

"Who said Kellogg's Corn Flakes? Oh, goodly Jane, bet we're going to have KELLOGG'S for our supper, 'see we won't dream!"

Leave it to the kiddies to pick Kellogg's Corn Flakes—they are never tough or leathery!

Put a bowl of KELLOGG'S Corn Flakes and a bowl of imitations in front of any youngster! Then see KELLOGG'S disappear! Try the experiment yourself!

It's great to know the difference in corn flakes—the difference between the genuine and the "just-as-goods"! Kellogg's have a wonderful flavor that would win your favor by itself—but when you know that Kellogg all-the-time crispness! Well—they just make you glad! Kellogg's are never tough or leathery or hard to eat!

Kellogg's will snap-up kiddie appetites something wonderful! And, our word for it—let the littlest have their fill—just like Daddy must have his! You'll never know how delicious corn flakes can be until you eat KELLOGG'S! You will know the KELLOGG package because it is RED and GREEN! Look for it!

WOMEN OF THE ISSUE.

Aforetime, woman was supposed to be emotional, ultra-sentimental, to arrive at her conclusions by instinct and intuition, and to be an easy mark for the trickster. It must have been the poets who, in their gush about "woman, lovely woman," tried to shelve her on a pedestal.

Present indications are that she is a very sane, "hard-headed" individual who knows what she wants and why. Ask any intelligent woman on the street, who has been studying politics—and who of them has not?—"Do you think it makes any difference which party is in power, and do you know how you are going to vote?"

She is all ready for you and can give you reasons, 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, why she is going to vote the Republican ticket. She can name them to you on her fingers. They are:

1. Peace. This is a big enough reason to overshadow everything else. It means America will mind its own business and keep out of entangling alliances. In friendliness with the nations, it led in the movement for limitation of armaments and settlement of disputes around the conference table instead of on the battlefield.

2. Tariff. Women are strong for protection to home industries, to keep America employed and incomes coming. They know the evil effects of buying abroad, of filling our markets with foreign imports.

3. Economy. The Budget idea—established by this administration—is no stranger to women. They heartily approve of the millions and millions saved by Republican economy in the lines of government business. Forty dollars per family—in taxes—is not to be despised.

4. Farming. Whether or not she is directly connected with agriculture, every intelligent American woman knows that farming is a basic industry in this country; and, unless it prospers, all suffer. Farming was facing ruin at Democratic hands. This administration has made conditions favorable for agricultural prosperity, and prospects are improving.

5. Welfare. Women of the nation appreciate the law passed by this Congress looking to the salvage of the lives of thousands of American mothers and babies. It shows Republican sympathy with welfare measures, which loom large in the feminine mind. Very little welfare legislation has ever been enacted in state or nation by the Democratic party.

MRS. JOHN HANSON.

Mrs. John Hanson, one of the early settlers of Holt county, died Wednesday of ailments incident to old age, at the country home of her son, Peter Hanson, six miles north of Amelia, at the advanced age of 79 years. Burial was in the Chambers cemetery Thursday.

Mrs. Hanson is survived by two sons, Peter and O. L. Hanson, of southern Holt county and one daughter, Mrs. James Davidson of this city, to whom The Frontier joins in extending sympathy in their hour of sorrow.

PRE-HALLOWE'EN SHOOTING.

Chester Boyer, sixteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Boyer, was shot and wounded in the back Monday evening while passing through an alley in the southeast part of town, along which several advance parties of Halloween celebrants had been overturning outbuildings to the great ire and indignation of the owners thereof. Young Boyer and Elda Calkins had left the residence of Larry Calkins, at which Boyer was staying, a few minutes before the shooting and had taken a short cut through the alley toward town, according to their story. The two boys were about a half block away from the alley when they heard a shot and Boyer received the wound in the back. The bullet, apparently from a small revolver, entered the back near the center of the spinal column, glanced and plowed on around a rib, lodging in the flesh above one hip, an X-ray photograph disclosed. The wound is not serious, according to the physicians unless infection should set in. The identity of the person firing the shot had not been definitely established at the time of going to press, although several charges have been made.

ASHTON FOR COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT

John Y. Ashton, nominee for the office of County Superintendent of Holt County, is a successful school man with an honorable record and twenty-five years experience back of him. He knows school conditions and every phase of school work, and is qualified, in every way, to be of real service to the schools of Holt County. He promises, if elected, to visit your school, to keep posted on the School Laws so as to be competent to give sound opinions on questions as they arise, to give to your difficult school problems his most serious attention, to cooperate with school boards, patrons and teachers for the making of better schools, and to conduct the affairs of the office in a business-like, efficient, and economical manner, and without favoritism. Ashton is not a politician nor a chronic office seeker; he has never run for office before. He belongs to no ring, nor is he tied up with any other candidate. He is trying to win the office on his own merits, and in a clean, manly way. He was raised on a Holt County homestead, graduated from high school and from Normal school, holds State Professional Life Certificates, taught five years in Holt County Rural Schools, and twenty years as superintendent of city schools in Nebraska. Superintendent of O'Neill City Schools, 1921-22. He is a man of middle age, of Christian character, with high standards and ideals, is clean in his morals and habits, and stands for law and order and good citizenship. Look for Ashton's name on the non-political ballot and vote for him. Election, November 7, 1922. (Political Advertising.)

RANDALL FOR GOVERNOR.

Omaha Bee: As the weakness and false pretensions of his opponent come to the voter, the Randall campaign develops stronger and stronger. Nebraskans do not want to be fooled. They cannot be, as the facts become known.

Just as those who knew him best prophesied, Randall is proving the type of man that the Nebraska voter can tie to. This applies to the farmer, the worker and voters of all classes. Randall is not given to boasting or ranting.

He does not make false promises. But he has behind him a record as a farmer and a legislator.

He is a man experienced in state affairs. As state senator in the last term, Randall had a close-up on the entire taxation situation. He helped to work out the budget by which the special session reduced state taxes one-third for the year 1922.

This is actual accomplishment of the republican administration. It compares with false promises made by Randall's opponent.

The Nebraska state platform recognizes squarely the taxation problem. It pledges further reduction in taxes.

Randall and the republican ticket are running on this platform. Moreover, in the hands of Randall and the republican ticket, the taxation problem will be in experienced hands, hands that have already accomplished results that the taxpayers can see in his tax receipt for the year 1922.

Randall's platform does not call for the abolishment of the agricultural and labor departments of the state. It calls for strengthening and developing the usefulness of these departments while cutting the corners on expense.

Although opposed by a campaign of unprecedented and proven falsehood, not once has Randall's word been successfully challenged.

Randall's campaign has been educational. His opponents have resisted every effort of Randall to pin them down to definite things and thereby have shown up the falseness of their promises.

Randall stands for the retention of the state-wide primary. He stands for enforcement of prohibition. He stands for economy but he sees no economy in overturning an entire system of government.

Randall has made no new and strange alliances. His campaign is not machine made. The choice of Randall in the primary was a clear cut primary choice and not a machine combination masquerading under the guise of the primary.

Randall is gaining steadily because the people of Nebraska have had enough of false theories. They have had enough of false promises and world philosophy.

Randall should be elected and with him a republican legislature and the entire state ticket. The Nebraska state government must not be a house divided against itself.

With Randall as governor and the legislature in reasonable accord, Nebraska can continue its progress and not fall into a slough of reaction, false theories and unredempted promises.

FOR STATE SENATOR.

John A. Robertson, democratic candidate for state senator from this district was born in Jackson county, Indiana, Jan. 22, 1867. Came to Holt county in a "prairie schooner" in 1883 and bought a farm. Lives on 160 acres and operates a farm of several hundred acres, has a large family and is very much interested in the educational, moral and financial welfare of this state and district. Has taken an active part in the fight for tax reduction. Member of House of Representatives from Holt county in 1895 and 1897 and of the state senate in 1913, 1915 and 1917. Has never held any other county or state office. Author of the "Mothers Pension" law in Nebraska and supported all progressive legislation when representing this dis-

FOR SHERIFF.

As the size of Holt county prevents my making a personal call upon each voter I take this opportunity of presenting my candidacy for election as sheriff of Holt county. I served seven years as deputy under Sheriff Henry Grady and consequently am familiar with the duties of the office. I respectfully refer to my past record among you and promise that if elected I will perform the duties of the office impartially and to the best of my ability, and will enforce the laws without fear or favor.

THE IRISH WORLD SPEAKS.

The Irish World, August 5, 1922.—"The Democratic machine in Nebraska has succeeded in having Senator Hitchcock renominated in the primaries. Hitchcock fought hard to secure the ratification of the League of Nations with its infamous Article X, which sought to commit the United States to the military and naval defense of the British Empire. The Democratic Senator from Nebraska was the acknowledged leader of the Senatorial clique that thought more of carrying out White House orders than of their duties as representatives of sovereign states.

It is the month of February, 1919. Former President Wilson on a flying visit has hurried home from the Paris Conference. He summons for consultation some members of the Senate with its infamous Article X, which sought to commit the United States to the military and naval defense of the British Empire. The Democratic Senator from Nebraska was the acknowledged leader of the Senatorial clique that thought more of carrying out White House orders than of their duties as representatives of sovereign states.

A few days later the matter became a subject for discussion in the Senate by Senator Borah putting a fine leading questions to Senator Hitchcock, the recognized mouthpiece of the Wilson Administration in the Senate. Thereupon the following conversation took place:

Borah: "Would it be permissible for the Senator to state what he (the President) did say with reference to Ireland?"

Hitchcock: "The President practically said nothing with reference to Ireland. The Irish question was not under consideration."

Borah: "But there were questions asked?"

Hitchcock: "There was a question asked which was greeted with laughter and there was nothing more said about it. It was not an issue in the conversation and had nothing to do with it. We were not discussing internal questions but international questions."

Borah: "Does the Senator say the President made no response to the question which was presented to him with reference to the independence of Ireland?"

The Irish World of March 8, 1919, in commenting on this passage of arms between the two Senators, said: "This rejoinder of Senator Borah called for a direct reply. But Senator Hitchcock evidently was unwilling to give one. He continued to beat round the bush."

Such is the Senatorial candidate for whom Nebraskan Democrats of Irish blood are asked to vote next November. He is wholly unworthy of their political support both from an American viewpoint and from a personal viewpoint. No sincere believer in the principles set forth in the American Declaration of Independence would refer to the Irish Republic in the manner Senator Hitchcock did when he spoke of its proposed recognition by the United States Government as "a joke." He in that way told millions of his fellow citizens that the cradle land of their race is unfit to enjoy the blessings of political liberty.

Irish-Americans in every State of the Union will look to the men and women of our blood in Nebraska to resent this insult in a befitting manner. A ballot cast for Senator Hitchcock by an Irish-American Democrat will be an indorsement of the Nebraska Senator's view that all talk about an Irish Republic is a huge joke, which should evoke only derisive laughter the world over. Let us hope for the honor of our race that not one such vote will be recorded in Nebraska next November.
