DEPUTY GAME WARDEN
ELMER HEINZELMAN
SHOT NEAR LAUREL

For wounding Deputy Game Warden Elmer Heinzelman, of Lincoln, formerly of O'Neill, with a shotgun after the officer had arrested his brother for fishing illegally with a seine, a Cedar county farmer named George Allen, living in the vicinity of Laurel, will have to face the serious criminal charge of shooting with murderous intent.

Three shots were fired by Allen without provocation or warning, according to the report of the affair received Tuesday over the long distance telephone from Heinzelman at Hartington, the county seat, to Chief Game Warden George E. Koster, at Lincoln. All were at close range. The first two loads penetrated the hind tires of the deputy warden's automobile, in which he was starting away from the Allen farm. The third struck Heinzelman in his back and shoulders, a number of large-sized shot lodging in the flesh.

The deputy warden shot back three times with his revolver, but none of the balls hit Allen. The latter retreated into his house, while Heinzelman and an assistant who was with him went on to Hartington, after replacing the tires.

As soon as the shooting was reported to Chief Warden Koster, he instructed Heinzelman to see the county attorney and have a warrant issued for Allen's arrest on the charge of shooting with intent to kill.

JERRY HOWARD WANTS
CONCERTED ACTION

Omaha, Neb., July 12, 1924.
To the Editor of The Frontier, O'Neill, Nebraska:

Please give space to the subjoined which is a copy of a letter I mailed to Hon. T. V. Golden, Chairman of the Association.

If this project is ready by September 12 there will be Irish men and women galore in O'Neill that day from eastern cities, also there will be a delegation from Denver under the leadership of Honorable John R. Scott, and from Los Angeles under the influence of Honorable Peter Murry.

Yours truly,
JERRY HOWARD.

"Omaha, Neb., July 11, 1924.
Hon. T. V. Golden, Chairman, and Members, O'Neill Monument Association:

"Gentlemen: I propose in a few words to lay this patriotic and international project before your organization and the entire citizenship of O'Neill.

"In my letter to The Frontier of June 13th, I stated what I told the people of Omaha about the 'present' residents of O'Neill. I would feel greatly disappointed, therefore, if in any way, they should fail to measure up to my estimation of their patriotism.

"Now, Mr. Golden, it puzzles me why you are so skeptical, when you say all the members of the organization, including yourself, feel that there will be opposition to transferring the remains and monument of Gen. John O'Neill, the hero of the Battle of Ridgeway, from Omaha to O'Neill, the city founded by this Irish Martyr patriot.

"I am not certain that I should have taken the advice of Mrs. E. F. Gallagher and Mrs. C. B. Scott to submit the purport of my mission to O'Neill to the Woman's Club. I would have taken their advice immediately, if it had not been for the fact that so many in Omaha spoke of T. V. Golden's sterling patriotism. Consequently, my faith in Mr. Golden, together with my long acquaintance with M. F. Harrington, convinced me that I could rely on the men to accomplish this long neglected patriotic and meritorious project.

"Let me digress from this subject to prove my faith in the patriotism of the women. A few days ago a distinguished jurist, who has gone to London, to confer with his Brother Barristers, Judges, Lawyers, 'Gailor Smith,' 'Lloyd George' and other Rascals, asked me to give him a letter of introduction to friends of mine in the Irish Republic, which he was to visit. In the long list of names I furnished him, I mentioned only two men, because the colleens are the most patriotic and intelligent—God bless them—to give him an accurate story about the Island of Saints, Martyrs, Patriots and Scholars.

"Mr. Golden, it hardly seems possible that the citizens of O'Neill will or can ignore this international project, or that there is any denationalized citizen, who will dare to oppose this movement which has the approval of the entire Irish Race.

"Civic pride should prompt the entire population of O'Neill to aid and encourage the movement in every way possible.

"Your organization has two secretaries and if they fail in the performance of their duties, dispense with them, and appoint one Colleen.

"Consequently, I am returning the Duffy-Johnston and Merchants Express Co., bills and suggest that your organization negotiate with these firms—"The West Awake, the West Awake."

"Yours very sincerely,
"JERRY HOWARD."

FAST NEWPORT TEAM DEFEATED HERE SUNDAY

The fast aggregation of ball players came down from Newport last Sunday and were defeated 5 to 1 by the Shamrocks. The game was exciting and full of interesting plays from start to finish.
