Grippe

Physicians advise keeping the bowels open as a safeguard against Grippe or Influenza.

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

FARM CREDIT BILL SIGNED BY HARDING

Several Measures of Importance Rushed Through Congress in Final Hours Before Sunday Noon Adjournment.

BY JAMES R. NOURSE, Universal Service Correspondent.

Washington, March 4.—At noon Sunday the 67th congress passed into history, unlamented and unmourned except by those members of the Senate and House whose terms of service came to an end.

That hour, fixed by the constitution, brought to a close a session marked by unprecedented partisan bitterness, by wearying filibusters and by the defeat of some of the most important measures on the program of the party in power. Chief among these was the ship subsidy bill, killed by a Senate filibuster.

Sharply at 12 o'clock Vice President Coolidge brought down his gavel, cutting off Dial, of South Carolina, in the middle of a speech. President Signs Bills.

President Harding reached the capitol shortly after 11 o'clock and signed the bills passed in the rush hours of Saturday night and Sunday morning. Among the measures signed were the rural credits bill, the bill reclassifying employes in the government service, the bill authorizing return of alien property up to the value of $10,000, the bill providing pay for the two additional members of the farm loan board, the filled milk bill, and the bill setting aside $300,000 for the purchase of an American embassy building in Paris.

The last bill signed by the president was at 11:35 and was an act to define butter and provide a standard therefor.

Republicans Glad Its Over.

The adjournment brought few regrets to republican leaders in Senate and House. The ending of the session was not regretted by President Harding. For weeks and months the president and republican leaders have been tantalized by the opposition party on their record of nonfulfillment, and all are glad that it is now over.

The party feeling engendered in this congress is likely to be intensified as the summer months roll by and to come strongly against the surface when the 68th congress convenes in December, with the republican majority greatly reduced in both houses and the progressive bloc holding the balance of power. Both parties then will be sparring for the presidential contest in 1924.

Some Sad Farewells.

The dying hours of the congress were made dramatic by the retirement of members who have spent long years in the government. For these there were many sad leave takings, a few tears were shed, and tributes were paid by colleagues who extolled their work as public servants.

Several of the retiring senators expressed the thought of the occasion by appearing in long tailed coats, as if for a funeral, although the most of them, prepared for a quick getaway, had their "best" clothes packed and appeared as on other days.

"Uncle Joe" Given Ovation.

The greatest ovation was tendered to "Uncle Joe" Cannon, of Illinois, suddenly retiring at the close of a half century of service in the House. Nothing like the tribute paid to him has ever been seen in congress. Despite his age, "Uncle Joe" signalled his last day in congress by sticking to the job throughout the long night session until 3:30 o'clock Sunday morning. At 10 o'clock, when the House reconvened, he was there in the republican cloakroom, long black cigar in mouth, just as in the days of his service, which now has become history.

Shortly after 7 o'clock, the House took a recess and the marine band orchestra came upon the floor and played, while members gathered in the "well" and sang a medley of songs ranging from the "Long, Long Trail" to "Auld Lang Syne" and "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow." Representative-Elect Perry, of the ninth Virginia district, in a clear, beautifully modulated tenor voice sang, "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia" to the orchestra accompaniment.

Then came the ovation to "Uncle Joe". He had obscured himself in the republican cloak room and refused to come in response to insistent calls from members of both parties. Finally, Representative Rodenburg, of Illinois, took him by the arm and led him, slowly and gently, out of the cloak room, down to the full length of the main aisle of the House and out into the speaker's lobby, while members cheered and cheered and cheered again.

Unable to Speak.

"Uncle Joe" said not a word. His face was wrought with emotion which betokened the struggle that was going on within. His slow and steady march down the aisle and out through the portals beyond was virtually and, in fact, his passing from the scene of his greatest life work. There were many eyes that refused to stay dry as "Uncle Joe" went into private life.

SIX INJURED IN WRECK OF ARMY PLANE

Big Bomber, Leaving New York for Rantoul, Ill., Develops Engine Trouble and Dives Into Muddy Field.

Universal Service.

New York, March 4.—Major Folett Bradley and Lieut. Stanley Smith were perhaps fatally injured and four mechanics severely hurt Sunday, when a Martin bomber plane fell from a height of more than 2,000 feet into a field of deep mud at East New York.

The mechanics are Omer Rochette, Donald McDonald, J. Jaromillo and Leroy J. Naughton, all privates of the army air service. Major Bradley was taken to Bushwick hospital, while Lieutenant Smith was hurried to Bradford Street hospital. The privates suffered numerous bruises about their bodies, and after treatment assisted in rescuing Major Bradley and Lieutenant Smith.

Big Crowd Gathers.

Hundreds of persons witnessed the accident and more than 2,000 gathered about the muddy field later. Police reserves were summoned to keep back the crowds.

The plane, after looping more than four miles over Manhattan, where it first experienced engine trouble, struck on its nose after making a half turn when within about 500 feet of the earth. All the men were buried under the engine or wings of the plane. Major Bradley and Lieutenant Smith were unconscious.

When the plane struck the earth the big gasoline tank broke and the occupants of the machine were showered with oil. However, the plane did not take fire.

Started for Illinois.

The plane, in charge of Major Bradley, left Mitchell field shortly after 10 o'clock Sunday morning bound for Rantoul, Ill. It was to make its first stop at Washington, D. C. Sunday afternoon, and make the second leg of the trip on Monday. The four mechanics were being sent to a United States army school to complete their training in the air service. The plane was a Martin bomber, equipped with two 450 horsepower Liberty motors.

The plane had been traveling close to 100 miles an hour and was about 2,500 feet above the Statute of Liberty when the engine went dead.

When within about 500 feet of the earth the plane was seen to make a half turn and dive toward the earth. It landed on its nose in a field of thick mud which, in all probability, saved the lives of all six men.

STORM REACHES ATLANTIC COAST

Snow and Wind Hit New England—Zero Temperatures Again Reported From Dakotas.

Universal Service.

Chicago, March 4.—The storm that came out of the west early Sunday was driving on the New England states Sunday night. Cold weather followed in its wake.

Zero weather had reappeared in the west. Devils Lake, N. D., reported two below zero and Rapid City, S. D., had four below.

Heavy snow had fallen over much of the upper Mississippi valley. Chicago felt the force of the storm at dawn Sunday. There was no snow but much damage was done by wind. Plate glass windows were broken in the downtown district.

"The storm which passed rapidly across the Great Lakes Saturday night and Sunday has already reached the New England coast," said the weather bureau Sunday night. "But additional storms are gathering in the west. Weather conditions will become unsettled in the plains states Monday with rain or snow extending eastward to the Mississippi river."

IN LIGHT OF EXPERIENCE

Some Few Things That a Wife Admits She Has Learned From Her Husband.

He really can't advise me as to taking the leadership of a relay of girls who belong to the Girls' Sameday club. They carry a little kit and a basket of canned things, and go off on long hikes and picnics in lovely woody places.

The lady who has charge of all the relays says it is awfully hard to get grownup leaders and she thinks that with my personality the girls would just love me; and you don't have to know much to be a leader.

The girls will tell you how. She said that a rich girl belonged to the club, and her mother had to coax her to eat the very daintiest things at home; and after she had taken a ten-mile hike she ate sausages, just as the other girls did.

And her leader felt that it was awfully worth-while work for anyone. The girls give lovely concerts to raise money to pay for having the concert tickets printed.

And they are banded together to do good, and they ask everybody to please help them in their work. My husband says that years ago when he was a boy woman, used to marry men before they began to ask them for money.—Life.

Moabite Stone.

The "Real Moabite Stone" is a black basaltic block, unearthed at Dibon in 1868, by Rev. F. A. Kiley, 3.5 feet by 1.2 feet in dimensions, which contains 34 lines in the Phoenician language. These chronicle the descent of Mesha, king of Moab, from Ahab, king of Israel. At least two replicas of this valuable stone have been in Paris.

Wild Animals Decreasing.

With the ever-increasing demand for fur, game is becoming scarce, and furs are steadily rising in value. As the bison vanished from the plains, as the elk is near extinction, as the musk ox has retreated in pitifully small numbers to the most inaccessible places of the Barrens, as the sea otter and sable marten are so scarce, that their fur is worth more than gold of like weight, so all other noble fur bearers vanish, if fashion does not turn elsewhere for adornment.

The professional trapper thinks of fur only in terms of dollars, and when a district is trapped out, he moves on. The amount of fur caught during the winter season solely depends on the physical ability of the trapper to endure hardships, and the value of a season's catch often runs into thousands of dollars. It takes years to bring game back into a district that has been trapped out, and with thousands of hunters after game to the very edge of the world, only fur farming and protective laws will assure the survival of many species of fur bearers.

RATHER APPEALED TO HER

Dr. Brander Matthews, the famous critic, said at a Columbia tea: "The school of French novelists that is passing—the school of Anatole France, and Loti and Mirabeau and Maupassant—was very brilliant, certainly, but its philosophy wasn't cheering."

"Those men remind me of an anecdote. A young chap had proposed to a beautiful girl. The girl, blushing and weeping a little, had accepted him. He folded her in his arms, pressed his lips to hers and whispered: "Dearest, is this the first time you have ever loved?" "Yes," the girl sighed, "but it's so nice that I hope it won't be the last."
