BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

Poor old Uncle Sam didn't start the war, and it cost him dozens of billions, yet it seems impossible for him to get free from it. Our General Dawes, as was predicted here, helps to bring in a report that says to Uncle Sam, "pay, please."

It seems that Germany must have a loan, to get started on reparations. She asked for twenty five hundred millions. She is to have $250,000,000, if plans go through.

"All nations, including this, will contribute to the loan, and all will be expected to squeeze Germany, if she does not pay."

That's the program thus far. Later, when Germany, having bought raw materials, gets her breath and starts paying reparations, will Uncle Sam get part of the reparations? Don't ask foolish questions. Certainly not.

But, in case Germany fails to pay the fancy reparations, Uncle Sam may have another chance to make himself useful. As he lent Germany part of the money she needed, what more reasonable than for him to help pay the reparations, in case Germany skips payments.

That is the plan, and you will see it materialize.

The big Anaconda Copper Company skipped its regular dividend yesterday. That frightened the market, knocked down Anaconda stock and many other stocks that "sold off in sympathy."

On the other hand, American Locomotive had its best year, with a net profit of more than $12,000,000, a profit above $21 per share.

American Locomotive sells around $74 while Canadian Pacific paying $10 per share, sells to the same crowd of American speculators at $200. How do you explain that? Do you investors consider the Canadians better managers, or more honest, or what?

There ought to be no skipping of dividends by copper companies, and would not be, if the public understood the value of copper and brass, and if architects and builders would serve their clients faithfully, instead of using trashy, rusting iron, to lower prices. Copper and brass, in building would save tens of millions a year in repairs, for they last indefinitely. Using galvanized iron in water pipes is wasteful folly.

Five nuns, little sisters of the poor, were detained at Ellis Island because the immigration quota of their native country was exhausted.

They are now admitted, under a special ruling, as teachers. The public will welcome that ruling, since it saves five good women from deportation. What about the mother of five children, cruelly sent back to Europe a few days ago? Could not some special ruling have been made to admit her as a MOTHER? Is there a higher calling than that of mother, in the estimation of our government?

Mrs. Brawner, very rich, dies and leaves $1,476,133 to her infant son. Her older children get, each, only half as much.

That sounds unjust but it reflects nature's wisdom. The human baby is the most helpless of living creatures. Of the passionate devotion of the normal human mother, and her conviction that each baby is the most wonderful ever born, has carried the human race along thus far.

When a woman with millions leaves a double share for her infant, she is only doing what every normal mother does in another way. Akali Sikhs, who are the fighting men of India, sent soldiers to fight the British India troops. Mohandas Gandhi urges the Sikhs not to fight and not to send any fighting men. Non-resistance will win, he says. Gandhi's attitude explains how it is possible for 100,000 Englishmen in India to hold down 300,000,000 Asiatics. There is as much difference between a Hindu of Gandhi's type and a fighting Irishman, for instance, as between a lop-eared rabbit and a wildcat. But that is no disgrace to rabbit or wildcat. It's only a difference.

Mr. Belton, a deputy police commissioner in New York, says that city will be dry in three months. It will not be dry in three months, not in three years. Governor Pinchot says President Coolidge ought to make the nation dry. President Coolidge could not do it, even if the law would let him use all the navy, and all the army.

This country is firmly settled on a basis of bootleg whisky, and the question is what can be done about it? It was predicted, when prohibition started, that hardened whiskey drinkers would get whisky somehow, of course. But they would die off, poisoned, and then the young people would grow up free of alcohol, and clear, in thought. Unfortunately, the young people, millions of them, are growing up with a whisky flask on the hip, many of them drunk night after night—and every head of a school for boys and girls knows it.

Dr. Holt, who died in China the other day, knew as much about children—especially rich men's children—as any one in America.

Shortly before he died he said, "unless something happens to make conditions better, and if the children of this period grow up as they are starting, they won't have enough institutions in the country to hold them."

A Meriden (Conn.) factory superintendent's will was filed the other day, and discovered was his entire estate, valued at about $50,000, to a young man who had helped to support himself by selling newspapers. The story is that this youth had never failed to give the "lonesome old man" a smile as he passed through the factory selling his papers, and the circumstance had so impressed the latter that he has made the young man fairly independent through his will.

The country girl is able to put one over on her city cousin in at least one thing—According to statistics, the country and small-town girls marry at an earlier age on the average than do the girls who dwell in cities.

CURIOSITY.

Wichita Eagle.
An old gentleman in Pennsylvania was frozen to death recently when he went some distance from his front door to consult a thermometer. He wanted to know exactly how cold it was, and was able to tell his rescuers, with his last breath, the precise and late reading on the tube of mercury. He was something of a precisionist.
Curiosity concerning inconsequential things is one of the most troublesome characteristics of humanity. The public's mad and unreasoning desire to know where the fire is has cost the telephone companies millions of dollars and has driven thousands of operators insane.

Financier or Usurer?

Milwaukee Journal.
In floating a $150,000,000 loan for the Japanese government American bankers step farther into the field of international finance. And, since banking arrangements open the ways of commerce and trade, the loan ought to bring added foreign contracts and foreign business to the United States. But the loan seems to leave Japan gravely doubtful about whether she is dealing with a new and welcome group of international financiers or is facing international usurers.
Japan will pay an interest rate in excess of 7 per cent. for her money. The yield to American bond buyers will be 7.10 per cent. at the offering price of 92 1/2%. Japan has a right to wonder at her treatment in the world's money mart, now established in the United States by virtue of our huge supply of gold.

International good will and understanding will suffer rather than thrive if debtor nations gradually come to the conclusion that a rising creditor nation is pursuing the course of a Shylock. It is hard to think of much better security than the Japanese government, as is evidenced by the oversubscription to this loan. Stress may force nations temporarily embarrassed financially to submit to the lender's terms, but to the extent he exacts these nations will add a full measure of cordial dislike.

To a Far-Away Farther.
The wise folks say that things you never had you cannot miss—
But, since I've been a tiny girl,
I've known it wasn't true—
For all my life, dear daddy, I have missed your care, your kiss!
And yet I don't remember them;
You died when I was two.

When all the other little girls at supper time would run Toward town to meet their daddies,
and they seemed so glad and gay!
They'd skip along and hold their hands and have the grandest fun—
Oh, how I wished that I might run and meet my dad that way!

Then later, with my high school chums,
down town in little bands,
The girls would seek their daddies
and then thank them with a kiss
For the ice cream soda money that was slipped into their hands—
I used to wonder what adventure sweet could equal this!

The night of graduation, with the stage all trimmed so fine,
With potted plants and bunting,
and the girls in fluffy white,
Down in front the proud-eyed daddies,
each one thinking, "She is mine!"
As they watched their little daughters,
Dad, I cried for you that night.

The years have passed, and now I watch a little boy at play—
And life has shown to me the sharp-angled anguish one can know
Is when our children suffer; so daddy, I just pray
You have not known my sorrows,
for I would not have it so.

I like to think on some far star you wait,
from cares set free,
And never know when life's black waters round me rush and swirl;
It helps to feel that if you knew you would come back to me
And drive away the troubles of many a grown-up little girl.
—Neil Lewis Woods in The Kansas City Star.

How Many Children?
From the Delineator.
A group of distinguished Belgian educators recently visited the United States. Among them was Dr. Paul Hager, president of the university at Brussels and an authority on biology. Though known the world over for his science, Doctor Hager is loved in Europe for a philosophy which makes the human problems of ordinary folk the big interests of his life.
He was asked how many children he had. He replied, "Three," then smiled understandingly and added: "But that's a man's answer I've just given you. If you ask a man how many children he has, he will say, for instance, 'I have three.' If you ask his wife, she will say, 'I have four. One is dead.' To most fathers, their children are just people—sons and daughters; but to mothers, they are souls, and souls never die."

Good Beginning.
From the Santa Barbara News.
The baby was bawling. Pa stood it as long as he could and then ventured to make inquiry.
"What does the baby want?"
"He is like most men," snapped ma.
"How is that, my dear?"
"Doesn't know what he wants, but keeps yelling for it!" she returned.
"He will make a great statesman," said pa discreetly.

The Clavlux is an organ-like instrument that plays light on a screen for the eye, just as music is played into the ear. The instrument blends the qualities of color and of light—now rising and falling in soft gradation, now marshaled in full, impressive, and now fading into abrupt darkness. Some of the symphonies of color are thus made possible.

$1,000,000 SHIPMENTS OF HAIR NETS FROM CHINA LAST YEAR

Shanghai, China—More than a million gold dollars worth of human hair nets were shipped from Shanghai to the United States during the first nine months of last year, according to figures made public here.

This is a decrease of fully $500,000 from the corresponding period of 1922, when $1,500,000 worth of business was done from here in the human hair trade with the United States.

As is apparent from the above figures, everything is not well in the hair net world. Business in hair nets seems to be confined only to those brands widely advertised throughout the United States by concerns who import the raw material from China and manufacture the finished product in their own factories and plants in America.

This would appear to be the reason why local exporters of the finished article find it difficult to market their product, the major portion of the exports from China being shipments of raw hair.

Until recently the trade has been limited mostly to double mesh hair nets, but there is discernible a steady movement during the past two years in favor of single mesh nets.

Most of the shipments of human hair nets from China are made from Chefoo, Shanghai being second, with Tainanfu trailing along at third.

Dealers in hair predict that if the present price for their commodity can be maintained without violent fluctuations a very steady business will be assured.

Turkish Women Demand Abolition of Polygamy

Constantinople.—Turkish women are agitating for the same rights possessed by women of other countries.

At a largely attended meeting of women of the educated class held in this city to discuss women's rights to end the practice of polygamy to end the practice of polygamy was expressed.

The meeting passed resolutions demanding that laws regulating marriages, divorces and polygamy on modern lines should be framed, and a committee was formed to draft the reforms.

"Polygamy, which is authorized by our present laws, is a relic of past ages," said one speaker. "We must break with this tradition, which, in any event, has not been practiced for the last twenty years." The authorities are said to be sympathetically inclined toward the women's demands.

"Faith Healing" Issue In Church of England

London.—"Faith healing" promises to become a subject of controversy in the Church of England following the report of a committee appointed by the Archbishop of Canterbury to investigate the subject. The report urged sick persons "not to look to clergymen to do what is the duty of physicians and surgeons" and advised the church "not to apply its means of restoration when no higher end than the recovery of bodily health is sought." The report, which also criticized amateur healers, is said to be opposed by certain factions in the church.

For some time past customers of a certain fashionable shop in Bond street, London, have been puzzled over the identity of an unusually attractive assistant who sometimes attends to their wants. Now it transpires that she is Lady Rosamond Galloway-Robertson, daughter of the earl and countess of Garrick. Lady Rosamond is an expert designer of dresses and so great was her desire to put her talent to practical use that she at last obtained her parents' consent to accept the position she now holds.

In Iceland, where one would suppose that coal was about the most essential of commodities, it has just been announced that Icelanders are about to do away with that fallacious heating medium entirely. The authorities in Reykjavik, the capital, are considering utilizing the natural hot springs and geysers there for heating the whole country.

A remarkable stone wall built in the form of a fortress on the top of a Georgia mountain, south of Lookout mountain, Tennessee, is believed to be of pre-Indian origin, as the Cherokee Indians told the first white settlers that a strange white race were in this vicinity before them. A walled-up spring is visible in the opening gate. There is not a civil engineer in America who could improve on its construction as a fortress defense.

College Bars Autos

Students at Pennsylvania State college hereafter will be prohibited from taking their motorcars to college as a result of action taken at the annual meeting of the board of trustees. Parents of students are to be notified to this effect.

The resolution declared: "It is the opinion of the board of trustees that students of the college cannot keep automobiles for use while at college, without interference with their studies and without considerable risk to their personal safety and health."—New York Sun and Globe.
