HOLT COUNTY OATS GO 72 BUSHEL PER ACRE

(Atkinson Graphic, Aug. 21.)

Seventy-two and one-half bushels per acre, by weight, was the record yield of the 1924 oat crop on John Laible's farm about five miles west of Atkinson. This yield was obtained on a field of new ground and the grain stood shoulder high before cutting. After threshing fourteen acres the grain seemed so extraordinarily heavy that it was decided to measure the yield. This being done the result 1015 bushels—believed to be the heaviest yield ever grown in this part of the state. Chas. Prussa, who threshed the grain on the Laible place, said that this was the heaviest oat yield that he had ever threshed.

A heavy wind that developed proportions of a tornado passed south of O'Neill about six o'clock Saturday evening doing considerable damage to hay stacks and small outbuildings in its path. At the Fred Vitt place south-east of town a number of hay stacks were destroyed. The haying crew were working in the field when the storm came up. The blowing hay caused the teams to run away and the crew had plenty to do to protect themselves. Damage was also reported from several places south of town.

O'Neill citizens hung up two new records Tuesday. It being a nice sunny day Harry Bowen broke the heat record with his government thermometer, making it register 101 at 2 o'clock, the hottest day of the season so far. News of the Bowen record so interested Paddy O'Donnell, who is a hot weather golfer, that he immediately hiked out to the Country Club with Clyde King as affidavit man and played the course in a thirty-three, which is the lowest it ever has been done. Par is thirty-five. Following is the score by holes: No. 1—4; 2—4; 3—4; 4—2; 5—4; 6—4; 7—3; 8—5; 9—3. Total 33.

Omaha citizens are wondering whether O'Neill has gone to sleep or merely is indifferent in regard to the removal of the remains of General John O'Neill, and his monument, from Omaha to the city he founded, says John Carr in discussing incidents of his recent sojourn in the Nebraska metropolis. News of the proposal to move the monument to O'Neill has spread far and beyond the confines of Nebraska, continued Mr. Carr. In a conversation with Thomas Flynn, prominent Wyoming citizen, Mr. Flynn inquired whether or not O'Neill was taking any interest in the movement. Mrs. Mary Kennedy, Dan Butler, John Lynch, T. P. Redmon, Jerry Howard and numerous others also expressed regret at the seeming indifference of O'Neill citizens.
