generally bring about cure.
3. Operation is necessary for cure of the neglected cases.
4. Not especially so.
5. Wait until the child reaches an age when she can co-operate.
6. No.

The Far-Sighted Sultur.
From the Japan Advertiser.
"You want to marry my daughter?" asked the father, with the sport ship.
"Surely thing, you know," came from the young man with the red tie.
"Get anything put aside for a rainy day?"
"Get your sweet life! And for a dry day, too, pop."

HARD TO LIVE UP TO THESE BRUSH UP ANCIENT HISTORY

Speakers Would Do Well Indeed if They Matched the Work Credited to the Painters.

Possibly You May Not Have Heard of This Goddess and Her Temple at "Emphasis."

John Brookbank, commander-in-chief of the 330 Richmond business men who are soliciting money for the $500,000 endowment of Earlham college, was speaking to the men at the daily noon luncheon held in the basement of the Grace M. E. church. He was congratulating them on their good work and exhorting them to greater efforts in the future. He said:

There is employed in a Richmond household an old darky who prides himself on his learning. On one occasion, when he was engaged in cleaning up the library of his employer, he had with him his son, aged nine.

"To gain success in this enterprise, as in any, we must make it real and lifelike. . . something that people can see is worth while and vital and living. Why, we must do as good as the painter who drew a picture of a cat so lifelike that ten minutes after he hung it on the wall there were fleas on it."

New, this youngster became much interested in certain engravings hung on the wall. Stopping before one of them he asked his daddy: "What picture is that?" "You don't know what that's a picture of?" demanded the parent. "You ought to read your ancient history more. That is the temple of Dinal at Emphasis."

President Edwards arose and said: "Or we must do as well as the other painter who drew a picture of a hen. This painter threw the drawing of the hen in the waste basket, but it was so life-like that it just lay there."—Indianapolis News.

Story "Took Like a Funeral."
The hostess suggested that we each tell a funny story. When my turn came I was laughing so hard over the joke I wanted to tell that I could scarcely speak. Every one was anxious to hear it, and at last when I had controlled my laughter I began. No one even smiled when I finished. I was the only one who thought the story funny.—Exchange.
