

The following poem was written by Marjory Alderson, a member of the class of 1920:

SCRAMBLED TEACHERS.

(Eva Marjory Alderson.)

I have a recipe, and its just fine,
And on its results I will ask you to dine,
The teachers I'll scramble, (mix well, but not beat)
And when they are done, they will be a fine treat.

Mr. Dugger, the principal, says with a smile,
That the way of the good child is always worth while—
But he'll say with a frown and the smile he'll discard
That the transgressor's way has been always found hard.

Now teachers are handsome whenever they smile,
And that kind of a look beats the grouches a mile.
Let's unite our forces to make them smile more
And kick all the grouchy looks out of the door.

Miss Roskoff can drill us and grind us most stern,
But whenever we faithfully our lessons learn,
She quite kindly lets us make oodles of noise,
Look out of the windows and flirt with the boys.

Mrs. Suhr is really a sweet little thing,
Who teaches the sourful folks how to sing,
Takes care of the Seniors is expert at eats,
And subject her pupils to all kinds of treats.

Mrs. Disher wields ruler, compass and chalk
And gives out a very good line of talk,
About square things, and round things, and lines, I can't tell
And keeps us all wishing there was no call bell.

Mrs. Dugger and Shakespeare have picnics galore,
And if they had chances, they'd have even more,
She keeps us in spasms of fear and of dread,
Till Brutus has stabbed and till Caesar is dead.

Mr. Porter can give you a business like stare,
And can crack you a smile that is really most rare,
He's a genius at going "click-clickety-click"
At typewriting, shorthand, and arithmetic.

Mr. Suhr, the terrible, awful and kind,
Has the talent of making us poor people mind;
But whenever you're thinking it never will come,
He cracks you a smile that will wake up the dumb.

And so, if you've watched closely, you surely will find
How they have lengthened the brain and broadened the mind
Of the dear little pupils, in just four short years—
Let's offer the teachers three, long, hearty cheers!

NEW IDEA IN WATCH MAKING

Discovery, It is Announced, is Capable of Revolutionizing the Present Industry.

Not long ago there was announced a discovery described by the director of the international bureau of weights and measures as being capable of revolutionizing the watch-making industry. A successful method of regulation, remedying the variations in time of a watch due to the expansion and contraction of its parts caused by variations of temperature, is the result of the invention of C. E. Guillaume.

This so-called "secondary error" always has been one of the great obstacles in the attainment of perfection and precision in the watchmaking industry.

The chief feature of the Guillaume process is a change in the alloy used in the compensating parts. Then minimum expansion of nickle steel was found to be increased by the addition of 12 per cent of chrome as well as a small quantity of tungsten, manganese or carbon. By mounting a spiral of this steel-nickel-chrome alloy in the watch, according to the French announcement, the problem of compensation has been solved and the "secondary error" removed.—Washington Star.

Museum Shows Ancient Customs.

One of the recent attractions added to the historic city of Lourdes, which has been the scene of many pilgrimages for the cure of physical ills, is a museum to illustrate the old customs of the natives in that region of France.

Six halls in the museum are reserved for a permanent exhibition of the furniture and costumes of the Pyrenean people, the equipment of their artisans (weavers, potmakers, shepherds, hunters, fishers, etc.) and their characteristic footwear. In other rooms are displayed botanical, geological and entomological collections, also painting, sculpture and applied arts of the region.

CALLED TO NEW YORK.

Dean Render To Be Rector of the Schuylerville Parish.

(Valentine Republican, April 23.) Dean Walter A. Render, head of the Episcopal deanery of Valentine and O'Neill, for the last three years, has received and accepted a call to the rectorship of the parish at Schuylerville, N. Y., and with Mrs. Render and Miss Marian, will leave for his new home next Tuesday. Dean Render's resignation from his present position was a surprise to most of his parishioners here, although it was known that he contemplated a change. He announced his coming departure at the evening service at St. John's church Sunday.

Bishop Beecher is now confronted with the task of finding a successor to Dean Render, who must look after a string of stations along the Northwestern several hundred miles in length.

with gasoline as with paint—
it's BALANCE
that
COUNTS

High quality pigments and oils don't guarantee a paint that spreads, covers and wears well. Neither do low, medium and higher boiling point fractions in gasoline assure superior motor fuel. In both cases balanced proportions determine real worth.

If altering the proportions of low and higher boiling point fractions in Red Crown would improve it, we would change it to a blended gasoline.

But Red Crown is so accurately balanced to give quick starts in any weather, burns up with such a slight residue of carbon, develops power so dependably and gives such big mileage per gallon that it would be a mistake to change it.

Innumerable experiments have proved that you can neither add nor take away any fraction of Red Crown and have as good an all-around motor fuel.

Drive up to any garage or dealer when you see this sign and you are sure of dependable service and full measure of gasoline that is uniform and properly balanced for quick starts, power and economy. There you can buy Polarine motor oils that provide protective lubrication.
