MRS. THOS. S. ARMATAGE.

Ewing Advocate, Dec. 2.—Margaret Elliott was born at Alverton, Canada, August 23, 1849, and after a very brief illness departed this life November 17, 1921, at the age of 72 years, 2 months and 24 days.

She was married to Thos. S. Armatage October 8, 1872, and was to him a very devoted companion as well as a loving and wise mother to the two children who came to bless their union.

Mr. Armatage passed away about one year and a half ago, leaving Mrs. Armatage very lonely; yet always cheerful in her great hope and consciousness of life.

She leaves to mourn her loss on earth two children, Fred who lives in Nampo, Idaho, and Mrs. Ada Walling, who resides on the Armatage home place south of Ewing. Besides these there are eight grandchildren, many other relatives and a large concourse of friends who sorrow.

Funeral services were conducted in the Methodist church of this place Monday afternoon by the pastor, Rev. W. L. Phillely, and were attended by a large audience of friends and sorrowing loved ones. Immediately after the funeral, she was laid to rest in the local cemetery.

FORMER O'NEILL GIRL DISCUSSES DOMESTIC RELATIONS

Miss Mame Mullen of Omaha Public Welfare Tells of Her Work.

Miss Mayme Mullen, formerly of O'Neill, now prominently engaged in social work with the Omaha Public Welfare board, tells in a most interesting manner of the causes for domestic disagreements, as she has observed in her work, in the Omaha World Herald of Sunday. Following is the interview with Miss Mullen as it appeared Sunday:

Of the 128 cases that have passed under her supervision as a worker in the domestic relations section of the Public Welfare board since June 1, Miss Mame Mullen attributes the causes of trouble to extravagance on the wife's part, non-support on the husband's part, and general lack of patience, common sense, and willingness to play fair.

"Marriages certainly are not made in heaven," conceded Miss Mullen, when interviewed on her work. "At least, those that have come under my supervision were not, for the parties allowed in many cases the most trivial matters to disrupt their home life. In one case the wife was enraged because her husband had talked to another woman over the telephone during her absence from home. The aggrieved wife clamored for a divorce, but was pacified when she was directed to an attorney, and heard the fee required to obtain her freedom. Then she began to find solace, and eventually 'made up' with her spouse who had talked on the 'phone," said Miss Mullen.

Miss Mullen is particularly well equipped by education to advise discouraged wives and dissatisfied husbands. She was formerly head of the home economics department at the State Normal school, Peru, Neb., and knows at first hand the value of home making work, as making one's clothes, learning to cook, proper care of the sick, care of infants, following the budget system or having an allowance for the housewife, and maintaining system in housekeeping. She has considerable knowledge of the law, and is a practical business woman herself, all of which afford her basis for judgment and sympathetic understanding.

Miss Mullen, who is a sister of Arthur F. Mullen, prominent attorney, lives with her mother, Mrs. Emily Mullen, at Benson. As a side line Miss Mullen raises high bred hogs.

"It's strange what some men pick out for a wife, a frivolous thing with thin silk hose and low shoes in 38 degrees below zero weather, and then expect her to have good health, know how to keep house, and be an all-around sensible manager and good cook," says Miss Mullen. "When one or the other party brings a complaint, I listen carefully to the tale of woe, study the type of person, and call in the other party to get the other side of the story. I visit homes to get the domestic 'atmosphere,' and then advise them both to cultivate patience, to have a bit of system in their home-keeping, and for the man to give his wife an allowance. The wife should make it her business to purchase household articles and food, understand prices and values, and take the burden of marketing off her husband as much as possible. Marriage is truly a fifty-fifty job, and women should be willing to do their share."

"While it is a case of fifty-fifty, woman's inefficiency, and man's irresponsibility, which bring people into the domestic relations court, I detect specific causes which could be remedied, if they would exercise a bit of self-restraint and judgment," declares Miss Mullen. "Practically all our cases are among Omaha people, hence they are accustomed to conditions of city life. Too often the wife allows backdoor gossip to influence her against her husband and her home conditions. She tells too much of her own private affairs. Ordinarily the man does not talk freely of his family affairs with neighbors, but he hears the gossip, resents it, and more trouble results."

"One very pronounced cause of marital trouble is the poor health of the wife, and in many cases I find this due to lack of good common sense," says Miss Mullen. "Many a woman, clamoring for divorce and believing divorce to be a panacea for all her troubles, tells me that she does not get up at regular hours, prepares no breakfast for her husband, and eats no suitable food herself. I am not one who believes the human body can perform its work without proper nourishment at regular intervals. The body is a machine that must have proper care to function properly. Women who fail to prepare good meals for their husbands are slackers, and have no just cause for complaining when their husbands seek good food elsewhere. Too often we find that men use liquor to excess in cases where they do not have good food."

Of the 128 cases which have come before her, Miss Mullen has had only one woman who was an habitual drinker, and she was the mother of six children. This woman's condition was attributed by her husband to bad companions. In every case the mother has demanded custody of the children.

Miss Mullen finds that religious differences make little trouble. "I am convinced that a bit of real religion would go far to solve their troubles," she says. "Difference in nationality, however, has caused considerable trouble in married life, especially since the world war," admits Miss Mullen. "I recall a German husband and an Irish wife, and other combinations that were equally perplexing."

Miss Mullen is a firm believer in woman's place in the business world but she speaks in no uncertain terms of the husband who wants his wife to "get to work and support herself," as some of the men in domestic relations court demand of their wives.

"Woman's brain is just as keen as that of a man, and if a woman wants to work, I think she should, either to support herself or as a means of self-expression. I am heartily in favor of business training for woman, not merely as a means to making a living, but for the wholesome effect it has on the mental outlook and the physical health. Women with definite training are ready, when emergencies arise, to take care of themselves and their dependent families. This does not signify that a man who marries a girl should be a slacker, that he would want his wife to keep on supporting herself. I tell men that they must support their families and give the mother a chance to care for her children. All cases coming into our court involve the care of children. "In these days of high prices and many persons out of work, we can help most by referring cases of ill health to the Visiting Nurse association, encourage the husband and wife to keep their little home going, and have patience with each other, until the general business situation is relieved. We co-operate with other departments of public welfare to find employment, and generally comfort those who seek our advice," says Miss Mullen.

Get Away This Winter!

Get away from business and household responsibilities, care and worry. Get out into the glorious, semi-tropical atmosphere of California, where health, rest, comfort and delightful outdoor activities await you—amidst the flowers and orange blossoms beside the blue Pacific. 'Twill do you a world of good! If your neighbor has been there, ask him—he knows.

Be sure you make the most of the trip, however, and see Denver, Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, Pueblo, the Royal Gorge, Scenic Colorado, Salt Lake City and the Feather River Canyon through the Sierra Nevada Range—in daylight.

For the accommodation and convenience of Burlington patrons, main-line train 3 carries a through sleeper daily, direct to San Francisco—connecting service from Salt Lake City via the short line to Los Angeles. A delightfully—easy, care-free trip—takes a little longer, but it costs no more and is "The Route Beyond Compare if You Have Time to Spare."

Reduced-rate round-trip tickets are now on sale daily to California—long limits, liberal stop-over privileges—go one way and return via an entirely different route.

Deducting the cost of remaining at home and considering the price of things generally, you'll be surprised how reasonably the trip can be made—especially when you contemplate what this will mean to you and remember that a life which isn't pleasantly spent isn't well spent. Think it over!

Better let me make your reservations well in advance.
