BACK ACHY?

Lame and achy in the morning? Tortured with backache all day long? No wonder you feel worn out and discouraged! But have you given any thought to your kidneys? Weak kidneys cause just such troubles; and you are likely to have headaches, too, with dizziness, stabbing pains and other kidney irregularities. Don't risk neglect! Use Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Iowa Case

Mrs. T. Roder, 712 Fourth Ave. W., Oelwein, Iowa, says: "I was in almost constant misery with the dull pains across my back. The pain settled between my shoulders, too, and I didn't feel at all like myself. My kidneys acted too freely and annoyed me. I used Doan's Pills and they regulated my kidneys and the backache left me."

Farmers Are Not Yet Justified In Dropping Fight for Equality

From Wallace's Farmer.

Providential shortages of corn, wheat and hogs raised the Business men everywhere, both in the east and in the corn belt, say that $1 corn, $9 hogs and $1.25 wheat have made the farmers forget their fight for equality. If prices during the next year go as high as they would have gone under the McNary-Haugen bill, why bother to have such a bill?

It seems that most people know but little about the causes of the recent rise in prices of corn, wheat and hogs. First, in the case of corn, there is a definite shortage of old corn, which Wallace's Farmer predicted in a leading editorial last February. The new crop promises to be 15 per cent. less than last year's and a shortage of this sort almost always causes a price rise of at least 20 per cent. Second, with wheat, there is a slight shortage in the United States, decided crop damage in Canada, and considerable damage in Europe. The world situation is easily 25 cents a bushel stronger than a year ago. Third, with hogs, it has been a clear-cut case for a year that hog production would pass its peak in early 1924. Wallace's Farmer has been on record for nearly a year that hog prices at Chicago would go above $9 during the late summer of 1924 prices of these products. What the business men and some farmers don't realize is that these shortages will pass away. Much as the farmer's income has been increased during the past two months, the fundamental situation remains unchanged. We still have a farm plant capable of producing in the average year a considerable surplus of wheat and hogs for Europe. Even though our corn crop should prove to be a complete failure and corn should go to $2 a bushel, the need of recognizing the principles of the McNary-Haugen bill would still be with us.

New Divining Rod.

From Living Age.

Every one knows the old belief that water or precious ore can be detected beneath the surface of the earth by the diviner's rod—a forked twig held in the hands of any person endowed with the gift of divination. Experts of the South Kensington Museum have been experimenting for some weeks with a new scientific instrument which is designed to accomplish precisely the same result. This is the Eotvos torsion balance, which is devised to indicate the direction in which a vein of ore extends. No complete report of the test has yet been made, but it has been shown that the instrument can be used in mountainous country as well as on flat areas, which were at first supposed to be its only possible field.

The torsion balance, originally devised on the continent, but now being manufactured also in Great Britain, is operated wholly by gravitation. It consists of a beam suspended by a wire, a trifle over a thousandth of an inch in diameter. Two gold weights are attached at either end of the beam, one fast to the beam itself, and another swinging from a fine wire two feet long. The presence or absence underground of any material having more or less density than ordinary soil affects the balance of the beam. This effect is, as might be expected, very slight, but is rendered perceptible by a magnifying mirror.

The balance is said to be useful in detecting deposits of salt and oil, as well as ore, and it may become useful to archaeologists, since it is also affected by hollow spaces beneath the surface.

Low Interest Rates.

From Commerce and Finance.

The cut of the rediscount rate of the New York Federal Reserve bank to 3 per cent. was the event of the week in the money markets. It is the lowest on record and the lowest of any central bank in the world, and should strengthen the position of this market in world finance. Nevertheless it had virtually no influence on open market rates, which were already below a parity with the old rediscount rate. Commercial paper eased slightly, the choicest names going at 5 per cent. and sixty-day collateral loans could be had at 2 per cent. Call money in the outside market was 1 1/2 per cent. Time money is available in practically unlimited supply.

The weekly report of the Federal Reserve bank showed a decline of $30,000,000 in gold, which is presumably put into circulation, and a drop of $20,000,000 in bills discounted. Purchases of $30,000,000 of government securities, however, caused a slight increase in earning assets. The statement of the member banks for the week ended July 30 showed a gain of $48,000,000 in loans and discounts, entirely on stocks and bonds. Deposits jumped a hundred million, however, and investments were increased $45,000,000. The reserve ratio dropped slightly to 32.5 per cent.

The country's money circulation per capita on August 1 was $41.36, a decline of 34 cents during July.

Pledge for Clean Pictures

From the Milwaukee Journal.

Will H. Hays has persuaded 17 motion picture companies, controlling 85 per cent. of the pictures produced in the Los Angeles Hollywood district to pledge themselves not to produce nor to aid in the distribution and exhibition of films salacious in character or title. That, probably, is the most important single piece of work Mr. Hays has accomplished as head of the producing community and for it he deserves real credit.

On the side of better pictures, he could point at the end of last year to 50 films which the critics had called great as against an average of less than 10 in the years preceding. On the side of cleaner pictures, the obstacles have seemed almost unsurmountable at times. For the producer who realized that he had a real duty to the public would be forced from his position by the competition of another producer who was without scruples. The lowered things in life for the sake of the box receipts. Now, if this pledge is carried out such competition will be eliminated.

There will still be the question of what constitutes obscenity. This will still be a conflict between puritanical and liberal ideas. But we'll all see pictures frankly and certainly salacious. That kind must go, and with this will come a gradual raising of standards.

Through With The Czars.

A. Margolin in Current History Magazine.

The chances of a restoration of the monarchy in Russia are now practically negligible. Even should the Russian monarchists succeed, their victory would be only temporary, for they would be unable to retain power. Besides the opposition of peasants and the workmen, the heterogeneousness of the nationalities composing the population in that part of the world will be an insurmountable obstacle to any permanent restoration. Ukrainians, Tartars, White Russians, Georgians and others will never agree to fall again under the power of the "czar of Moscow." The old Russia of the czars—that prison of peoples—is too fresh in their memories.

At this moment the 13 sanatory of Ukraine and the Caucasus are in a very inimical and irreconcilable spirit. Thanks to the trials and tribulations which the peasants with other classes underwent during the past years. Both Denikin and Lenin personified Moscow. Great Russia, in the eyes of the Ukrainians and Caucasians. If the peasants were asked to choose between them, however, they would prefer the Bolsheviks, as the regime of the white forces signifies to them the restoration of the privileges of landlords.

There Came a Ship.

There came a ship from the sky today,
Dropped from the sky with its cloudy sail
Caught by the waves in the distance grey.

Its bow of gold, and a silver trail
Linking its heart with the faraway,
Linking its heart with the faraway.

There came a ship with a gift for me,
Songs as sweet as the lilt of strain
Borne on the winds where they kiss the sea.

And tumble back to the sky again—
A haunting magical melody.

And would you know of the tales they tell,
And would you hear of the songs they sing?

From Wonderland where the fancies dwell
They float on a wide-stretched, pearly wing,
And wait for you in a tiny shell.

—Dorothy A. Lovell in the Christian Science Monitor.

A watchman employed in the Invalides had been arrested, charged with clipping bits off Napoleon's battle flags draped over the emperor's tomb, and selling them at $10 each to American tourists. It is estimated that the watchman entirely disposed of two battle flags, cutting off a tiny square of the faded, blood-stained, bullet-riddled bunting every time a tourist was willing to pay the price.

"VANITY FAIR" FOR $1,925.

From the New York Post.
A copy of the first edition of "Vanity Fair" has been sold for $1,925. When Thackeray went to New York in the middle of the last century how happy he would have been to get for one of his lectures the sum for which a single specimen of his best story has changed owners!

The price paid goes to show that the old favorites are not yet dispossessed by the current best sellers. Becky Sharp is worth a hundred modern heroines whose blood is the printer's ink of two score editions. She will live, like the creations of Dickens, as much of a fiction as one with the crumbled cuneiform tablets of Nineveh and Babylon.

TODAY

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE.

Saturday, August 23, Mars comes within thirty five million miles of us. Not to come so close again for 200 years. It is too much to hope for any message from our highly educated older brother in space. A planet millions of years older than we are probably looks upon us as a full grown man looks at a new baby biting its toes, considering us something interesting to look at, but too young to be taught.

Mr. Dawes says the issue is "the constitution versus radicalism in the United States." That is all right for a short campaign, but there isn't much substance in it. The radicalism of today sometimes becomes good United States constitutionalism of tomorrow.

The income tax was radical. Learned supreme court judges declared "radicalism," or worse—socialism or anarchy. But that will be in the constitution now. And so of woman suffrage, once so highly ridiculous. That's in the constitution now.

To interfere with child labor, highly profitable, in fact essential to profit in certain sections, is called "radicalism," or worse—socialism or anarchy. But that will be in the constitution soon.

It was radicalism once to suggest that slaves should be free. In New Jersey, when someone printed a prayer book showing a negro in the front of the church, the feet of the Saviour, along with other unfortunates, the picture was rejected by church authorities. It was called "radical," and "respectability" felt that a negro in chains was all right.

The constitution now holds the radical statement that a black skin shouldn't deprive a human being of his human rights.

Mrs. Borden, novelist, says "Love is played out as a theme for novels, the subject has been squeezed dry." "Love and sex," she thinks, are both out of date, but she is mistaken.

As soon as man was created, it was noticed that something was missing. Eve was produced, then along came the snake, forming the first "triangle." Early legends concerning that snake are queer. Ask the picture makers. They will tell you that whether you show the wild west or the crafty east, you must drag in your "love story" or miss your crowd.

The public prosecutor demands death for young Leopold and Loeb. "If they do not deserve hanging, no murders ever did deserve it." The question, however, is not also "what the young murderers deserve," but also, "what does the public deserve?"

Everybody admits that putting men to the torture in judicial proceedings was demoralizing, degrading. Nobody would restore the torture. Ravalliac, who killed Henry IV, may have "deserved" to be killed by torture inch by inch. The question is, did the French people deserve to have that disgrace put upon them?

The young Chicago murderers deserve death if any criminals ever did deserve it, assuming their mental responsibility, and putting them out of the way, by hanging, would be the most humane course as regards their parents, who can never know a day's peace or safety while the young men live.

But what do civilization and respect for justice deserve? Is a civilization that hangs or electrocutes essentially different from an earlier civilization that subjected criminals to the torture?

Henry Ford will sell soft coal from his mines in Kentucky. Having big plants far west on the lakes, Ford might develop and perhaps concentrate the northwestern deposits of lignite. Billions of tons of it await development and could supply all the fuel of the northwest. The by-products should pay for all the work.

Ford, in addition to selling coal, should be selling fertilizer in quantities to the farmers. He would be doing that soon if the lawmakers would allow him to develop Muscle Shoals instead of withholding it to oblige the fertilizer and power gentlemen.

George Gustow shocks the world by confessing that he has set fire to fifty houses, the love the uproar and the smoke," says this one of a respectable lawyer, and all are horrified. Yet the great equestrian monuments erected on this earth to "famous men" were built to honor individuals that, like Mr. Gustow, enjoyed the uproar and the smoke, of battle.

Gustow set fire to empty houses only, risking no lives, so it is hardly fair to associate his name with that of the world's great "heroes."

Keep Up the Fight.

From the Des Moines Register.

If the farmer is contenting himself with the sudden rise in prices, and thinking there is nothing more for him to worry about he is not wise.

The farmer is at the beginning merely of stabilizing his market and so adjusting sales of each year's crop as to keep his market stabilized.

If he is getting a little temporary advantage out of the present prices and is able to establish himself a little more firmly that is to his advantage in the struggle that is ahead of him.

Antelope Disappearing

Antelopes, the graceful, shy little animals whose tender flesh used to delight the early settlers of the prairies and large herds of which once grazed on the site of Saskatoon, Sask., are doomed to early extinction, in the opinion of Fred Bradshaw, chief game guardian of Saskatchewan. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps to Restore Health

A great many letters similar to the following recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a wonderful medicine for bringing the new mother back to normal health and strength.

It is an excellent restorative, contains no harmful drugs, and can be taken in safety by a nursing mother.

Thousands of mothers who have regained their strength by taking it are its best recommendation. Why not take it yourself?

Now Well Again

Milwaukee, Wisconsin.—"After I had my second child I felt sick and nervous and could not do much. Then after the other baby came I was worse than ever. I suffered this way for a long time and did not know what to do. I was looking over your cook books, and found one of your little books and I sat down and read every page. Then I bought a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took four bottles of it before I stopped, and now I am well again. I always recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends."—Mrs. JOHN MITZKE, 775 8th Ave., Milwaukee, Wis.

Buffalo, N. Y.—"My health got worse after my little girl's birth, and my mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it had done her so much good. I had headaches and tired feelings, with no ambition, also pains at times so it hurt me to walk. With the Vegetable Compound I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, and I have been greatly helped. I do hope you will use my letter as a testimonial as it will help other women."—Mrs. GEORGE SHOEMAKER, 349 Emslie St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Followed Friend's Advice

Vienna, South Dakota.—"After my second child was born I was completely run-down and didn't care for anything. I had sharp pains in my sides and a white discharge and was nervous and weak. I didn't seem to care how I neglected my work. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took it for two months the first time and one month the last time. It has helped me in a great many ways and the pains have left me entirely. I certainly wish you to know how much benefit I have received."—Mrs. G.W. FREEMAN, Vienna, South Dakota.

Such letters and a successful record of fifty years should convince every ailing woman that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine she needs. For sale by druggists everywhere.
