Western Canada

Wonderful Stock Raising Country

Vast stretches of undeveloped fertile agricultural land of the highest productiveness await the settler in Western Canada. The land possesses the same character of soil as that which has produced the high quality of cereals that have carried off the world's premier honors so many times in the past ten years.

Native Grasses are Rich and Abundant

Cattle ratten upon them without any grain being fed. Limited capital on high-priced lands is not a success, neither can the tenant burdened with high rents hope to succeed. The place to overcome these is in Western Canada—where land is cheap where a home may be made at low cost, and where dairying, mixed farming and stock-raising give an assured profit.

Land may be purchased from the Railway Companies or from responsible land companies or from private owners. Free homestead of 160 acres each are to be had in the more remote districts.

BEGGED HIM TO GIVE UP SWEETHEART

Mrs. Rosier Collapses Frequently While Describing Tragic Scene With Husband and "Othe Woman."

Universal Service.
Philadelphia, Oct. 30.—"Oh, please give him up! Please give him up! If you won't do it for me, do it for our baby!"

Mrs. Catherine Rosier today spoke from the witness stand the words of her humility that had failed to touch the heart of Mildred Reckitt, whom she shot to death with her husband, Oscar.

The words seemed to come in a voice from an unreal world. When she had spoken then she fell forward, a crumpled little heap.

It was one of the many unconscious moments into which the anemic wasted defendant sank during the long hours she was kept on the stand.

Finda "Other Woman."

From the endless list of questions put to her from attorneys on both sides this story was drawn from her pale lips: "I opened the door of my husband's office. There they were on a couch. My husband had his coat off. I screamed and they jumped up. I don't remember after that."

Her voice was barely a whisper. The shot of a bursting motor tire broke the stillness of the court room. She leaped to her feet and while tears streamed down her cheeks, she cried: "I loved him too much to kill him. I wanted to kill myself before them to show them what they had driven me to. His brother, Arthur, had told me I would find them there like that. Arthur had been making familiar suggestions to me. Oscar had told me his brother might as well have me as anyone else, for he was through with me and if I didn't like it to take the baby and get out of the house."

Love Diary Final Blow.

"That day Arthur told me to come to lunch because there was something important I should know. Afterwards I went to my husband's office and found the love diary he had kept. I couldn't stand it. I went out and bought a gun and came back to end my life. 'I begged her to give him up. I tried to dress myself attractively for him. She laughed and said he wouldn't notice me, that it was no use trying to look pretty. Once he told me how he would choke my life out if I didn't quit choking my life about Miss Reckitt. Once he hit me in the face and another time he bent my hands back until I was exhausted from the pain."

When I was in the hospital Arthur came to see me but not my husband. Arthur told me it wasn't work that kept my husband away, but a woman."

"Caught," Dying Statement.

Alfred I. Fisher, a hospital orderly, quoted Miss Reckitt as saying just before she died: "We were caught by his wife and there is no statement to make." He added: "She said it was an awful disgrace to her family. Later Mrs. Rosier went to the bedside and told Miss Reckitt she had warned her and the girl said yes."

The case will probably go to the jury Tuesday.

HUGHES DISCUSSES FOREIGN POLICIES

Explains in Detail in Boston Speech "Stay-at-Home" Attitude of Harding Administration.

Universal Service.

Boston, Oct. 30.—Avoidance of "controversies not involving our own interests" and "the protection of American interests at every place from whatever sovereignty may be in charge," constitute jointly the keystone of the foreign policy of President Harding's administration.

Such was the theme of an address delivered by Secretary of State Hughes at a mass meeting in Symphony Hall here tonight. In a complete review of what he regards as the diplomatic accomplishments of the Harding administration, Mr. Hughes discussed the foreign relations of the United States from the peace treaty with Germany through the conference for limitation of armaments, to the present problems presented by the Near East and conditions in Mexico.

In commenting on individual negotiations the secretary took frequent occasion to make general statements of policy, thus making his address a thorough exposition of American foreign relations under his guidance.

Although avoiding direct mention of the League of Nations and the policies advocated by former President Wilson, Mr. Hughes credited President Harding with "no attempts to establish a one-man rule," and asserted that "it would be difficult to imagine a worse tangle in our foreign relations than that with which this administration was required to deal."

Summary of Policy.
Mr. Hughes' expressed opinions on outstanding questions confronting the state department may be summarized as follows:

The League of Nations: The American People will never consent to assume any obligations, moral or legal, which would fetter their appropriate freedom of action in unknown contingencies. The European situation: The main problems of Europe cannot be solved, save as Europe helps herself; and the United States should not embroil itself in controversies not involving its own interests, but "knowing out of age-long rivalries and conflicting interests of European powers having policies which we do not assume to criticize but in which we have no share."

The conferring for limitation of armaments: Ratification of the treaties by the United States, Great Britain and Japan, the three great naval powers, "precludes all thought of the ultimate failure of the work of the conference." It "lights the pathway of hope for a world that is weary of war," but "without committing the United States to any allegiance."

Mexico And Near East.
Mexico: The United States has no desire to interfere in the internal concerns of Mexico, but "it is an essential condition of international intercourse that obligations shall be met and that there shall be no resort to confiscation and repudiation." The United States is "not insistent on the form of any particular assurance to American citizens against confiscation, but we desire in the light of the experience of recent years, the substance of such protection."

The Near East: The United States will avoid becoming involved "with the political ambitions of European powers which have made the Near East a check-board for diplomatic play," but "we claim the protection of American interests at every place from whatever sovereignty may be in charge" and "we trust that in the interests of freedom of opportunity there will be no endeavor to parcel out spheres of special economic influence."

In discussing the problem offered by the situation in the Near East Secretary Hughes expressed himself as firmly opposed to military intervention by the United States.

It discovered an efficacious treatment for leprosy, and made rapid progress toward finding cures for other diseases. The foundation was originally endowed with a $2,000,000 fund.

DENY ITALY TO ATTEMPT ANNEXATION

Spokesman for New Premier Asserts Mussolini Will Maintain Peaceful Foreign Relations.

BY C. F. BERTELLI,
Universal Service Correspondent.
Special Cable Dispatch.

Paris, Oct. 30.—Alarmist reports that Italy's friendly relations with Jugo Slavia are endangered by the fascist triumph were denied tonight by an official close to Mussolini, the new Italian premier.

"Stories that the fascisti are determined to abrogate the Rapallo treaty and annex Dalmatia, including Fiume, are entirely unofficial and should not be taken as an indication of Mussolini's policy," declared this official.

The indications tonight are that the government will be a practical, benevolent dictatorship for several months, until the elections can safely be held. There are no disturbances and no reason to fear that there will be any.

The whole of Italy is wildly acclaiming Mussolini. At the same time it may be authoritatively denied that the new government will radically depart from Italy's constitutional foundation policy.

There will be no open break with England, according to information here. French opinion may be described as sympathetic with the new government, while fearing that the example of fascism may be seized on by German extremists to bring back the monarchy.

Summed up, the situation while epoch-making so far as Italian domestic history is concerned, is not likely to have any resounding repercussions elsewhere in Europe.

Special Wireless Dispatch.

Berlin, Oct. 30.—The vice president of the fascist parliament group and commander of the fascist military forces entering Rome, has assured King Victor Emmanuel that the movement is not against the dynasty of the throne, according to a dispatch from Zurich to the National Gazette.

The king wept with joy, it is declared, when the fascist leaders called at the palace and gave him the assured assurance. The parliament deputy had tears in his eyes when he made the formal declaration. The king was so touched that, with tears running down his cheeks, he embraced the fascist leader.

General Diaz, commander-in-chief of the fascist army, which is estimated at 1,000,000 men, declared to a representative of the Nazione:

"How can it be spoken of as an uprising when it is a movement that has for its goal the welfare of the fatherland, the future of Italy and the enforcement of the will of the nation?"

MUSSOLINI IN CONTROL.

By Henry Wood, U. P. Correspondent.
Rome, Oct. 30.—"Within a few hours you'll have not only a ministry but a government," Benito Mussolini, leader of the fascisti, shouted to the crowds today from the Quirinal.

He had just emerged from a conference with King Victor Emmanuel. "Long live the king."

The crowd, surging below, sent back a roar of cheers. The demand of Mussolini, leader of the fascist, that complete control of the government be handed over to his organization was met by King Victor Emmanuel when Mussolini was asked to form a ministry.

Back of Mussolini's demand was his army of 800,000 adherents ready to act if the government was not handed over peacefully.

The fascist leader refused to accept a compromise. His invitation to form a ministry only came after he had refused point blank to participate in any cabinet headed by former Premier Salandra.

Visits D'Annunzio.
According to reliable information, the new premier, enroute to Rome, stopped off at Lake Garda to have an audience with Gabriele D'Annunzio, Italy's poet-artist. This is taken to mean that the hero of Fiume may become a power in Italian politics.

The fascisti will rule Italy without the consent of parliament, the majority of whose members are socialists and bitterly opposed to the strong monarchistic tendencies of Mussolini. It is believed that parliament will be dissolved on November 7, when it convenes and that Mussolini will appeal to the country for support.

The bourse in Rome has been closed until November 6. The fascist took over most of the opposition newspapers.

The coup of the fascisti, who had concentrated at several points in Italy and were prepared to fight their way into power, was marked with only a few disorders at Cremona, six fascisti were killed by police when the "Black shirts" attempted to take over the government. One man was killed in Rome yesterday afternoon in a conflict between the fascisti and communists.

Unless some new evidence of a definite nature is produced by friends of Mrs. Margaret Carleton, the coroner's verdict that Mrs. Leonard Jacob Christler, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, and then committed suicide, will remain as final and no further effort will be made to throw more light on the case.
