Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Other Mothers

Windom, Minn.—"I was so run-down that I was just good for nothing. I was to become the mother of my ninth child, and I thought I did not have the strength to go through with it. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has surely done all I could ask it to do and I am telling all my friends about it. I have a nice big baby girl and am feeling fine. You may use this letter to help other sick mothers."—Mrs. C. A. MOSE, Box 634, Windom, Minn.

My First Child

Glen Allen, Alabama.—"I have been greatly benefited by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for bearing-down feelings and pains. I was troubled in this way for nearly four years following the birth of my first child, and at times could hardly stand on my feet. A neighbor recommended the Vegetable Compound to me after I had taken doctor's medicines without much benefit. It has relieved my pains and gives me strength. I recommend it and give you permission to use my testimonial letter."—Mrs. I. A. RYE, Glen Allen, Alabama.

Asked his opinion of Mr. Craig's sentence for contempt of court, W. G. McAdoe wires this writer as follows:

"Comptroller Craig's criticism never seemed to me to exceed legal or professional proprieties. The freedom to make fair comment upon public actions is just as essential to the operation and security of democratic institutions as a like freedom to comment on the acts of our governmental departments.

"I do not believe that the ends of law and order can be served best by granting immunity to the judiciary from fair criticism. Otherwise, we are in danger of establishing a judicial tyranny.

"Since the Supreme Court has sustained Judge Mayer's position, I should, if in his place, permit the sentence on the ground that the dignity and authority of his court have been sufficiently vindicated and that no further action is necessary in the case of the technical contempt, which, as I understand it, was not intentional."

"W. G. McAdoe."

W. G. McAdoe is at present the most conspicuous candidate for the democratic nomination. Hiram Johnson, most conspicuous republican candidate, outside the White House, has already expressed himself vigorously on the Craig case.

Apparently, the process of stopping criticism by sending critics to jail is not taken kindly in America.

What President Coolidge will do is not yet announced. It does not seem probable that he will fall to use his power in rebuke of star chamber methods.

Mr. McAdoe speaks of the Supreme Court having "sustained Judge Mayer's position." The supreme court, however, did not decide the case in full, by the means, it merely declared that Mr. Craig's lawyers had gone the wrong way about setting aside the sentence for contempt. And Justices Holmes and Brandeis emphatically denounced the sentence imposed.

Judge Mayer is wise and listens to public opinion instead of heeding sycophants that surround all judges, he will find a way out of the difficulty for himself.

When beavers need houses, they cut down trees, dam a stream, then build with entrance below the water, safe and warm.

No one ever saw a beaver wondering, "where can I find a place to live?"

That nonsense is left to men, of whom millions, with all their science and intellect, now lack decent housing, even in this rich nation.

S. W. Straus, of New York and Chicago, who has built houses all over the United States, financing within 20 years, probably, more buildings of homes than any other 10 men, recently discussed the housing problem with President Coolidge. Mr. Straus told the president that this nation, for building alone, will require eight billions of capital in the immediate future.

It's a big program, but it has this good side:

It means continuation of good times in building, much work and good pay for mechanics for years ahead.

If work can be kept plentiful and wages good, there will be no need about worry as regards prosperity.

Senator Ferris, of Michigan, in a farewell talk to the "home town" says great fortunes should not be used at their discretion by heirs, ignorant of life. He proposes not merely to tax inheritances, but to absorb them, the government taking practically all.

It does seem foolish for the child of a reservation Indian or the half-Filipino child of an American soldier to inherit, with the "right" to sunder millions of dollars.

But there is something involved more important than the squandering of some millions or even billions. The country's development needs hard work from the ablest men up to the hour of death. And men will work hard for their children keeping at it long after they have got all they need and more.

Say to them "your children cannot have it, and you kill their ambition. Foolish, perhaps, but it's so."

A coal black lion killer in Africa demands 50 fat black wives as his reward. Most foolish, for he does not need so many. But let him have them. He won't kill lions, it you refuse.

Lot inheritances be well taxed, as in England, that great accumulation may gradually melt. But don't kill incentive with any kind of taxation. Incentive to hard work is more important to the nation than any number of millions, no matter how foolishly spent.

Senator Ferris says that young men and women have a much better chance in life if they start with little.

Quite true. Even a half-fool can succeed in spite of poverty. It takes a superior being to succeed in spite of wealth and in spite of the flattery that goes with wealth.

The late "Timplat King" Leeds, whose widow married Prince Christopher, and whose son married Princess Xenia, said to this writer: "I give a million dollars to any one able to tell me how a rich man's son can escape being a fool."

More new high record prices in cotton yesterday with December cotton going above 36. That's good for the country.

Learned financial writers are discussing "just what will be the effect on this country when Europe is finally pacified?"

Your great grandchildren won't be able to answer that question, nor their grandchildren.

When the nations become really pacified, emulation replacing selfish competition, no man demanding or wanting more than he really needs, material problems will solve themselves. But that's a long way off. And always the question remains:

"What will be the color of the meek that inherit the earth—white, black or yellow?"

You cannot have widespread peace or meekness until that color question is settled.

We are doing well, even on the farms. According to Secretary Wallace, 11 of the leading crops are worth, this year, $2,000,000,000 more than last year.

There seems to be some prosperity. The twentieth century, carrying this writer, and his portable type machine, from Chicago to New York, runs in four sections each with as many Pullman cars as a big engine can pull.

And this 20 hour run costs much more than it did to go, first cabin, with all you could eat, from New York to Liverpool on the steamship Spain, in 1878.

However, if you get more, it does not make so much difference if you pay more. To those with old fashioned incomes, however, new fashioned prices are not so easy.

The material and mechanical problems of travel are solved in America, as far as they can be without the flying machine. This typewriter is finishing a run of 4,000 miles, begun last Saturday at 4:50 p. m. to end this morning at 9:40 with 30 hours stop at Fort Worth. Four thousand miles in 101 hours of running time without bump, discomfort, or delay, capable mechanics, courteous doctors and other officials every mile of the way—over the Pennsylvania, M. K. & T., Rock Island and New York Central. Via St. Louis, Fort Worth, Topeka, Kansas City, Chicago and back to New York. American railroad men understand their business—those that do their actual work, from president down to track walker. Now there should be railroad combinations eliminating the waste of competitive methods, and eliminating unnecessarily long hauls. The flying machine will come before long to supply really quick, cheap, long journeys, and the motor truck is beginning to solve the short haul problem.

Paris newspapers say "American bankers are financing the return of the crown prince to Germany." Those papers exaggerate the insanity of the American bankers. He finances queer things, sometimes, but there is a limit.

Paris papers, with Germany repudiating and ceasing payment of reparations, will soon have things more serious and dangerous than "American bankers" to think about.

What might have been a pretty good German goose with golden eggs is dead. Her financial funeral will be painful for the pall bearers. Let him read that can read, and unload what is not good to keep.

Some nice European bonds, of various nationalities may be bargains, soon.

Learn from Germany's once crown prince, back on his landed estate at Oels, that it pays to own a piece of this solid earth.

His hope of a crown is gone, or dim, and gone his military hat with skull and cross bones on it. His millions, or billions of marks, if he has them, will not buy enough to feed the dachshund at his feet.

But that land will feed him. Potatoes, onions, carrots, grow as they did before the war. Cows give milk, bees make honey, at the same old rate.

Own a piece of the earth, take Voltaire's advice "let us cultivate our garden" and you may laugh at the fall of the mark, or the rise of bolshevism. Real estate agents, here is your text: there is no real security, outside of real estate.

Lawyers throw around their insults carelessly. Samuel Untermyer, getting a separation for Mrs. Stokes, wife of a rich New York man, says: "My client would no more live with him than with a kangaroo."

The fact that a kangaroo can't sue for libel does not justify such talk. The kangaroo is a good husband. As soon as the baby is born, and tucked in the maraschino pouch, he goes off and forgets it. What more could you ask. And he never boxes unless men teach him, or attack him.

Pick on the purple nosed baboon, the wallowing wart hog or laughing hyena, Mr. Untermyer, but don't insult the blameless kangaroo. He's respectable.

Chicago, with a jail for human beings called a disgrace to civilization, plans a zoological garden, in which animal prisoners will be made to feel at home; no cages with iron bars, instead, nice homelike pits.

Philanthropy says "shame," but there's some doubt about it. The animal prisoners have committed no crime, but besides, they cause the children, and educate adults.

Crime at this particular moment, knowing no geographical or other limits, seems to need discouragement. In Kansas City, bandits, masked, with sawed off shot guns, enter a bank, compel customers and clerks to lie down on the floor, while the vice president fills their big bags with bundles of money. One lady insists on standing and praying. The bandits don't molest her, and escape, in their car.

At about the same hour, in Brooklyn, "wild east" bandits kill two bank messengers, take $45,000 drive off through an overawed crowd.

How will it be when bandits drop down before the bank door in their helicopter, collect, then fly up, perpendicularly.

Nations that set the example killing and teaching killing as a patriotic profession, must expect crime to follow.

Glass hair and tangerine ears will be in vogue for the girl who has bobbed her hair, it is announced by the hair dressers of the nation in convention at New York city. The "hair" is said to be a "shower of colored glass which cannot be distinguished from hair and which cannot be made to match or harmonize with the wearer's gown." Bobbed hair will still be considered correct for day and sport wear, the "transformation" being done in the evening.

The Canadian Pulp and Paper association says that newspaper production in six months of 1923 has set a record. Up to the end of June, Canadian mills manufactured 619,822 tons of newspaper paper, which represented a daily average production of 3,973 tons, or about 470 tons more than the daily average throughout 1922. This tremendous increase is due largely to the addition of new machines to the productive capacity of the mills but also reflects an increased rate of operation and the speeding up of existing machines.

The penalty among the Hottentots for widows who marry again is a somewhat severe one. It is the rule among these people that, before so marrying, a widow must cut off the joint of a finger and present it to her new husband on the wedding day.

The business man's "bad presidential year" will not be a bad year, unless merchants and people combine to make it so.

A good year depends on good buying. Nothing in the election of a president prevents people buying the usual supplies from ice cream soda to fur coats, from factory sites to bungalows.

This presidential year ought to be our most prosperous year. The election reminds the people that this country is managed by its inhabitants, when they take the trouble to vote thoughtfully.

Europe is worried, harassed, nations mistrusting each other, taxing each other's products. We have 110,000,000 of people living at peace in 48 different states, all trading freely, back and forth, from ocean to ocean.

While other nations lack food and raw material, our problem is to get rid of our surplus on a profitable basis.

We haven't even begun to scratch the wealth of this country. Wages are higher than they ever were, prosperity is greater than it ever was. There is more money to be spent than there ever was.

Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-Four the presidential year, ought to be the maximum year of American prosperity for all time.

It will be if the pessimists will allow it.

The British, it seems, are considering a serious protest against our treatment of Hindus coming to this country from India, where Britain rules. Our supreme court decides that laws in California and Washington against foreigners owning land applies to Hindus. England says that will never do.

The British protest is particularly interesting in view of the fact that Britain's own colonies, Canada and South Africa, will not permit Hindus from British India or any other British Asiatics to settle on their land.

It seems the United States must not exclude British Hindu subjects; although the most important dominions of the British empire do exclude them.

The British at least are frank in telling you what they want. The United States should be as frank in telling them they won't get it.

Charges filed with the department of state at Washington by American citizens accuse the Japanese of dreadful cruelty to Koreans, in the panic and rage following the earthquake. In one case, according to Captain Heaton, an American dock superintendent of Yokohama, 250 Koreans, "bound hand and foot were covered with oil and burned alive." There is nothing in the testimony implicating the Japanese government, but the story is most hideous and indicates that the Japanese are, if possible, more brutal than their European brothers under certain conditions.

Cement manufacturers in the United States will spend $5,000,000 in an advertising campaign. The United States government might well help in that campaign, for using cement means getting out and starting new buildings for the centuries.

The cement men and the copper men should combine on an advertising campaign with the slogan: "Foundations, pipes and roofs that will last forever."

The King of Denmark, who was told a while ago that Dr. Cook had discovered the North Pole, has now been told that Dr. Cook is sentenced to 14 years in jail for swindles in connection with oil wells.

Psychologists if they examined Dr. Cook would probably find that he has the brain and the imagination of a young school boy.

Years ago he exhibited himself in a dime museum in New York, with Esquimaux dogs, sleds and heavy furs, and gradually imagined himself a real explorer. Finally he imagined that he had discovered the North Pole, perhaps he almost believed it. There is no penalty for imagining that.

But when he imagined that he had discovered valuable oil wells and sold stock—that was a different offense.

Stresemann, head of the German republic, says the condition of Germany is nearly hopeless. The only possible solution of the problem would be to increase the length of the working day in Germany, that German workmen may earn enough to feed themselves, feed Germany's leisure class and furnish additional sums for reparations to the allies.

Average success 1/2 based on extra work done by the successful man. But at least he gets the fruits of his extra work. It is very encouraging for German workmen to be told that they must work long hours for barely enough to exist, the rest going to outsiders.

This the great football day. Tens of thousands will yell and cheer. The great team has practised in dark secrecy and heroic, mud-covered players have been accompanied back to training quarters with demonstrations and admiration amounting almost to adoration.

Players and cheering students are envied by the millions that cannot go to college. Parents grieve because their sons cannot have such great advantages.

Hard at work in some office, or factory, on some farm, or in some department store, are young men that later will push a button summoning today's football heroes to their orders for the day.

The quarterback of today will find himself "all the way back, ten years hence in many cases. And today's "full back" of the farm or factory will be on the rush line of real life. Let that thought console grieving parents.

There is nothing taught in college that a boy cannot learn at home if it is really and only knowledge that he wants.

And you may truly say of college life what the French proverb says of foreign travel: "Travel forms youth, when it does not deform it."

It takes a boy of strong mind to endure several years of false standing, false glory, false importance, false fossilized theories and then come out fit for life's real work.

Peasut oil is one of the prime necessities of the average Chinese south Chinese means to him whatlard does to the American.

Checkers of hats in large hotels have remarkable memories. Doubtless many young men were employed and discharged before one was found who could learn to take 300 hats from men entering the dining room and distribute them as the diners left, without checks and without an error. In a city luncheon club with nearly 400 members, for example, says Edgar James Swift, the usual method of paging a man who is wanted has been changed to asking the colored man in the hat room whether the man in question has arrived. And a glance over the hat rack gives accurate information.

Conversation with those who display this wonderful and peculiar memory has always brought essentially the same reply. They have no system. They talk vaguely about something which, in psychological language, is association between the appearance of the hat and the face of the owner.—Scribner's Magazine.
