Four hundred papers were written at the county teachers examinations last Saturday.

O'Neill received another honor, at the state meeting of bankers at Omaha, last week. James F. O'Donnell was named as director for the Sixth district for the State Agricultural Loan association.

Secretary John L. Quig inadvertently omitted the name of Senator James A. Donohoe from the booster list published last week. Mr. Donohoe's name should have appeared fourth on the list of subscribers.

J. L. Crawford of Emmet, is the first to officially shy his castor into the ring for sheriff, although several prospective candidates are being mentioned. Mr. Crawford Wednesday filed and paid his filing fee as a candidate at the primaries for the democratic nomination for sheriff.

President Warren G. Harding has written a letter to Gray Silver, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation voicing appreciation for the petition of some 300,000 Farm Bureau members throughout the United States commending the president for calling the conference in limitation of arms, and urging the greatest possible reduction in implements of war. The petition carried many names of Nebraska members.

Mrs. Vera Schuttler of Farmington, Missouri, who was one of the main speakers at the state convention of the Nebraska Farm Federation January 5, has been reappointed chairman of the women's committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation, according to advice received at Nebraska headquarters. A new western member has also been added to the committee, Mrs. William G. Jamison of Colorado. Other members of the committee are Mrs. John C. Ketcham of Michigan; Mrs. A. E. Bridgen of New York and Mrs. Izzetta Brown of West Virginia.

The Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation has received advice from Washington that its request has been granted by the postmaster general that third and fourth class post offices deliver mail to rural patrons who call for it on Sundays at the office. When the post office department issued its order closing these offices to rural patrons on Sundays Secretary H. D. Lutz of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation appealed to the postmaster general and to the Nebraska delegation at Washington asking that the order be rescinded. "I am thankful for the hearty co-operation I received from the Nebraska delegation," said Secretary Lutz, "and I am glad that farmers on rural routes will now be able to receive their mail on Sundays which is the one day of the week that the farmer has an opportunity to read."

The primary election will be held on Tuesday, July 18, this year.

Webb Kellogg of Sioux City, was looking after his local interests the first of the week.

Miss Anna O'Donnell returned Monday evening from a several weeks visit at Omaha and Lincoln.

H. W. Tomlinson returned last Thursday night from Omaha, where he had been visiting relatives for a week.

Miss Ida Chapman was hostess to the Martez club Monday night. Miss Grace Hammond won the honors at auction.

Mrs. Patrick Harty and Miss Irene Biglin entertained in honor of Mr. Lee Weekes Sunday evening at the apartments of Mr. and Mrs. Harty. Honors at auction were won by Miss Florence McCafferty and Mr. Thomas Brennan.

All those who are going to take part in the Boys' and Girls' Pig Club this fall should leave your name with the County Agent so that he can get lined up with the Holt County Fair, so that he can get an allowance for the premium awards.

Oldtime winter minimum temperatures are being recorded by the government thermometers at the court house, notwithstanding the frequent assertion that the winters are growing milder. The record last Saturday night was 14 degrees below zero, Sunday night 15 below and Monday night 6 degrees below. At no time during this period was the thermometer above zero.

It is barely possible that the animus behind the attacks of the parrot on county officials both republican and democrat may be the failure of its owner to feed at the public trough in recent years. The records at the court house show that in 1919 George A. Miles, owner of the parrot, drew in county warrants the very sizeable sum of $2318.20. This was at a time when prices of material had not reached the peak and when the parrot salary roll was not unduly heavy, most of the labor about the office being performed by members of the family. The claim register, according to the parrot, shows that from January 8, 1921, to January 4, 1922, D. H. Cronin, owner of The Frontier, has filed claims totalling $2091.70, although material prices have not receded to the 1918 and 1919 levels and The Frontier pays a living wage to its employees. The parrot bills to the county exceed those of The Frontier more than a third, despite these facts. County officials are to be commended for refusing longer to accede to the exorbitant demands of the parrot although their refusal to do so subjects them to the abuse of the bird.

Estes P. Taylor assistant to Chas. E. Gummels of the organization department of the American Farm Bureau Federation met last week with the executive committee of the Nebraska Farm Bureau to complete arrangements for a membership campaign to be inaugurated in this state. The campaign will be carried on jointly between the state and national federation under a plan devised by the national office, the expense to be divided between the two organizations.

At the first meeting of the executive board of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, E. P. Brown of Davey, who was elected by the state convention as a member of the board, advised that owing to business reasons it would be impossible for him to serve, though he wishes the Federation well and is highly interested in the work. John P. Davis of Geneva, was selected by the board to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Brown's inability to serve. Mr. Davis is one of Fillmore county's most successful farmers and has been prominent in farm organization work, being president of the Fillmore county Farm Bureau.
