GOLF BAWLS.

The club is thinking of ordering some of Andy Gump's muzzles.

Fritz Cronin is a new one on the links and already has begun to talk the lingo.

Wood Lake is in the throes of golfitis and a course has been laid out and an organization perfected.

Members of the Checker club are talking of expelling Vice President Hank Tomlinson, who began playing golf Sunday.

The three Golden boys, Tom, Parnell and Clear, went down to Wayne Sunday to take part in the golf tournament there.

Doc Kubitschek went fishing at 5 o'clock Wednesday morning, so that fishing would not interfere with an afternoon golf date.

Harry Reardon, M. R. Sullivan, George Agnes, Ben Grady and Asher Ryan are now listed among the incurables. They have started to playing sunrise golf.

T. V. Golden returned last Thursday from Lincoln, where he gave the Country Club course the once over. Just to keep in practice he played a tie match while there with the winner of the woman's state golf tournament, all the men players being afraid to tackle him.

A delegation of eight members of the Ainsworth golf club, under the leadership of William Eli, drove down Sunday afternoon and played around three times on the local course Monday. The Ainsworth men played all the courses from that city to O'Neill in their trip down. They returned home Monday evening.

Even though Jim Gallagher was score keeper the First National bank squad of Atkinson defeated the First National of O'Neill ten up and four to play, out at the course Labor Day, which is the day bankers are not permitted to work. The Atkinson group was captained by Fred Swingley and consisted of Ivan Dickerson, H. A. Snyder and Kid Hoskinson. The home group consisted of Edward M. Gallagher, Dag, Gallagher, Ed. Campbell and Hugh Birmingham.

John P. Mann of Chicago, is headed this way and is due to arrive sometime early in October. The attention of local golfers consequently is called to the following item taken from a recent issue of the Chicago Herald and Examiner:

"A big field took part yesterday in the Association of Commerce tournament at Olympia fields, 184 players making the round of eighteen holes. The President's cup, principal of the eight trophies competed for, went to John P. Mann of Midlothian, who was tied with Charles D. Richards, unattached, after the round, but won in the play-off after three holes. Richards was given the Vice President's trophy. Mann's score was 100-34-66 and Richards' 98-32-66."

J. M. Hunter is able to be around again and the president finals in the golf tournament consequently will be completed in a few days. P. O'Donnell already has annexed the title of champion by defeating P. C. Donohoe 12 up with 11 to play. Last Sunday Straw Gallagher and Noissey Moss put up the hottest contest ever witnessed in a local contest, for the championship of the secretary's flight, Straw finally winning two up with one to play. Until the very last it was either player's match and attracted a large gallery. Hunter at present is five up on Jim O'Donnell on twenty-seven holes play, with nine to go when Joe got sick. Being ahead Joe naturally cannot forfeit and as O'Donnell still has a good chance to win he doesn't feel like it either.

CRONIN-HARTY.

Miss Beatrice Kathleen Cronin and Mr. Patrick Bernard Harty were united in marriage at 7 o'clock Monday morning at St. Patrick's church, the Reverend M. F. Cassidy officiating. The bride was attended by Miss Irene Biglin and Mr. Francis Cronin, brother of the bride, was groomsmen. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Cronin, after which Mr. and Mrs. Harty left for a short wedding trip, after which they will be at home in this city.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. D. H. Cronin, publisher of The Frontier, and has grown to young womanhood in this city. Mr. Harty is engaged in business with his brother, W. H. Harty. Mr. and Mrs. Harty number their friends by their acquaintances, with whom the writer joins in extending them best wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

SANFORD-JONES.

Miss Sylvia Sanford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Sanford of this city, and Mr. Walter Jones of Atkinson, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, the Reverend C. F. Steiner officiating. Following the ceremony the bridal couple were the victims of their many friends and admirers for a time and were driven about town in a gaily decorated auto bearing suitable inscriptions for the occasion, after which luncheon was served the bridal party at McMillan & Markey cafe. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will reside at Atkinson. The Frontier joins their many friends in congratulations and well wishes.

ENTERTAIN FOR MRS. STEPHEN McNICHOLS.

The following is taken from the society columns of the Omaha World Herald of Sunday:
 Mrs. Stephen McNichols, of O'Neill, Neb., was honor guest at a dinner given Saturday evening at the Field club by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Mullen, for fifteen guests. Mrs. McNichols is the aunt of Mr. Mullen, and the affair was a family gathering.

DISPUTE THAT WOMEN EQUAL MEN IN CRIME

Omahans Disagree With Judge As To Proportion of Sexes In Law Breaking.

Favor Same Penalties.

World Herald, Sept. 1.—Omaha men and women generally disagreed with District Judge Robert R. Dickson of O'Neill, who in sentencing Mrs. Della Dehart to the penitentiary from one to ten years Tuesday for manslaughter, said that he believed women of today are as guilty of as many and varied crimes as men. Mrs. Dehart confessed to aiding her husband in the murder of John Mize at Platte. S. D. Dehart is serving a life sentence in the penitentiary.

The judge added that if society is to be protected women must be punished the same as men, and the Omahans who were asked for comment generally agreed with him on that point. Bishop Shayler said—"The general principle of the application of law to both sexes admits of no debate, either the moral or civil law. It is grossly illegal for a woman to commit murder, theft, or adultery as for a man and everything else being equal, the question of sex should in no way result in different legal satisfaction. Far less is the number of women lawbreakers of more sensitive moral nature and of their abhorrence of crime, still, there are many more women guilty of crime than in former years and perhaps a sentimentality of a pity or the pity of a judge has served to encourage others in criminal deeds and thus increase female offenders. There are two great factors which conduce to lawlessness—first: class legislation which brought about the French revolution and second, the lack of speedy trials after the commission of crimes."

Mrs. H. J. Bailey, chairman, second district League of Women Voters—"I would say that judging from the front pages of the newspapers, there are as many women committing crimes today as men. Of course, I don't suppose statistics would prove the statement, but really I am surprised to find how many women today are committing crimes."

Mrs. Draper Smith—"I believe that when women do commit crime they should be punished the same as men, except when they are nursing children or about to become mothers. In those cases, it is not fair to punish the child too. The prison statistics, however, will settle the question as to whether there are as many women law breakers today as men. It isn't a fact that there are as many. Why, the prisons have twice as many male inmates as female and it isn't because the women have been accused and acquitted—they haven't been accused." Mrs. George W. Covell, W. C. T. U. leader—"There are more women out in the world today than there used to be, but I can't agree with the judge when he says there are as many women criminals today as there are men. I think anyone who reads the newspapers will agree with me that the male law violators are in the majority."

Dr. Jennie Callas—"I hadn't noticed that there had been as many women committing crime today as there have been men, but there have been too many. No, I can't agree with Judge Dickson that there have been as many, but I do think that when a woman commits a crime, she should be punished the same as if she was a man."

Henry W. Dunn, Superintendent of Police—"It's all according to what you want to class as crime. As far as being guilty of vicious crimes, there are not nearly as many women as there are men violators today. Women don't commit as many major crimes as men."

Dr. Frank G. Smith, Pastor First Central Congregational Church—"My first thought is that the assertion is not so. I have no judicial opinion, however. As a rule, I don't think women are tempted to commit crime as much as men. The penal statistics will verify that. Of course, some sentiment enters into the trial of a woman after she commits a crime, and many times they are acquitted, but as a rule, I believe the women lawbreakers are not as great as the men. Up until recent years, women have been protected more than they are today, but that is still true to such an extent as to have an influence on the question."

Mrs. Charles E. Johannes, President Women's Club—"I don't know what to think of it. All I can say is that women never want to place themselves on pedestals, and we want no special privileges."

Mrs. William Berry, Club Woman—"Women are too big to do some of the things men of today do. Of course, there are a few exceptions to the rule, but generally, I do not think the women law violators of today will outnumber the men. We are the mothers of the nation and through some unexplainable reason, we seem to understand better than men that we should be good and kind, and obey the law."

Presiding District Judge Troup yesterday agreed with Judge Robert R. Dickson, O'Neill, Neb., who declared women are guilty of as many and as varied crimes as men.

"The law is no respecter of persons," Judge Troup said "and for that reason where the law provides a sentence of from one to ten years, the judge is allowed his discretion in the matter of the sentence. Circumstances must be taken into account in sentencing a man or woman."

"Women have been found guilty lately of crimes which hitherto have been attributable to men alone. Highway robbery was never common among women crooks, neither was burglary, but lately women crooks are committing those crimes nearly as often as men."

Judge Leslie evaded the question but said this: "I know from my experience with divorcees that women can lie as fluently and as often as men."

Judge Goss also side-stepped by saying: "At least women don't seem to be caught as often as men." Judge Sears stated: "Judge Dickson may be right," but made the following observations from his experience as juvenile and district judge: "There is more delinquency among men and boys than among women and girls.

There are more men who desert their families when they are hard pressed for money or domestic troubles than women.

There are more women who work harder toward supporting their children than men. There are many scrub women in this city who are supporting their children because their husbands can't find work in the line of their regular occupations but who won't take some other line of work.

There are more cases of sudden disappearance among men than among women.

There is some perjury in the courts here every day, but the tendency among women to hold back information or to magnify their wrongs seems to be more prevalent than among men.

However, if being convicted of fishing without a license can be classed as "crime," State Fish and Game Warden Koster calls attention to five women as follows:

Mrs. Jennie Shaw, North Platte, $25.40; Mrs. Fred Miller, Norfolk, $8.80; Mrs. Louis Sorenson, Gering, $26.05, and Clara Lucasie, Alliance, $27.60.

The game warden's report does not state how many male violators there were, but fines for the entire month totaled $922.15.

FAIR WARNING.

"Are you a competent bookkeeper?" "I've had twenty years' experience, sir."

"I think you'll do, but we have a questionnaire for you to fill out, just as a matter of form."

"All right, sir, but I'll have to tell you in advance that I don't know where we get most of our sponges."—Birmingham Age-Herald.
