VENUE CHANGE IS DENIED IN SIMMONS' CASE.

Walter Simmons, charged with the murder of Frank Pahl of Spencer, last May by beating him on the head with a hammer, will be tried at the regular October term of the Boyd county district court at Butte.

The motion of the defense for a change of venue, was over ruled Monday by District Judge Robert R. Dickson at a special session of district court at Butte.

Immediately on the over-ruling of the motion Attorney Willis for Simmons asked that a continuance later than July 31, the date previously fixed for trial, be granted to enable the taking of special testimony of foreign witnesses for the defendant. Counsel for the state, intimating that if the continuance asked for was granted it would also desire additional time to investigate the past record of Simmons and the reliability of the Montana witnesses proposed to be summoned for the defense, stated that it would require at least until September to fully prepare the state's case.

Expressing an unwillingness to incur upon the already overburdened taxpayers of Boyd county the expense of a special term of court in September, and to call the hundred or more persons, who necessarily would be involved in a special term of court, away from their agricultural pursuits at such a time, Judge Dickson set the trial for the opening day of the October term. The postponement will enable the state to call and eliminate much immaterial testimony and to dispense with immaterial witnesses, who at an earlier date might have had to be subpoenaed in a hurried prosecution.

Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Coover and niece, Miss Louise Reif, and Mr. and Mrs. George Hunter of Page, were in O'Neill Wednesday.

Judge Robert R. Dickson is visiting his brother at Osage, Iowa.
