CALVIN COOLIDGE IS THE NEW PRESIDENT

President Calvin Coolidge, the new president of the United States, is the thirtieth person to occupy that exalted and exacting position. The former vice president became president in the very early hours of last Friday morning when he was sworn in by his father, John C. Coolidge, at the farm home of the latter at Plymouth village, Vermont. The new president was abed, at the home of his father, when he received the news by courier of the sudden and sad death of President Harding and a communication from Attorney General Daugherty urging him to at once take the oath of office. Several hours had elapsed between the time of President Harding's death and its announcement to Vice President Coolidge, because there was no telephone or other direct line of communication with the John C. Coolidge residence, where the vice president was spending his vacation. The oath was administered by the elder Coolidge, a notary public, by the dim light of a kerosene lamp and in the presence of but a few witnesses, and immediately thereafter President Coolidge was hurried to Washington to assume his responsibilities as the executive head of the greatest nation on earth. No parent ever before has had and it is probable none ever again will have accorded him the distinction and privilege of administering to a son the oath of office which makes him the most powerful ruler in the entire world. The inauguration of President Calvin Coolidge, although sad the occasion which brought it about, will go down in history as one of the most unique, the most romantic and the most thrilling.

The new president is no stranger to public life, although before his nomination to the vice presidency not a figure in national politics. He first came before the eyes of the nation and of the world when as governor of Massachusetts he quelled a policemen strike and rioting in Boston. He displayed his ableness as governor of Massachusetts and demonstrated qualities of firmness and decision which make him a fit successor to his lamented predecessor.

MEMORIAL SERVICES FOR PRESIDENT HARDING FRIDAY AFTERNOON

Residents of O'Neill and community will honor the memory of President Harding at a union memorial service at the Presbyterian church at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, the hour at which the dead executive will be laid to rest in the cemetery at Marion, Ohio. The Reverend George Longstaff will deliver the memorial address. Members of the American Legion will attend in a body under command of Commandant C. W. Conklin, and other organizations of the city, while not participating as such, will be represented by their memberships. The service will be a solemn and dignified one befitting the sorrowful occasion and all are invited to join in paying the last tribute of respect to the nation's former head.

Thousands have bowed their heads in mourning since the receipt of the sad and startling intelligence last Thursday night of the sudden and unexpected death of the president at San Francisco and the progress of the funeral train bearing the body to Washington and from there to its final resting place at Marion has been marked with demonstrations of grief and sorrow seldom if ever equaled in this or any other country, and which testify to the love and esteem in which the late president was held by all. Those who differed with him in matters politic have without exception joined in expressions of the general esteem and love.

Services at St. Patrick's church last Sunday morning were in memory of the president and the edifice was draped in mourning for the departed one. Both the Very Reverend M. F. Cassidy and the Reverend W. J. Leahy, of St. Louis, in their sermons at the several services paid eloquent tribute to the memory of the president and discoursed on patriotism. A service of mourning was held at the Presbyterian and the Methodist church and a special memorial service will be held at the Methodist church again Sunday. In conformity with the proclamations of President Calvin Coolidge and Governor Charles Bryan Friday will be observed generally as a day of mourning and prayer and on resolutions adopted by the Holt county board of supervisors all county offices will be closed the entire day. Mayor J. P. Gilligan has requested that all business houses close in the afternoon and that all citizens participate in the memorial service and in accord with the mayor's request and as a mark of respect to the president, all business houses will close at 1 o'clock. The dance to have been given by the American Legion Friday night at the Knights of Columbus hall has been indefinitely postponed.

Official and formal services for the late president were held in Washington Wednesday and today, Thursday, the funeral train from Washington arrived at Marion, the old home town of the president, where the body will lie in state at the residence of the president's father, Dr. G. T. Harding, until Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when the funeral cortege again will form and proceed to the Marion cemetery, where the final service will be held and the last rites said. The funeral at Marion will be an unofficial one, at the request of Mrs. Harding, unmarked by the official formalities of the one at Washington, but in the cortege and mourning at the bier will be the new president, Calvin Coolidge, and all the other dignitaries of the sorrowing nation together with the neighbors and the lifelong hometown friends of the departed one.

Atkinson Graphic: Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Griffin, Mrs. Wm. Griffin and Mrs. J. O. Hubbell returned Wednesday from an auto trip and a few days' visit in Omaha. The roads are everywhere swarming with automobiles, says Mrs. Wm. Griffin, and the wonder to her is that accidents are so few. At one point on the road she says they were between an ambulance bringing in the crippled of one accident, and the hearse taking away the victim of another. The autos weave in and out and over and through in a mad flight, each to out-pace the other.

Considerable interest is being taken in the case of Fred Drayton, of Orchard, Nebraska, against the Santa Fe railroad in favor of a verdict of $17,306 returned in which Mr. Drayton was sustained by the United States circuit court of appeals, sitting at St. Louis. The suit was based on a claim for damages for alleged mistreatment of a shipment of cattle from Texas consigned to Chadron. The cattle were to have been sold at Fremont, but when they arrived there they were in such condition, it is charged, that the sale could not be made.
