The freight on the east end of the Burlington between O'Neill and Sioux City, went in the ditch Wednesday afternoon. The wreck is thought to have been caused by a broken rail. Engineer Carver was pinned underneath the cab of his engine and sustained a slight injury to his arm; no other injuries are reported. The passenger train was unable to pass the wreckage last night.

Casper Herald: A. J. Cunningham, president of the Casper National bank, who was shot several weeks ago, when a Mexican, who is now serving a penitentiary sentence for the crime, shot up the Richards & Cunningham store, is steadily improving at his home on South Central street. Because of the severe shock and the shattered condition of the bone in the upper part of the injured arm, Mr. Cunningham's recovery is necessarily slow, but marked improvement is noted from day to day. A. E. Biglin, who was shot in the leg in the same fusillade, was able to leave his home several days ago.

The parties who lost their crowbar, while stealing lumber off the Art Wilson ranch near Emmet recently, when the dogs frightened them away, may have same by calling upon Dougal Allen and proving property.

50,000 trout arrived here over the Burlington last Saturday night and were placed in the different trout streams north of O'Neill. About half of the trout were the brown species, something new to the waters of Holt county. Will O'Brian, superintendent of the state fish hatcheries at Southend, Nebraska, claims that they are very prolific and are exceptionally fast growers, attaining the usual weight of five or six pounds in three years. The fish were in charge of Special Messenger Hinkle of the hatcheries, who accompanied the young trout to their new homes in the waters of the Eagle, Bluebird and Steel Creek. Mr. Hinkle thinks that we have some of the best trout streams that he has ever seen and declared his intentions of coming back and spending a few days angling, later in the season. About 20,000 trout were left at Page to be placed in the nearby streams.

The new one story building erected by the Hanford Produce company is completed and is now being used by the company for the manufacture of ice cream. The supplies arrived here the first of the week and the ice cream business will be in full swing ere long.

United States Marshal D. H. Cronin was here over Sunday looking after business matters and visiting with friends. Mr. Cronin says that business is on the increase in Omaha, and he is quite optimistic in regard to business condition for the coming year.

FORMER ATKINSON MERCHANT MISSING

Sam Bailin, former member of the firm of Bailin Brothers, of Atkinson, is missing from his home at Sioux City and fears that he has been murdered or entertained by his family and friends. Bailin, who removed from Atkinson to Sioux City a little over a year ago, had been negotiating for the purchase of a store at Sibley, Iowa, and one day last week telephoned his wife at their Sioux City residence that he would be detained down town until after supper to confer with a traveling man. Failing to return home that night search was instituted for him the next morning and bloodstained clothing known to have belonged to him found on the banks of Big Sioux river. The coat contained $32 in currency when found, indicating that he had not been robbed if murdered. Sioux City papers have the following to say Thursday regarding his disappearance:

"No trace of Sam Bailin, 609 Otoe street, wealthy Sioux City merchant who disappeared Thursday night, has been found. The Big Sioux river for a distance of 300 feet from the spot where his blood stained clothes were found Friday has been blasted and dragged. Police worked all Sunday morning at the river in hopes of locating the body of the missing man."

"In case Bailin was tossed into the river or committed suicide by drowning, it is not likely that his body would be found near the spot where he went down, police declare. The river is considerably swollen and the current near where his clothes were found is very swift."

"Members of the Bailin family declare that the merchant did not commit suicide, but probably is being held for ransom by a gang of men, who believed he had several thousand dollars on his person."

"A reward of $500 for information regarding her husband has been offered by Mrs. Bailin."
