All Angora Cats Alike.

It was a valuable Angora cat, but its owner was governed as much by humane instincts as appreciation of its value when she took it to a boarding place when preparing to start on a European trip. Though friends offered to take care of it she felt that her pet would have even better care in a regular cat home. It was therefore with considerable surprise and indignation, a day or so after she placed it in the boarding place, that she ran across her pet roaming the streets.

Swiftly she picked it up and descended on the boarding house. For five minutes she gave vent to her wrath. When he got a chance the proprietor spoke.

"Calm yourself, madame," said he. "Your cat is here. The one you hold in your arms is the twin of yours and it belongs to Mrs. Blank." To prove his point he produced the other.—New York Sun and Globe.

Method of Measuring Ozone.

Before long it is likely that among other attractions of a seaside resort may be included announcements of the proportion of ozone in the air. Experiments have shown that it is possible to discover the amount of ozone in the air with fair accuracy.

Slips of white blotting paper are soaked in a solution of iodide of potassium and starch. These, protected from sunshine and rain, are exposed to the air for a definite period. According to the amount of ozone present so is the paper colored in varying shades of yellow. If ozone is abundant the paper will be of a very deep shade.

Do you take orders from a Coffee Pot?

It must be humiliating for thousands of people to confess that they lack the will-power to stop coffee.

They know from experience that it results in irritated nerves; keeps them awake nights; makes them nervous. Yet they don't seem to be able to say "no."

If you find that coffee harms you, change to the pure cereal beverage, Postum. You'll find it delicious and satisfying. And it is absolutely free from caffeine or any other harmful drug, so you can drink Postum at any meal, and as much as you want.

Your grocer sells Postum, in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

RUM CASE MAY BRING SHAKEUP

Attorney for Accused Man Threatens Exposure of Republican Leaders

Universal Service
New York, Oct. 22.—"This case is going to shake the country," Thomas B. Felder, attorney for Gaston B. Means, arrested in a gigantic rum plot, said Monday night.

Means was released on $15,000 bail. He is a former investigator for the department of justice and was acquitted in 1917 of the murder of Mrs. Maude C. King, whose adviser he was, and lost a fight over the $2,000,000 estate of James C. King.

President Harding, according to Means, hired him to run down "rich and aristocratic" persons in New York engaged in bootlegging.

Means is held on an indictment charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition internal revenue and postal laws in connection with the scheme to turn loose a flood of bonded liquor by forged permits. In one case the contents of a distillery were to be released.

Means statement through his counsel said:

"This affair will stir the republican party. Four New York lawyers are involved in getting certain permits. American liquor was removed outside the three-mile limit and later sold into this country from rum row."

DENIED KISS; SHOOTSELF

Girl Grants Wish After Lover Attempts to End His Life

Mason City, Ia., Oct. 22. (U. P.)—Roy P. Pfeiffer, 24, won a kiss from Colla Phillips, 16-year-old, blonde, but it was not until the farm hand had wounded himself in an attempt to end his life.

After his attentions had been repeatedly spurned Pfeiffer waited in his automobile in front of the Phillips home for the girl to return from a dance.

"I'm going to shoot myself if you don't kiss me," he told her when the rival left.

The girl ignored him and went into the house.

Hearing a revolver shot she rushed out and found him bleeding from a wound in the side.

"Won't you kiss me now?" he pleaded, as police carried him into the house.

The girl pressed her lips to his. Pfeiffer will live, doctors believe, but the girl still insists she does not love him.

Many Irish Prisoners on Hunger Strikes

Republican Leaders Declare 4,000 Comrades Now Refusing to Take Food

Dublin, Oct. 21.—From Mount Joy prison, where 400 republican prisoners have been reported as hunger strikers, the hunger striking has now spread to many other prisons where the Free State government is detaining captured irregulars.

Republican leaders now declare that there are 4,000 of their comrades in Free State prisons who are refusing food. The situation is really serious for the government, as it is feared that if even one prisoner dies the whole country may again be plunged into trouble.

President Cosgrave, speaking Sunday in front of the old Irish parliament house said:

"If the prisoners were really hunger striking it might be different, but there is a lot of bluff about these strikers."

"We sent medical officers to the prisons and they found that the supposed strikers had brown bread in their pockets and many of them had in their possession pastilles capable of sustaining a man for 48 hours."

Indictment Not Necessary to Prosecute Liquor Case

Washington, Oct. 22.—(U. P.)—The supreme court Monday held that persons charged with violations of the national prohibition act, before coming to trial in federal courts, need not always be taken before a grand jury for indictment.

John Brede appealed to the supreme court on the grounds he had been brought to trial on criminal information brought by the district attorney and had been sentenced to 300 and 60 days.

Brede sought release from custody on a writ of habeas corpus. The court directed that Brede be retained in custody.

NEW MEASURES LAUNCHED TO MAKE U. S. 'DRY'

Steps Taken to Clamp Lid on Smuggling and Breweries

BY WILLIAM P. FLYTHE
Universal Service Correspondent.

Washington, Oct. 22.—The United States plans to put an agent in every brewery and distillery to stop leaks, and to increase border patrols sufficiently to stop smuggling.

The treasury department announced this Monday as the administration's plan to enforce the "dry" law.

The details were made public by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and were said to have the approval of President Coolidge as the logical means of furnishing the fullest means of co-operation with the states.

It was revealed for the first time that the government considers the number of "dry" agents far inadequate to cope with the situation and that an additional appropriation will be asked for this purpose, as well as for the purpose of enlarging the coast and border patrol.

New York Illustration

In states where local officials are not inclined to co-operate, or state laws are in conflict with federal laws, the government plans to put a sufficient number of men to cope with the situation without local aid, it was stated. New York was used as an illustration.

It was said that in a greater majority of the states, the federal government expects such a full measure of local co-operation that it will be able to withdraw a large number of "dry" agents and concentrate them elsewhere. This force also will be augmented by the additional "dry" agents which congress will be asked to authorize.

The treasury pointed out that by far the greatest source of liquor supplies in the United States is from smuggling, and that when this is checked the situation will be well in hand. It cannot be checked with the small forces now available, it was stated, and the coast guard will ask for additional men and fast small craft to chase the rum runners from the American coasts. Along the border it is planned greatly to augment the customs guard for the same purpose.

Illegal Withdrawals Large.

Next to smuggling it was said the large sources of supply are the breweries and the distilleries, or storage warehouses. In spite of what the treasury described as the most effective permit system which can be worked out, large quantities of liquors, industrial alcohol, and beer are illegally withdrawn.

The secretary would place a man in each brewery to be sure that all real beer manufactured is dealcoholized and that only local permits for withdrawals are honored.

When this system is perfected, it was stated, the state and city officials will find that they will have only the "hip pocket" bootlegger to contend with and he may be best handled by the local police.

Experts are now at work estimating how much money will be required to carry out the program.

Suit Filed Against Iowa Cereal Mills

Burlington Men Contend Officials Broke Option as Profits Loomed

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Oct. 22.—Suit for $250,000 damages and an injunction was filed here Monday afternoon by C. M. and A. H. Rich, of Burlington, against the Corno Company, the National Oats Company and J. R. Mathews, John C. Reed and G. C. Simonds of East St. Louis, on account of a business disturbance in the company's local plant on September 1, which resulted in the Rich Brothers being put out, their contract terminated, and their option of the local plant taken away from them.

The brothers, who have conducted cereal mills at Burlington for many years, were brought here about a year ago to take over the local plant and say they were given an option on the same for $1,250,000, to expire November 1 of this year. They allege that it was agreed the company would lose money the first year but after the first six months it began to make money and then the attitude of the officials of the two companies changed and they were let out without notice and their option taken away from them.

They also asked an injunction preventing the companies from using their name, brands, labels, or trade marks on any of their goods.

RAID HOME OF "DRY" SLEUTH

Police Find Liquor in Basement of County Officer's House

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 22.—(Special) —Police liquor bureau officers Monday morning raided the home of John Hamery, head of Sheriff Findley's booze squad. A quantity of alcohol, wine and other liquors were confiscated, in addition to four stills.

The raid, according to officers who participated, was the result of a tip that liquor was kept in the basement at that address. The police, armed with a John Doe warrant, raided the home not knowing that it was the residence of Hamery.

The spirits and apparatus, Hamery says, had been confiscated by him and were being stored at the home until they could be removed to the sheriff's booze room.

It was hinted in the sheriff's office that the raid might have been an attempt to discredit Hamery's record for political reasons.

"I didn't think I was so dangerous that my old political enemies had to frame me and I hope they didn't," was the only allusion Hamery would make to the alleged political aspects of the raid.

Victims Steal Liquor From Nearby Cell and Stage Party in Jail

D., Oct. 22.—(Special) —Surrounding a wide open dice game in the stockyards at Henry Sunday afternoon under cover of the assembled crowd of spectators, county officers, with the co-operation of federal agents, arrested 33 men, including Joe Wagner, who was recently released here on a federal charge, of automobile stealing and who, it is alleged, has been holding a series of gambling games at Henry.

Wagner was fined $75 by Judge I. H. Myers here Monday afternoon and the 32 others were fined $5 each.

Nine of the prisoners could not pay their fine and were taken to the county jail. They captured a five-gallon jug of moonshine, being held as evidence in another case, from an adjoining cell, and all got intoxicated before they were discovered.

Probe Cause of Low Hog Prices

Wallace to Learn if Undue Influences Figure In Conditions

Washington, Oct. 22.—Investigation as to whether the prevailing low prices being paid for hogs are the result of undue influences, is being made by Secretary Wallace.

Over a period of 50 years, the secretary has found the value of one hundred pounds of hogs has been approximately the equivalent of 11 bushels of No. 2 corn at Chicago prices, but the price has fallen to such an extent as compared with the rising prices of corn that the corn hog ratio at present is much out of line with normal.

Hogs closed last week around $7 per hundred pounds for the average bulk of sales, while corn closed the week at $1.07 a bushel.

FORBES MUCH EXCITED OVER BUREAU PROBE

Senator Reed Forced to Squelch Former Director at Hearing

BY COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service Correspondent

Washington, Oct. 22.—Col. Charles Forbes, former director, was silenced and ordered to take his seat twice Monday when he dramatically interrupted the proceedings of the veterans bureau investigation before a special senate committee.

Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the committee, warned Forbes that he would either have to keep silent until such time as the committee was ready to hear him, or absent himself from the proceedings. The chairman and associate members of the committee, Senators Walsh of Massachusetts, and Oddie, plainly evidenced their displeasure at Forbes' interruptions. Reed made it plain that he would not tolerate further transgressions on the proceedings from the former director.

Under Heavy Strain

Forbes displayed marked agitation, showing signs of being under a high nervous tension and restrained himself with apparent difficulty. His interruptions were to object to the line of evidence being introduced as reflecting on his administration of the bureau, previous to last March when he retired. He spoke in a highly excited tone and continued talking even after being ordered to sit down.

The first interruption came at the very outset of the proceedings when Maj. Gen. F. O'Ryan, counsel for the committee, started reading a prepared statement outlining the case he intends to present. The first sentences of this statement declared: "During the year 1922 and the early part of 1923 the United States veterans' bureau was not functioning effectively. Great sums of money were being expended for the relief of the disabled veterans."

When O'Ryan reached this point, Forbes, seated at the opposite end of the long counsel table, jumped to his feet and entered an objection. He was told he would be given an opportunity to be heard at the proper time. He insisted on his objection being recorded, asserting that he had come 3,000 miles to defend himself and his administration.

Forbes Not on Trial

Chairman Reed replied that this was not a trial of Colonel Forbes or any other individual, adding:

"If any person is reflected on in the course of these hearings that person will be given opportunity to explain or contradict any evidence."

Forbes again injected himself into the proceedings late in the afternoon when O'Ryan was presenting evidence concerning certain employees on the bureau payroll who, he asserted, were there apparently for the sole purpose of providing them with jobs.

O'Ryan was questioning Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, present director of the bureau, concerning the employment of Francis B. Smith, of California, who he declared was on the payroll as a consulting architect at $2,800 a year from August 22, 1922 to April 2, 1923, during which time it was alleged he rendered service to the bureau of only a few hours on two occasions.

Asked to Keep Quiet

Senator Walsh inquired who employed him. Forbes leaped to his feet and replied:

"I employed him. O'Ryan declared he was frank to say he believed Smith was put on the payroll 'merely to give him a job.'"

Forbes, still standing and visibly agitated, interjected:

"He is a consulting engineer making $25,000 a year and was consulted a number of times."

O'Ryan turned to Chairman Reed and vigorously objected to the interruptions from Forbes. Reed said to Forbes:

"Colonel Forbes, we will have to ask you to keep quiet. As we've told you before, you will be given an opportunity to be heard."

"But the evidence all seems to be directed against my previous administration," Forbes rejoined, adding: "I came 3,000 miles to attend this is representing that everything that has been done to improve the bureau has been accomplished by General Hines. I hold that I accomplished what he says he has brought about."

Chairman Reed evidencing impatience and with a tone of command, said to Forbes:

"We can't have any further interruptions from you. You must sit down and remain quiet until you are given an opportunity to be heard."

Forbes took his seat, nervously mopping his brow. Throughout the day he took copious notes on the evidence introduced.
