The Kidnaped Princess
By DOROTHY WHITCOMB
Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

"Her Serene Highness Princess Beatrice of Luxemburg has joined the fast augmenting ranks of women explorers," said Randolph at the club. "She has left on a three years' trip through Central Arabia, and expects to emerge from the desert near Bagdad at the end of that period. It will be remembered that her divorce from the prince of Wessel, after four years of married life made much conversation at the courts of Europe last summer."

"That's interesting," put in Bruce. "I didn't know princesses were human enough to be granted divorces. By the way, what's become of Gardiner?"
"What has become of Gardiner?" asked somebody else.
"I've seen him," said little Jim Barnes. "But either he has falling eyesight or he is living incog. Just now, I saw him stepping out of an auto in front of a house in Yonkers, where I happened to be last week. Ordinary house, ordinary auto, but the lady he was with—say! She was a stunner. Black, flashing eyes, and such an air. I'd know her anywhere in ten years' time."

"Speaking of Gardiner," said Trevelyan. "I'm going to tell you something. As you know, Gardiner and I went to Europe together some five years ago. We stopped at a little hotel in Spa. There were some interesting people at our hotel. One of them was a Belgian countess—at least, so she called herself.
"I don't know how Gardiner struck up an acquaintance with her, but before a week was out she and he were always together, walking in the woods, listening to the band, or sitting outside the casino side by side.
"We three were sitting out in front of the hotel. I could see the countess' big eyes, fixed on Gardiner's; I could see the tremulous fluttering of her heart under her corsage.
"I made some trivial excuse and rose, promising to be back in half an hour or so. I took a few turns up and down the open space in front of the hotel; and then a big, burly man dressed like an officer and accompanied by two smaller men, also in uniform, came out of the hotel and walked straight toward Gardiner and the countess.
"I looked round after them. At the sight of the big, burly man the countess seemed to grow pale as death. She rose to her feet. Gardiner rose also, but I could see he had no inkling of the situation. Then, in the twinkling of an eye, the big man raised her in his arms and ran back with her through the hotel dining room, carrying her as though she had been a bag of feathers.
"Of course Gardiner went after her. But the two men who had been with the big man contrived to get in his way and trip him, so that when at last we reached the hotel door together there was no sign of an automobile or of the countess. The maid had vanished, and the proprietor seemed quite indignant when I questioned him about the kidnaping, and accused me of being inebriated.
"Gardiner spent the night rushing about the streets, in the wild hope that the countess was being held.
"On the lowest step of the hotel Gardiner and I found a lady's visiting card. It had evidently dropped, or had been thrown there by intent as the girl was being carried out of the hotel. On it was engraved the name of the lady who is now, or was till recently, Princess Beatrice of Luxemburg.
"So Gardiner had the clue, but that was all. I went with him to Luxemburg and we stood before the big, old-fashioned palace of the ruler, and watched the sentry walking up and down with his rifle over his shoulder. Not much use trying to get past him!
"We spent, I think, three days in this sort of nonsense, and then we read in the newspapers that the princess was living in seclusion at the court of Wessel, paying a visit to the mother of the young prince whom, it was rumored, she was to marry. Next day the engagement was announced. That day we left for America.
"He never got over it," Trevethan continued. "I am sure that he was in love with her all the time. I know that about the time of her marriage he went big game stalking in the Rockies without a guide, and was away for months, living in complete solitude. However, if you really saw him in Yonkers—but I guess you were mistaken, Jimmy. Gardiner isn't the sort of man to go to Yonkers. He hates the suburbs. Unless he was making a call here. . . . By the way, I'd like to see that piece about the princess in the newspaper."
Somebody picked it up and handed it to him, and Trevethan read it.
"Well, she still has the traveling instinct," he said, "and if she eludes her father when she was at Spa I shouldn't be surprised if she did succeed in crossing the peninsula. Why, here's her likeness! She hasn't changed a particle since those days when I knew her. But this doesn't begin to do her justice. Hello, Jimmy! What ails you?"
Jimmy Barnes had picked up the paper and was staring at the likeness.
"Oh, nothing much," he answered, laying it down. "Only this happens to be the lady I saw with Gardiner in Yonkers."

AN OPEN LETTER TO C. W. BEAL.
Dear Sir:
A canvass of the Congressional Situation leaves your position on many question of moment to the voters of the 6th Congressional District very uncertain. It is not so much what you say as it is the company you keep that casts a doubt over your position on live issues. The dead ones you announce on your platform are of no concern.
You claim you are running as a "progressive" with the Democratic endorsement. At the primary you received 9000 democratic and 2000 progressive votes. Mr. Hitchcock, an able representative of the party that "endorsed" you, is a candidate for re-election as U. S. Senator.
Are you supporting Senator Hitchcock or your progressive nominee Mr. Beebe? Or are you supporting the Republican nominee Mr. Howell? Will you advise the voters of the district where you stand on U. S. Senator? It is important for in the event of your election a measure advocated by you in the house and opposed in the Senate by Mr. Hitchcock would be futile of results.
The regular Congressional term in our district is clear, you will vote for yourself of course. But the short term presents an anomaly. Are you for Maupin, a tried and true democrat on all issues, or will you support Minort, the progressive and labor candidate, supported by the same group who are supporting you? It is important that the farmer know where your support will go for the short term.
Then at home in Custer county, while you have been a member of every "ism," group or party that promised an office, and last December at Grand Island announced that you had cut out Democracy in toto, with each party now presenting a ticket for county offices, will you say which ticket you will support so that the discriminating voter can locate your party alignment? It will hardly do to pull the "best man" dodge. But in the event you do please advise whether the candidates who have received the non-partisan endorsement have your hearty support. Are you supporting the Democratic county ticket or are you supporting the Progressive county ticket?
The legislative ticket is important. It fixes state appropriations and necessarily the state tax. Are you supporting Purcell the democrat, or J. B. Walker, the progressive, and are you for John Walker, a true democrat, or John Deitz, the progressive?
One other question. You announce H. J. Edmisten as chairman of your campaign committee and he is sending out some rotten stuff about your opponent, and at the same time begging for $5.00 to help dirty work along. Is this done with your knowledge and consent?
And as your progressive campaign manager for the 2000 progressive votes you received at the primary, does Edmisten also "manage" the 9000 democrats who voted for you?
These are "live" issues and should receive your immediate attention.
Another thing: The Association against the Prohibition Amendment

under date of October 18, 1922, made public from Washington, D. C., a preliminary list of 202 candidates for Congress it would support as LIBERALS. The purpose is to get members in Congress who are in favor of modifying the Volstead Act so as to permit the manufacture and sale of wine and beer. Your name is in that list. DO YOU ACCEPT THAT WET ENDORSEMENT?
Awaiting your early reply, I am still for Bob Simmons.
Respectfully,
J. S. McGRAW.

FOR SECOND TERM.

To The Voters of Holt County:
As it is utterly impossible for me to spare the time from the office to make a complete campaign of the entire county, I am taking this method of calling your attention to the fact that I am a candidate for re-election to the office of County Clerk for the second term.
I have served but one term and if my services have met with your approval I would appreciate your support and influence at the coming election November 7th.
Respectfully,
E. F. PORTER.

ATTENTION VOTERS OF HOLT COUNTY
I have lived in Holt county all my life, have taught in the rural schools for four years, in the grades and high school for eight years.
I hold a Professional Life Certificate from the State of Nebraska. I have served one term as your county superintendent and have made an earnest effort to give you efficient and honest service. Being thoroughly familiar with school conditions in this County I am earnestly soliciting your support at the November election in order to enable me to continue in the work and complete the plans, I have made for the improvement in education in this county.

The following case is but one of many occurring daily in O'Neill. It is an easy matter to verify it. Ask your neighbor.
J. M. Ashley, says: "My back has bothered me and pained so I could hardly keep going. Sharp pains darted through the small of my back and the kidney secretions were highly colored and unnatural. The last attack came on after having the measles. After taking the first few of Doan's Kidney Pills I could see a change for the better and kept on with them until I had used three boxes which I got at Reardon Bros.' Drug Store. I was cured of the trouble and my kidneys were put in a strong and healthy condition again."
