WARREN G. HARDING.

Although a week has passed since Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth president of these United States, was called in death, a week devoted to universal sorrowing and mourning, it still seems that he is with us and that he has not gone away. We think of him as he was, not as he is, and as he was he will live forever in our hearts a kindly man of such friendly mien and lovable traits that he had no enemies. Men differed with him on affairs political and perhaps in private life before he became a public servant, but his strongest and most aggressive opponents in these things unite in their expressed admiration of him as a man and their praise of the sincerity of his every act. All who knew him were his friends. He died a martyr to the duties of his office, the most exalted and most onerous one on earth and history will accord him praise for the manner in which he administered it. The responsibilities and the duties of the high office he has laid down are most exacting on the mental and physical forces. Almost too much for one to stand, as witnessed by the death of President Harding and the physical breakdown of his predecessor, Woodrow Wilson. But few of those before them have survived long after their retirement. Perhaps if a few of the nice things said about them in death or illness were uttered while they were giving their best for their country their burdens might be easier to bear, and they might not break under the strain.

THE GOODENBERGER'S WILL BECOME MISSIONARIES

A farewell reception was given Rev. and Mrs. Ernest C. Goodenberger Monday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. George Longstaff, by the members of the Presbyterian congregation. Rev. and Mrs. Goodenberger left on the following morning for a visit with relatives and friends at Hastings and Scotts Bluffs, Nebraska, on their way to San Francisco, where on September 6th they sail for their new home in the province of Yunnan, which is located in the southwest portion of China.

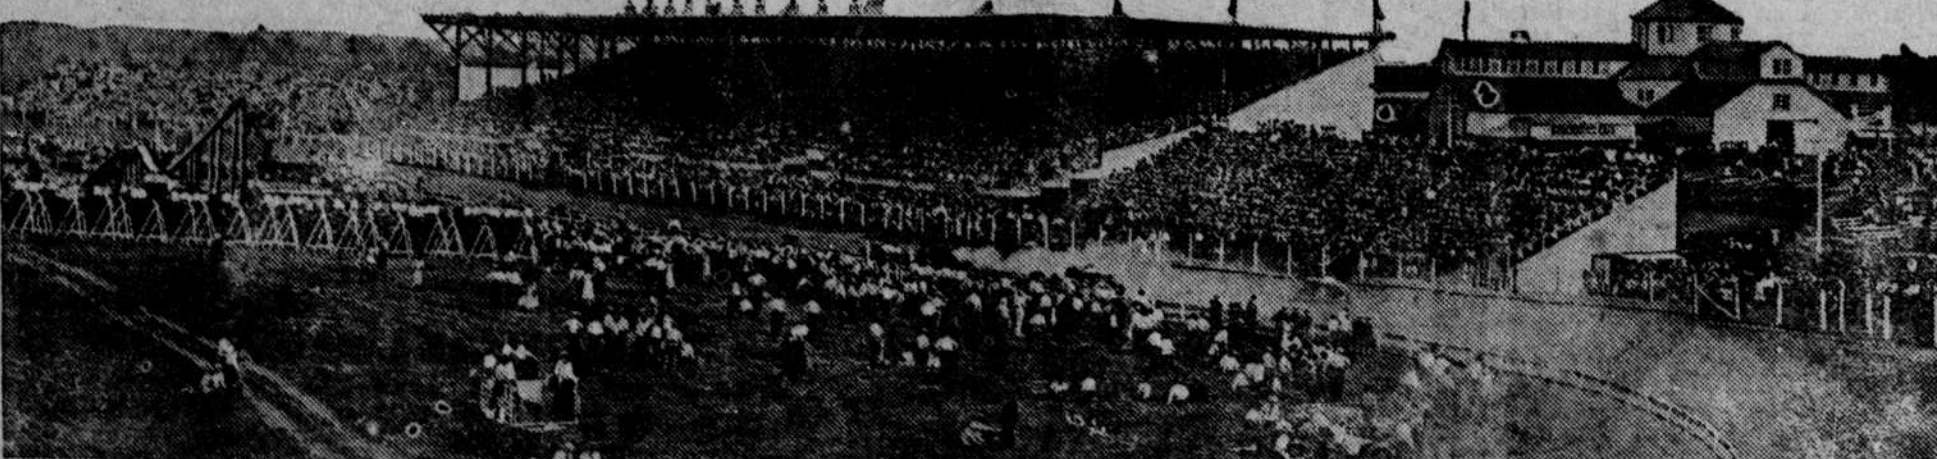

The Goodenbergers accompanied by Dr. and Mrs. Curtis Gault and a Dr. Brewer, of New York City, will sail from San Francisco, September 6th, on the mail steamer President Taft and will land in Shanghai, China, where the entire party will report to the Chinese Presbyterian Council and receive their commissions showing their exact location in the province.

The Presbyterian Foreign Board have appropriated $18,000 for the erection of homes, churches, hospitals, etc., for the benefit of this little colony of Americans who are going into this un-Americanized part of the globe. Rev. Goodenberger, who is a carpenter by trade, will have charge of the erection and construction of the buildings in the province.

The party have arranged for a year's supply of groceries such as flour, butter, baking powder and the necessities of life that cannot be purchased in that country, and they will be transported there as rapidly as possible, which takes about six months.

From Shanghai, China, the party will travel by rail and boat as far across China as possible and will then be required to travel by pack donkeys, for fifteen or eighteen days before reaching their new home. The inhabitants of Yunnan are not Mongolians but resemble more the American Indians for size and build, and speak a language all their own. They are an older race than the Chinese.

The field to which these people are going is the farthest of any missionary appointment from the United States and is one that has received little or no attention in the past but is just now being opened for mission work.

Recreation is combined with education at the Nebraska State Fair. Here are just a few of our citizens enjoying an afternoon off, partaking of the splendid play programme staged by the State Fair. Some crowd you say—sure—did you ever see one of those immense State Fair crowds—if not you better get down to Lincoln about the first week in September and see how many of your friends and fellow citizens live in the Grand Old State.
