COUNTY ATTORNEY'S OFFICE SHOWS MANY CONVICTIONS.

Nine hundred nineteen dollars in fines were paid into the county treasury during the year ending January 1, 1924, in criminal actions prosecuted by County Attorney Julius D. Cronin. Sixty-three criminal cases were started in which $1,219.00 was assessed in fines and two years and ninety-six days in jail and penitentiary sentences. The balance of the money assessed in fines was not paid pending the appeal of the cases to a higher court. Of these cases fifteen were for the linear layer and result in the Nicorara river in northern Holt and Gus Hagenstein, a justice of the pace and notary public of Spencer, Nebraska, were witnesses for the state.
