

"Faster, Jimmy, faster!
You know mother said
there won't be any breakfast till we bring the Kellogg's Corn Flakes!"

Compare flavor and crispness! KELLOGG'S against any Corn Flakes you ever ate!

Takes the rough edges off hopping out of the covers these snappy mornings just thinking about that luscious bowl of Kellogg's Corn Flakes waiting down-stairs! Big and brown and crispy-crunchy flakes—a revelation in appetizing flavor, wonderful in wholesome goodness—the most delicious cereal you ever tasted!

Instantly you like Kellogg's, not only because of appealing flavor, but because Kellogg's are not "leathery"! Kellogg's are a delight to eat, as the little folks as well as the big ones will tell you! And Kellogg's ought to be best—they're the original Corn Flakes! You have only to make comparison to realize that quickly!

KELLOGG'S Corn Flakes for tomorrow morning's spread! They get the day started right! Insist upon KELLOGG'S Corn Flakes in the RED and GREEN package—the kind that are not leathery!

MORE PROHIBITION.

No amendment to the Constitution ever received the universal endorsement that did the Eighteenth amendment. It was ratified within less than thirteen months by the required thirty-six states and up to date has received the endorsement of forty-six legislatures.

One of the grave duties of all the American people is to obey the laws of their native or adopted land of which laws prohibition is one.

William Jennings Bryan in an interview with the Philadelphia North American of March 6th, discussing prohibition law enforcement said: "We had three leaks of importance. One caused by the large number of store houses containing whiskey. This was corrected by the concentration of whiskey into a few store houses where it can be better guarded. The second leak was caused by the employment of wets to enforce a dry law. This was overcome by removal and better appointments. The third leak is found in the smuggling of liquor in from the outside, chiefly

HOLCOMB-LUNDSTROM.

(Chambers Sun.)
At 2:30 p. m., on Tuesday, March 21, 1922, a very pretty wedding occurred at the Congregational Parsonage at Douglas, Wyoming, when Mr. David Holcomb and Miss Edith Lundstrom were united in marriage by the Pastor of that denomination. The bride was beautifully attired in a gown of brown canton crepe. The groom wore a gray suit. They were attended by a sister of the bride, Miss Ethel Lundstrom and a friend Mr. W. A. McMahan.

The groom is the youngest son of Mr. A. E. Holcomb living two miles northwest of town, where he was born and grew to manhood. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Lundstrom who formerly lived on their farm eight miles east of town, but are now making their home in Ewing. Miss Edith has been teaching school the past winter near Douglas, Wyoming.

Mr. and Mrs. Holcomb returned to Chambers in a Ford, having driven the car through all kinds of weather and all kinds of roads, making an ideal honeymoon trip of it, which will be recalled with pleasure in after years. They are now getting nicely located on the A. E. Holcomb homestead where their friends will receive a royal welcome when they call.

Both are estimable young people and have won many warm friends in and about Chambers and the Sun joins with them in extending congratulations and wishing much joy to this happy couple.

ORCHARD NEWS.

It is reported that H. R. Adams, west of town, departed at a rather early hour Saturday morning for parts unknown.

Mrs. Wm. Adams, who was recently divorced from her husband, together with her children, left Orchard Saturday.

L. W. Jay had his face somewhat burned and his whiskers singed one day last week from a pan of grease which took fire. The pan had been put in the oven and neglected to be taken out until it became so hot, smoke began issuing from the oven, whereupon Mr. Jay grabbed the pan and started for the door, when it caught fire and the blaze flew up in his face.

from the Bahamas. This will be stopped. Moonshining existed when we had saloons. This will decrease with better enforcement." Mr. Bryan goes on to say that: "A press dispatch reported that 2,500 autos were stolen in Philadelphia last year, 20 per cent of which were never found. Are you going then to repeal the law against stealing? The law against murder has been on the statute books for thousands of years, and yet killing goes on and not all the murderers are caught. Shall we repeal the law against murder? Prohibition has disclosed an unpleasant fact, viz: That in many peoples, appetite is stronger than the reverence for law."

If prohibition enforced itself we should not need it. In the days following the civil war when the government was hard pressed for money it was fooled into accepting a proposition to impose a tax on the booze business as a means of raising revenue. Do you think we will again fall for this old liquor revenue ruse? The people have learned their lesson. They have learned by fifty years of actual experience that liquor revenue is a liability and not an asset.

We hear much of deaths from poison hooch, of crazed drinkers of prohibition substitutes for liquor, but the cold facts show that prohibition cut in half the deaths from drink. So much is said about the poisonous substitutes for liquor that people are prone to forget that even the so-called best liquors in the old license day were poisonous and claimed an appalling death toll each year. There is this difference, the substitutes act a little more quickly and the very fact that they are so sudden in striking the death blow is an effective danger signal that is hurting the bootlegger trade. The hooch problem bids fair to solve itself.

Prohibition has passed the stage of discussion in America. It is now a matter of law. We do not need new laws so much as we need the enforcement of the laws we have. The issue before the world today is moral, not political, and the sooner we admit it by cleaning the melting pot and throwing out the slag the better for all concerned.
