ASSETS OF FARMERS BANK SOLD BY THE RECEIVER

The assets of the defunct Farmers bank of Page, Nebraska, passed from the hands of the receiver, M. R. Sullivan, and into the control of the State Guaranty Fund, last Monday when the assets of the bank, consisting of building and lots, office furniture, notes to the amount of $83,000, overdrafts amounting to about $11,000 and a few judgments were sold at public auction in front of the court house, Monday afternoon.

A few of the notes were sold to individuals but most all of the assets were bid in by Bert Knudson, of Genoa, representing the Guaranty Fund.

VAKOC-SCHMARDER FIGHT GOES DOWN IN HISTORY

Those who were fortunate enough to have been present at the Vakoc-Schmarder boxing match at Pierce last Thursday night got their money's worth from the first tip of the gong. Early in the fight it is said that Schmarder discarded all boxing rules and proceeded to foul Vakoc and the fight was on in earnest. Those who saw the bout say that both Vakoc and Schmarder did everything in the category prohibited in boxing during the seven rounds. The decision was given to Vakoc when Schmarder knocked the referee down.

Vakoc seemed to have had the best of the rough and tumble bout and if the fight had lasted a few more rounds Vakoc might have had the satisfaction of giving Schmarder the much coveted k.

Schmarder has been indefinitely barred from boxing in Nebraska, while Vakoc was severely reprimanded for his part in the melee.

AMAZED AT YANKEE TEETH

French Farmers Marvelled at the Sight of Doughboys Seemingly Enjoying Cow Fodder.

The French lockkeeper is sometimes an old soldier, but often is some black-clad woman who took up her husband's duties when he was called to the front, and who (for he never came back) will continue them until her little Francois is grown up—or, as she sometimes sadly puts it, "Until he comes back safe, as I hope, from the next war, m'sieu."

For five more days we paddled along the 100-kilometer stretch of stream that unfurls itself ribbonlike among rolling, windmill-topped slopes between Redon and Nantes, writes Melville Clatter in the National Geographic Magazine.

We found that the countryside still fondly recalled the passage of American troops in 1918—how they had swum in the canal and had given the children little packets of chewing gum and had strangely delighted in consuming cow fodder.

This last detail was related to us by a farmer, who added: "Most vigorous young men those, m'sieu. Wonderful teeth, wonderful stomachs. How they could even digest that stuff was the wonder of the countryside." And he pointed to one of those fine fields of Indian corn which in France are cultivated exclusively as cattle food. "Why, that's easy," we confided; "all Americans eat that." And we described the manner of preparing and dispatching an ear of corn. Suddenly a light broke on the listener's face: "Ah," he exclaimed, "I understand. Then one doesn't eat it, cob and all, like the cow; one just picks it up, as if it were an artichoke, n'est-ce pas?"

Further affiant sayeth not.

Subscribed in my presence and sworn to before me this 16th day of June, 1923.
