R. B. HOWELL GIVES OUT A STATEMENT

Says Election Majority Not A Personal Victory.

United States Senator-elect R. B. Howell gave out the following statement a few days ago:

"The large majority afforded me in the recent election was in no sense a personal victory. It was an economic expression in no uncertain terms.

"The people of Nebraska have ever indicated their conservatism, yet they insist on moving forward—not backward. They look upon the continued development of monopoly as the most serious menace to the economic situation.

"This fact has been particularly impressed by the enactment of the Esch-Cummins law, which has practically developed the railroad industry into a government protected private monopoly. They have lost faith in the two present accepted methods of monopoly control, punitive laws, and legal regulation, and are groping for some other remedy.

"The people of Nebraska are also demanding more insistently than ever before that private business methods be employed in the conduct of public affairs. There has been a sort of revolution against idealism in public business, as exemplified in the handling of the $10,000,000,000 loan to Europe.

"In view of what has been accomplished in Omaha in the conduct of the public water, ice and gas plants, the people have evidently concluded that they would welcome an attempt to apply some of the principles successfully utilized there in a broader way, as for instance, 'public competition' for the curbing of monopoly where other methods continued to fail.

"These are the considerations, in my opinion, that caused the remarkable majorities in the recent election. Mr. Bryan, democratic candidate for governor, has advocated similar ideas."

PROPOSED MERGER TO INSURE A CROSSING

(Cedar County News.)

Should the proposed railroad mergers, now under consideration by the government, be carried to completion, at least one railroad will cross the big Meridian Highway bridge at Yankton. Officials of the bridge company were given that assurance when they visited the leading officers of the Great Northern railway company at St. Paul last week.

There are at present about twenty mergers of big railway systems being considered by the government. If the Great Northern Burlington merger goes through, about 300 miles of road will be built between Plainview and Yankton. O'Neill and Theford, and Mullen and Sidney, and this road will cross the Yankton bridge. Such a road would provide a main line from the Twin Cities to Denver, which would be 120 miles shorter than any other route now operating.

Mergers seem to be the only obstacle which prevents several railroads from making plans now to use the bridge. Besides the Great Northern-Burlington merger, others are planned between the Milwaukee and Union Pacific, and the Northwestern and Omaha lines. Should they go through, it would mean that at least two of these lines would use the
