JERRY HOWARD WRITES ABOUT MOVING THE GEN. O'NEILL MONUMENT

Omaha, Nebr., August 18, 1924.

To the Editor of The Frontier, O'Neill, Nebraska:

Dear Sir: I entreat your indulgence for space to show the difference between an "Irish Woman's Society" and that of "General John O'Neill's Association" in your city.

These noble women set out to erect a monument, in Washington, D. C., to commemorate services of Nuns in the Civil War. It cost $50,000 and is now completed.

September 20th has been chosen as the date for the unveiling of the monument, which is inscribed "Nuns of the Battlefield" and which will be one of the most touching of many memorials that dot the National Capital. Cardinal O'Connell will deliver the address.

The error which I made in O'Neill City was that I did not explain my mission to the women. I am fully convinced that had I done so General John O'Neill's remains and monument would, by this time, be transferred to the city he founded and be ready for re-dedication September 20th, as was intended.

September 20th is the anniversary of the martyrdom of Robert Emmet. The day would have a historic and patriotic significance from Dublin to Washington, thence to O'Neill.

Everything is revealed by time, and whoever is obstructing this national project of transferring the mortal remains of the hero of the Battle of Ridgeway, and the monument erected to his memory from Omaha to O'Neill, the city established by this Irish martyr patriot, will be known and held up to public ridicule and scorn of the entire Irish Race.

The men who are true to Ireland are our pride, as they are our shame when they are false to it. They are true for the most part and with great sacrifice to themselves, they respond with eagerness.

General John O'Neill was ever ready to draw his sword in the cause of freedom, and responded in every way possible to elevate his people—Thiggin—thu.

Yours truly,
JERRY HOWARD.
