Acceptable Advice.
"You get a great deal of gratuitous advice from your constituents, I dare say."
"Oh, yes," replied Senator Spotsworth.
"Ever act on any of it?"
"Occasionally. Some of the most enjoyable vacations I ever had were taken at the suggestion of constituents who thought I was overworked."

Many ambitious men and women live only half a life—and don't know it

No person whose nerves are continually irritated, whose appetite and digestion are disturbed, or who doesn't sleep well has more than half his normal chance for success in life. For weakness, debility, anemia and general lack of tone are a serious handicap to anybody.

Those who drink tea or coffee are often sufferers from these conditions. Tea and coffee contain caffeine, a substance which has a decided stimulant action on the nerves and brain cells.

Each cup of strong coffee contains about as large a dose of caffeine as your doctor would ordinarily give to a very sick person.

You can readily see that the effect of giving this stimulant regularly to a well person might finally have a tendency to make him sick.

If you want to avoid a very common cause of irritation and enjoy restful sleep, good digestion, and all the feeling of vigor and robust endurance that comes to healthy, normal people, quit tea and coffee, and drink Postum, instead. It is a rich, coffee-like cereal beverage—perfectly delicious!

Order Postum from your grocer today. Drink this fragrant, aromatic beverage and see how much better you'll feel—able to do more without becoming fatigued—as thousands have discovered for themselves.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

Greatest Waste Is Human Waste.

By J. H. Tregoe, Secretary-Treasurer National Association of Credit Men.
When we talk about waste we often fail to recognize that after all the sum total of human waste is the biggest with which our nation and its industries must contend. Every unemployed man adds a unit to this waste. Where two men are doing what was but one man's job, there is again the additional unit of human waste. Wherever efficiency and directness fail to control in the production and distribution of commodities the sum total of waste is almost inconceivable.

If we had some means of determining the intrinsic value of one's time we could formulate some scheme for appraising the immensity of this waste and what it means to our economic life. The great difficulty in controlling overhead these days—and we have frequently pointed out the relations of this to profit making and liquidation—leads us to appreciate just what it means for any productive unit to be unemployed, or for two or more units to be occupied with a job where one with the proper initiative and powers would suffice.

Here is a subject that has been seriously overlooked in the philosophy and control of labor organizations. The belief that doing less work or working less number of hours would give employment to more men is just the kind of philosophy that injures enterprise, destroys initiative and creates an immense waste for the nation. The call comes in this present juncture to make time and effort 100 per cent. valuable, that whatever we do shall represent the best we have in us, and be just as productive as any competitive unit could. If this spirit should embrace the nation, how rapidly waste and overhead would decline, how rapidly would we have commodities at proper prices, how quickly would confidence be restored. We assess the fire waste of the nation at $500,000,000, the bad debt waste of the nation at $250,000,000 annually; but these figures fade into insignificance when we consider the total human waste. We appeal to each citizen to rise to the situation and contribute to its productivity and to its progress in exact accord with his powers, to indulge no false philosophies to the end that we shall not make it necessary for the highly efficient to pay for our defects and indifference.

From the Springfield Republican.

A political revolution is almost implied in the succession to the chairmanship of the Senate finance committee of Senator McCumber of North Dakota. Not since the present finance committee was created in civil war times it was still combined with the appropriations committee—has it had a chairman from any northern state farther west than Ohio.

Senator Fessenden, of Maine, was chairman of the old finance and appropriations committee in the civil war; then came in turn as chairmen of the finance committee proper, John Sherman, of Ohio, and Mr. Morrill, of Vermont. Mr. Aldrich, of Rhode Island, and Mr. Penrose, of Pennsylvania, their republican successors, kept this important chairmanship in the Atlantic coast states which remain the greatest industrial and financial district of the country.

While the succession to the chairmanship of a North Dakota senator is due to the working of the seniority principle, the truth is that he could not be sidetracked if the eastern republican leaders should attempt it. Behind Mr. McCumber is the western farm bloc, which will stand no nonsense. The ablest republican member of the present finance committee who hails from the west is Reed Smoot, of Utah. Eastern interests would by far prefer Mr. Smoot to Mr. McCumber because he is more inclined to accept eastern views and is a stout champion of a sales tax as a substitute for the income surtaxes. Then too, while McCumber is far from being an agrarian radical, he comes from North Dakota, the birthplace of the nonpartisan league, and it is "going some" to have North Dakota contribute the chairman of the great finance committee of the United States Senate.

Senator McCumber comes up for re-election next November and naturally the western farm interests will get what they want out of him in tariff and financial legislation in the present session. If he should be defeated back home "Wall street" could find compensation in the fact that Senator Smoot would succeed him. But if anything sudden should then happen to Mr. Smoot, "Wall street" would have a fit. The republican next in line after Mr. Smoot is Robert M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin.

American History in Schools.

From the Syracuse Post-Standard.
The board of education of New York has received repeated complaints that the text books in American history in use in the schools are pro-British or anti-British. A committee has gone over four textbooks against which objections were made and has made recommendations, which are not made public, doubtless because the committee does not want a new shower of objections, founded more upon racial prejudice than upon desire to get the facts straight for the minds of pupils.

The rule for writing American history for schools and colleges and for the reading of patriotic Americans and un-reconciled aliens is simple, although it is not always easy to follow. The rule is to tell the truth, without unfair emphasis or exaggeration.

A Fence Viewing Journey.

The president again expresses a desire to visit the Pacific coast and Alaska. He had such a journey in mind for last summer, but was forced to abandon it on account of public duties here at headquarters. Congress did not show the speed expected, and sat all through the summer.

This second plan depends on congress. If the tables on Capitol hill can be cleared by early summer the president will be able to go. Otherwise not. A trip to Alaska for observation purposes calls for summer weather.

A trip across the continent by the president next year would operate as a good party investment. The people would turn out in large numbers in his honor, and speeches would be inevitable. The people would demand them, and the president could not well decline.

The effect on November would be so much to the good. The republicans want to control the next congress, both for the sake of their legislative program and for the prestige the victory would give them for 1924, and the west and the northwest are intimately in their calculations.

Beauty.

Beauty attracts me ever where it dwells—
On windy bays where the white breaker races;
In sunsets, and in orchards where stout braces
Support fruit burdened branches; in bright shells
Remembering still old Ocean's sounding swells;
In yearning towers of cities; women's faces;
In the fresh charm of winsome girlish graces;
In all life's gifts whose loveliness excels.

But beauty lures me, too, though oft deep hidden,
Where one must seek it with the eyes of dream—
In rain drenched streets; or where upon a hill
A lone tree stands; in clouds by storm
In silvered hair bereft of youth's bright gleam;
In frail, dwarfed flowers on a window sill.
—Charles Winke.

An idea of the physical size of the late Senator Penrose may be gathered from the fact that he did not attend the theater frequently, not because he had no appreciation of the stage, but because the seats were not large enough.

Senators Newberry, Sterling, and Edge read prepared statements in behalf of Senator Newberry, and permitted no interruptions. Senator John Sharp Williams then remarked that "speakers who have to read their remarks have something to conceal."

Normalcy seems to be returning to Europe, too. Czecho-Slovakia has just conducted a nation wide competition to find the "most beautiful woman."

The Reason.
At a football game an old gentleman was watching from the grandstand, and at the end of the first half he pulled a bulky cigar case from his pocket and, turning to an enthusiast sitting beside him, asked: "Do you smoke?"
The enthusiast, expecting a nice cigar, promptly replied: "Yes."
"Ah! Then you don't mind my smoking?" smilingly replied the old gentleman.
