Why Men Wear Silk
We hear much about vanity in the well-known feminine sex, but there seems to be no limit of idleness to which men folk will go in their effort to extend their personalities, as the new psychologist might put it, by means of costly garb. Silks at $50 each in certain establishments have become too commonplace to elevate a single eyebrow. Perhaps the only reason men do not dress more gaudily than women is because they lack the courage of their desires and are too vain to admit their own sartorial weaknesses.—Nation's Business.

BOTH FACTIONS EXPECT VICTORY IN S. D. PRIMARY

McMaster Expected to Defeat Sterling—First Test For McAdoo

Pierre, S. D., March 24.—(Special.)—With voters of South Dakota going to the polls Tuesday to nominate candidates for the presidential race, both Coolidge and Johnson camps, Monday night, were predicting victory for their respective candidates.
Gov. W. H. McMaster, running against Senator Sterling for the senatorial nomination, is expected to win by a comfortable majority, according to advance predictions.
Although but 10 democratic and 13 republican delegates to the national conventions are to be named, presidential camps all over the nation are watching the outcome of the primary Tuesday with more than usual interest. For William G. McAdoo, democratic candidate for the presidential nomination, it will be the first test of strength in a northern primary; for Johnson and Coolidge it will, according to political leaders, mean much more than the winning or losing of the delegates to the national convention.

Closes Campaign
Governor McMaster closed his campaign for nomination for the Senate in a speech at Mitchell Monday evening. Senator Peter Norbeck spoke at Bridgewater, in favor of Hiram Johnson.

A eleventh hour decision of the state attorney general, to the effect that unregistered voters may be sworn in when accompanied by the necessary affidavits is expected to swell the vote, in view of the fact that only about five-sevenths of the total voting strength of the state has been registered.
Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin is regarded as the "unknown quantity" in the republican primary. Since he has not tied himself to the farmer-labor party and is still regarded as a republican, and since he polled more than 37,000 votes in the republican primary in North Dakota last week there is said to be a strong feeling in political circles that he will cut somewhat of a swath in the primary in this state Tuesday.

COOLIDGE CONFIDENT
Universal Service
Washington, March 24.—On the eve of the South Dakota primary—the first clean cut test between Coolidge and Hiram Johnson—the president was confident of success.
The only official comment was, "there is nothing more to do but await the count of the ballots Tuesday night." But beneath this there was a tone of optimism. Those familiar with the situation in the official family said that while any kind of a showing under the circumstances would be a "good showing," they look for a complete surprise.

The situation is a peculiar one, they say. Senator Norbeck and many powerful politicians in the state are fighting on the side of Johnson. The Coolidge forces claim to have a better organization and a slight advantage in the registration. This fact and the prestige of his recent North Dakota showing, they contend, will carry the day.
This view was contained in a lengthy telegram from Ope Chamberlain, in charge of the state campaign. He said that Coolidge clubs in every township and hamlet would turn out in full force and in his opinion would be able to offset the Johnson state machine.

The Coolidge forces, however, are looking far and beyond the admittedly doubtful outcome in South Dakota. They believe they will be victorious, but contended that a failure will make little difference in the eventual outcome. They claim that even with the state a complete loss, the president will go into the convention with upwards of 90 out of the 1,000 odd ballots and be nominated without serious opposition.

They point out that with South Dakota out of the way there remain just two doubtful states. These are California, the home of Senator Johnson, and Wisconsin, which, it is all probability will instruct a delegation for Senator La Follette. They expect Johnson to get some scattered delegates, but in no likelihood which can now be seen to control a state delegation.
The southern states, New England, New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Oregon and Washington are already in the Coolidge column, his managers say.

Police and Firemen Called to Quell Throngs Demanding Admittance to Bare-Foot Dance Under Roof of a Church

REV. DR. WILLIAM N. GUTHRIE, BISHOP MANNING & CHURCH DANCERS

New York, March 24. (I. N. S.)—Police reserves and firemen had to be called Sunday afternoon and again Sunday night to handle the crowd that tried to crush its way into St. Mark's in the Bowerie to witness four white robed barefoot young women go through the graceful movements of "the ritual dance of the Della Robbia Annunciation."
The two services were the answer of the Rev. Dr. William Norman

Guthrie, rector of the church, to Bishop Manning's peremptory order that the eurythmic rituals cease.
Seventy-five clergymen were present at the service today at the invitation of Dr. Guthrie to witness the dance for which he wrote the libretto.
"I offered to let the bishop appoint 25 members of a jury officially to judge the dance," said Guthrie, "and he ignored the offer. What then? I invited the clergy and the public to witness it and judge for themselves. The bishop's stand is autocratic. I take the democratic view, and on this dance I will stand or fall."

The spectators paid the spectacle the tribute of almost breathless silence. "After it was finished, clergymen and laymen commended Dr. Guthrie for the artistic presentation and expressed their hearty approval. Several remarked they could not "see what the row is about."

BIG SURPRISE IS SPRUNG BY REPUBLICANS

Action Expected to Force Showdown on Floor of Senate

Washington, March 24.—The Senate finance committee, on a strict party vote of 8 to 7, voted in the Mellon income tax rates in lieu of the Longworth compromise rates adopted by the House, in considering the tax revision measure Monday night.
The republicans sprung a surprise on the democrats when Senator Curtis, the republican whip, without warning, moved to substitute the Mellon for the Longworth rates. Those voting for the change were Chairman Smoot, McLean, Curtis, Watson, Reed, of Pennsylvania, Elkins, Ernst and Stanfield, republicans. Opposing were Simmons, Jones of New Mexico; Gerry, Reed, of Missouri; Walsh, Harris and King, democrats. Not voting were La Follette and McCormick, republicans, neither of whom was present.
The vote was taken before there was an opportunity for debate or discussion. Chairman Smoot announced that if the democrats later wanted to reopen the question it would be up to the committee to decide whether Monday night's action should be reconsidered.
The democrats have not come to an agreement among themselves as to just what they will propose as a substitute for the Mellon rates. They were in conference late Monday afternoon without reaching a decision. However, it is known their proposal will closely approach the Garner democratic House plan providing for 44 per cent as a starting point with 40 per cent as a trading co-terminus.
Monday night's action will force a showdown fight on the floor of the Senate when the tax bill is reported out and test the strength of the administration in the effort to put through the Mellon schedule. Democratic senators claim they will have enough support from the labor-farmer and insurgent republican group to defeat the Mellon rates.
Republicans, on the other hand, claim they can count on some democratic support.

Plot to Kidnap Ford Children Thwarted

Notes Demanded $1,050,000 Ransom—Threatened to Blind Youngsters

Universal Service
Detroit, Mich., March 24.—With the arrest of Waslov Simek and Mrs. Hladik, the authorities revealed an alleged plot to kidnap the three children of Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor company, and blind them unless a $1,050,000 ransom was paid. Simek and Mrs. Hladik, both natives of Czechoslovakia, were said to be the authors of the letters which Ford turned over to the authorities.
Simek, the authorities declare, has confessed writing the letters, charging that Mrs. Hladik, with whom he boarded, had forced him to do so. Handwriting experts were said to have traced the letters to Simek. Mrs. Hladik denied a part in the plot.
In the series of three letters mailed to Ford at his office on March 5, 8 and 12, an empty lot was designated as a depository for the money.
A tin box, containing "stage" money, was planted by detectives and Simek was taken into custody when he called for the money.

GAY LIFE OF EUROPE COSTS ANOTHER MONARCH HIS JOB

BY BASIL D. WOON,
Universal Service Correspondent.
Paris, March 24.—Paris and its beauties; the gay life of the casinos at Deauville, Cannes, Nice, and Aix Les Bains, and the luxurious champagne sipping existence of fastidious and wealthy Europe, have cost another king his job.
Ahmad IV is no longer shah of Persia.
Like Manuel of Portugal, wine, women and song proved irresistible to the boyish, rotund little monarch who liked better to sit in Citro's or the Embassy club watching the pageant of Paris night life and receiving the adulation of scores of lovely women to whom royalty is an unceasing attraction, than the comparatively dull life of his Teheran harem.
At home there were only 16 dusky inmates in the royal harem, and they have long complained of their monarch's unpatriotic liking for European and American women in preference to the beauties of his own country.

Since Sunday morning when he first received confirmation of the news that he had been deposed, the youthful former king has cried almost ceaselessly. Great tears roll down his royal cheeks as he reflects on the splendid privileges he has sacrificed because of his love for the gay life.
Inconsoable, he remains in his private suite in his house near the Bois de Boulogne, walking around in circles and lamenting his fate in true oriental fashion.
Even the nifty American movie agent who thought to cheer up the fallen monarch with an offer to appear on the screen at Hollywood, only succeeded in getting thrown out by the fat shah's big footmen.

PROBERS ASK AID OF HUGHES

Secretary Urged to Use "Good Offices" for Return of Witness

Universal Service
Washington, March 24.—The Daugherty investigating committee of the Senate Monday called upon Secretary of State Hughes to use his "good offices" to bring about the return to the United States of Howard Mannington, alleged friend of the attorney general and a central figure in testimony given before the committee relative to whisky deals.
Secretary Hughes immediately cabled the American embassy at Paris to ascertain whether Mannington were there, and, if he were there, to use its "good offices" to advise him to return to the United States.
The state department is without authority to compel the return to the United States of an American citizen except for an extraditable offense under international agreements.
Testimony Postponed
The taking of testimony before the committee was postponed until Wednesday owing to the illness of Senator Wheeler, democrat, of Montana, who is leading the fight on the attorney general, and the pressure of other matters demanding the attention of other members.
Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of the late Jess Smith, is scheduled to resume the witness stand when the committee meets again. She will complete her direct testimony and be turned over to the attorney general's counsel for cross examination.
Miss Stinson has named Mannington as one of the frequenters of the "little green house in K street," which is playing an important part in the investigation. The demand for Mannington's return to the United States was made by Senator Ashurst, democrat, of Arizona, who is aiding Senator Wheeler in the fight on the attorney general.
John Goroni, vice president of the Alps Drug company of New York, has quoted William Orr of New York as authority for the statement that Mannington received $2 out of the $15 per case payment made for whisky withdrawal permits during the summer of 1921. According to Goroni, between 50,000 and 60,000 cases were released in this way.
Mannington's share, Goroni testified, was "split three ways," one of the thirds going to Jess Smith. The recipient of the remaining third has never been disclosed, and the committee is curious as to his identity.
A new feature of the Daugherty investigation is the introduction of questions bearing upon the circumstances surrounding the death of Jess Smith. Miss Stinson has testified to the fear which oppressed Smith during the six months immediately preceding his death.
When Smith was found dead a year ago with a bullet wound in his right temple and a pistol at his side, the local coroner made an investigation and pronounced the case clearly one of suicide. The coroner still adheres to his original opinion, but democrats in the Senate recently have intimated that there may have been a different cause. The course of Senator Wheeler's examination of Miss Stinson has indicated an inclination on his part to call the suicide verdict into question.

Legion Post Denounces Action of Chicago Church

Universal Service
Chicago, March 24.—The Advertising Post, American Legion, passed a resolution condemning "as un-American the action of the First Methodist church of Evanston" for inviting Brent Dow Allison to deliver an address. Other posts are expected to pass similar resolutions.
"We beseech the governing body of the Methodist church in America to take such action as is necessary to convince the people of the United States that the action of the First Methodist church does not represent the sentiments of that body," says the resolution.
