Indians Had No Horses
The Indians had dogs but not horses before the white men came. The Indian dog was little different from the tamed wolf from which it is supposed to have sprung. Eskimos were using dogs for transportation when first white men arrived. Though fossils of the forerunner of the horse have been found in America, it is now generally believed that these animals became extinct many thousands of years ago and that all horses used by the Indians were descendants of Spanish horses. Cortez brought horses to Mexico and De Soto is known to have abandoned a large number of horses near the Texas border.

STAYING HOME FROM WORK MEANS MONEY LOST

Many Women Know This by Experience

Let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Help You As It Helped These Women

Mrs. McDole's Experience
Ludington, Michigan.—"I suffered every month and was very irregular, had headaches all the time. I was thin and pale, with no appetite. I had taken all kinds of medicines, and every doctor told me I would have to face an operation before I would be well again. I was doing factory work, and I had to stay at home so much that I was getting discouraged. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did so with good results. I am now feeling fine. I have advised all my girl friends, who have such troubles as I had, to take your wonderful medicine."—Mrs. THRESSA MCDOLE, 426 S. Rath Ave., Ludington, Mich.

Los Angeles, California.—"I was in such a condition that I was scarcely able to walk, even to do my housework. I had no energy, was depressed and often wished to die. I am a chef, but was totally unable to do any cooking. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have taken it with success. After the fourth bottle I felt much better, and after the tenth I never felt better in my life, as it resulted in a complete recovery. I certainly recommend it to all I hear complaining and you can use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. MARY SULLIVAN, 923 E. 46th Street, Los Angeles, California.

Tortoise Shell
Tortoise shell is used as veneering in fine cabinet work. It is cut for such purpose in exactly the same manner as any of the fine woods. There are two grades of thickness, the saw cut and the knife cut. The first, averaging from one-thirty-second to one-sixteenth of an inch in thickness, is cut with a small saw. The knife cut makes from 60 to 100 sheets to an inch. The knife is used something like a plane. The object is fixed on a table and the knife blade works backward and forward. Tortoise shell was formerly cut by hand, about one-eighth of an inch in thickness, and then planned. It may be softened by gentle heat and may then be cut readily.

How He Felt
Jimmy, not feeling very well, was advised by his mother to go and see the doctor.
"Now, my little man," said the doctor, "what is the matter with you?"
"It's like this, doctor," answered Jimmy. "You know how you feel when you don't know how you feel? Well, that's how I feel."

Kith and Kin
"What were you and Mr. Smith talking about in the parlor?" demanded Miss Blushes' mother.
"Oh, we were discussing our kith and kin," replied the young lady.
"Yeth, you wath," interposed her little sister. "Mr. Thmth asked you for a kith, and you said 'you kin'."

The Adventures of Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy

by Johnny Gruelle

The Raggedys were very glad to get their two Magic books back from old Witch Wiggins who lived in the 'op of the high oak tree, for she had taken them away from the Raggedys.

The only trouble now was the fact that both Magic books were invisible and if the Raggedys did not hold on to them, the two Magic books might easily get lost for good.

So, Raggedy Andy held them very tightly as he climbed down the rope ladder which led from the ground up to the Witch's house.

"Oh, dear!" Raggedy Ann cried when they had only climbed half way down the rope ladder, here comes the mean old Witch home again. What shall we do?"

"Shall we climb back up and hide in the Witch's house?" Little Rags puppy dog asked. He was being carried by Raggedy Ann for little puppy dogs can't climb down rope ladders very well!

"I am afraid that she has already seen us!" Raggedy Ann replied.
This was indeed quite true for as Raggedy Ann spoke, the mean old Witch gave an angry howl, like this, "ahwool!" and ran towards the rope ladder.

Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy immediately started to climb up to the Witch's house again. "We will close and lock the door!" Raggedy Ann said. "Then she will be unable to get inside!"

In a moment, the mean old Witch reached the rope ladder and tried to shake it and make the Raggedys tumble to the ground but the Raggedys knew this was just what she would do, so they held on real tight and finally reached the top.

Then they ran in the door and were just about to close and lock the door when Raggedy Andy cried "Wait a minute, Raggedy Ann!" and went out upon the Witch's porch.

"What are you going to do, Raggedy Andy?" Raggedy Ann asked.
"I shall wait until the mean old Witch has climbed half way up the ladder and I shall do just as she did to me! I shall shake her off and make her tumble down to the ground!"

"Oh, but Raggedy Andy!" Raggedy Ann cried as she caught his sleeve and pulled him into the house. "You forget that you are stuffed with cotton and it does not hurt you to tumble from a great high place, but it would hurt the Witch very much to fall so far!"

"That is quite true, Raggedy Ann!" Raggedy Andy said as he locked the door. "And anyway, it was wrong for me to wish to harm her just because she tried to hurt me!"

"Indeed it was!" Raggedy Ann replied. "Anyway, the old Witch can't get inside her house with the door locked, so we are safe inside here until she gets hungry and has to go away for food! Then we can climb down while she is away and escape!" My! How the mean old Witch thumped and spluttered at the door but it did her no good, for she soon found that she could not get in.

When Raggedy Andy discovered the nice things in Witch Wiggins' ice box, he and Raggedy Ann and little Rags puppy dog were very glad, for they knew right away that the ice box was a magic ice box and as soon as the food was used up, the ice box was filled with more food.

If it had not been for this, the Raggedys and little Rags puppy dog would have had a sad time of it, shut up in Witch Wiggins' house at the top of the great oak tree.

For, there they were inside with the doors locked so that old Witch Wiggins could not get in to take their two Magic books away from them.

Old Witch Wiggins had to sleep out on the front porch every night while the three friends slept inside on the Witch's nice clean white soft bed. And even though old Witch Wiggins wished to get at them and would have treated them badly if she could have caught them, Raggedy Ann always gave old Witch Wiggins her breakfast and dinner and supper. This she passed out through a crack in the window.

It would have been very easy for the Raggedys and little Rags to escape from old Witch Wiggins' house if the two Magic books which the Witch had taken from them had not been made invisible.

The Raggedys found the two Magic books hidden under Witch Wiggins' pillow on her bed, but both books were invisible, so, even though the Raggedys could feel the two Magic books, they could not see them. So you see they could not read the directions for making Magic things, or making wishes come true.

Of course, neither Raggedy Ann, nor Raggedy Andy could read only from Magic books. Magic books are very nice for that reason, for if a very little child finds a Magic book; even if he, or she cannot read from a little easy as pie story in a primer, why, they can read from a Magic book just as well as grown up persons.

A Striking Likeness.
From the Santa Barbara News.
Mrs. Hogan—"An' d'ye know my sister? Shure, we look enough alike 't' be related."
Mrs. Murphy—"Yer sister, is it? Shure, I know yer sister. Yez look so much like her that I would know yez was sisters even if I had never seen either of yez."

So It Seems
From Judge Country Doctor—Well, Mr. Sayers, how's the wife?
Mr. Sayers—I thought that was comin'. Anyone could think I never had such things as rain and frost and blight to concern me!

That is one of the nice things about Magic books, and they are all alike. I hope you find one some day!

So there the Raggedys were. They had their two Magic books, but the books were invisible.

And there the mean old Witch Wiggins was, out on the front porch howling to be let in. And she would not leave.

"Just you wait!" old Witch Wiggins howled into the key hole. "When I catch you oh! You'll be sorry! Just you wait!"

"Ha, ha, ha!" little Rags puppy dog replied. "Who's afraid of you when you are locked outside?"

"You'll be afraid if I get inside!" the old Witch howled. "Anyway, I can't understand puppy dog language, so I shall not talk with you!"

"Oh dear!" little Rags sighed. "If I only could talk, I'd tell that mean old Witch Wiggins just how mean she is!"

"Ha! Ha! I wouldn't listen to you!" the Witch replied. "Even if you could talk!"

And Raggedy Ann, because she did not like quarrelling, hurried and got dinner ready.

Little Rags puppy dog did not know what to do when he saw the mean old Witch Wiggins climb into the kitchen window, tiptoe to Raggedy Ann's bed room and Raggedy Andy's bed room.

You see, little Rags puppy dog was only a cloth puppy dog and stuffed with cotton, so he could not think quite as well as Raggedy Ann who had a nice candy heart with the words, "I Love You," printed on it.

But when the mean old Witch Wiggins came out of Raggedy Andy's bed room and laughed a real Witchy laugh and said, "Aha! That was the time I fooled you! Now I have both Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy tied tight so they cannot escape!" little Rags puppy dog knew his two good friends were in a lot of trouble. And he felt very sad when the old Witch added, "Tomorrow, I shall run them through the clothes wringer and roll them out as flat as pan cakes!"

Little Rags puppy dog did not know this would not hurt the Raggedys even one little teeny, weeny smidgin. "Why!" Raggedy Ann could have told him. "We have been run through the clothes wringer before this, when, back in the nursery we would become soiled from being fed so many chocolate creams. Then Dinah would wash us in the wash tub and run us through the clothes wringer and hang us out on the clothes line in the nice warm sun to dry." Little Rags puppy dog did not know this, so he just hid behind the wood box in the Witch's kitchen and felt extremely sad.

Old Witch Wiggins came shuffling out into the kitchen after she had tied up the Raggedys. She went to the cupboard to eat some cream puffs before she went to bed and it was then she saw little Rags puppy dog hiding.

"Why, what are you doing here?" she cried.

"I wouldn't do the least bit of good for me to try and tell you!" little Rags sighed. "Cause Why? Cause I can't talk and you wouldn't understand me!"

"Of course, it would do no good!" the Witch cried. "Who can understand what a Rag puppy dog says, I'd like to know?"

"That is why I feel so sad!" little Rags puppy dog said. "You see, Raggedy Ann has promised that if she can use the two Magic books she will work nice Magic on me so that I can talk!"

"Then you can just be as sad as you wish!" the mean Witch said as she stuffed six cream puffs full of cream. "Because Raggedy Ann will never find the two Magic books and you will never, never be able to talk!"

"It would be nice for me if she could find them!" the little Rag dog said half to himself. He did not tell the Witch that Raggedy Ann had already found the two Magic books.

"She can't find them!" the Witch said again. "I do not mind telling you, for you cannot talk and repeat what I say to Raggedy Ann!"

"Why can't she find them?" Rags asked. "Ha, ha, ha!" the Witch laughed. "I made the two Magic books invisible! That's why and they will not become visible again until someone holds them over a smoke made from six hairs out of my head; and of course, no one except me knows that, so no one except me can use the two Magic books!"

"If I could only talk, I would tell Raggedy Ann!" Rags said.

"Aha! But you can't talk!" the Witch laughed as she brushed the crumbs away and left little Rags puppy dog sitting all alone in the kitchen.

Artistic Triumphs.
From the American Mercury.
"It has taken me three years and it has cost 1 1/2 million dollars but I have at last succeeded in screening the masterpiece of my life!" said the great movie director.

"It has taken me three years and it has cost me my eyesight, but I have at last succeeded in engraving the entire Lord's Prayer on the head of a pin!" said the hermit of the Pyrenes.

Quite Fair.
From the Reynolds Newspaper (London).
"Here is that suit I bought of you last week," said the angry customer to the tailor. "You said you would return my money if it was not satisfactory."

"That's what I said," responded the polite tailor, rubbing his hands. "But I am happy to tell you that I found the money to be entirely satisfactory."

Relief

"Goodness! Where did she get the necessary funds?"
"Oh, the neighbors subscribed."
