

BEING HELD ON WOMAN'S STORY

Another Is Involved in Counterfeiting Plot at Lincoln

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 1. (Special)—Mrs. Nellie Calvert was held to the federal grand jury by Commissioner Whitmore on a charge of having concealed knowledge of the manufacture of counterfeit money in the home of W. N. Parker. Mrs. Parker and her son, Eldon Outz, were the chief witnesses against her. Outz said that he had been present when Mrs. Calvert came into the room where the men were polishing the counterfeit coins, and remarked that they looked good enough to pass.

Mrs. Parker said the woman had come to her home a week before with Mrs. Robertson, a sister, and that they furnished her husband and his associate with the money to finance the enterprise. She said that Mrs. Calvert had planned to slope with the assistant, Jack Hurley. Parker waived a preliminary. Mrs. Robertson, who helped pass the bad coin at a circus in Auburn, is recovering from wounds inflicted by herself with a pistol after she was caught.

MANY CONVICTS ARE SEEKING LENIENCY

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 1. The state board of pardons and paroles will have applications for clemency to dispose of when it holds its next regular meeting at the state penitentiary, September 9, according to an announcement today. All the applications are from inmates of the prison or the state reformatory for men.

Edward Clayton and Thomas O'Grady, two Lincoln men, serving indeterminate sentences for breaking and entering, ask for commutation of sentence. All the other applicants seek paroles.

One of the parole seekers is Fred Harmon of Knox county, serving a one to ten-year sentence. He was a former trustee at the penitentiary, and while enjoying partial liberty as such is alleged to have participated in many holdups in Lincoln, a released prisoner assisting him in the highway robberies.

Seven short term men convicted at Omaha of crimes ranging from highway robbery to larceny from the person ask for paroles.

EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES MUST OBEY LAW

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 1. State Labor Commissioner Frye has received assurances from the two employment agencies in Omaha and the three in Lincoln that have not yet agreed to pay the $50 fee and put up the $2,000 bond required that they will make no further fight against the law. The district court at Omaha held one section of the law to be bad, but this was virtually a victory for the state as the section thus held no part of the licensing feature nor does it interfere with state control, which is the main issue in the litigation.

WINSIDE SCHOOLS OPEN ON MONDAY FOR YEAR

CHANCE FOR SCRABBLE OVER NEBRASKA ELECTORS

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 1. (Special)—Secretary of State Pool says that unless objections are filed with him within the time limit of the law, he will approve the filing of La Follette and Wheeler, nominated by a mass convention. The law is rather vague, and there is a chance for a lawsuit, but the republicans and democrats are quite willing to overlook the opportunity. The courts have been liberal in their construction of the election laws, in the interest of allowing freedom of opportunity for voters to support whoever they wish. If La Follette carries the state, the governor says he will name the electors put up by the mass convention, but the chance is good for an injunction then as the law requires nominations of electors to be made by a delegate convention.

FOSTER HEARD ON THE ISSUES

Workers' Presidential Candidate Says Labor Must Eventually Rule

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 1. (Special)—The Indian can farm successfully when he tries. Twenty first and 16 second prizes carried away from the Thurston county fair by Winnebago Indians are conclusive proof of this.

The candidate touched on the labor situation in Europe declaring that Ramsay MacDonald, England's labor prime minister is only "carrying on for capitalism."

"LaFollette, the independent candidate for president," the speaker continued, "can only curtail the power of the moneyed interest rather than abolish it. Capitalism will remain in complete power until labor assumes that control, and while capitalism rules, it will be only the big interests and not the small capitalists such as farmers, etc."

Mr. Foster is discussing the candidates of John W. Davis and Calvin Coolidge decided that they represent the capitalists and will continue to hold office in that status until "labor comes into its own."

THIS FARMER NOT DOWCAST

Has Handsome Bank Balance After Marketing Last Year's Crop

O'Neill, Neb., Sept. 1. (Special)—His corn crop cared for, the small grain cut and having a little surplus time on hand, Charles Jenkins, a farmer residing six miles north of O'Neill, last week hauled a little of his farm produce to town. He marketed 101 hogs which averaged more than 300 pounds each. They brought him $2,800. He also sold 2,400 bushels of corn for $1 a bushel. At the conclusion of his week of hauling he deposited $5,200 in a local bank and still has considerable of last year's corn crop and a number of hogs out on the farm in addition to his growing crops and other livestock.

Mrs. Jenkins this year has raised sufficient chickens to keep the table going and to realize more than $100 from the sale of birds and eggs, without materially reducing her flock.

The Jenkins farm of slightly more than half section is handled by Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins with the assistance of one hand during the rush season, but they find time to come to town occasionally in their automobile for pleasure and recreation.

The legislative committee may be present to discuss the action which has been taken toward putting through the possible tax bill in the next legislature.

For many months workers of the association have been feeling out the sentiment regarding a gasoline tax in Nebraska and it has been found that practically every commercial club favors the tax and many resolutions to this effect have been passed at meetings following a visit of representatives of the Good Roads association.

Kidnaper Victims Told To Leave Town

Sioux Falls, S. D., Sept. 1. (Special)—Kidnapped by a band of supposed bootleggers at Luverne, Minn., late Sunday night, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Keen, negroes, were brought to Sioux Falls early Monday, handed a $10 bill and told to leave this part of the country.

Three men, Carl Peterson, Carl Nelson and Paul Crockett, had been arrested Saturday at Luverne, charged with selling intoxicating liquor to the negroes and it is believed by the sheriff at Luverne and by local officials that the negroes were kidnapped and taken here by friends of the alleged bootleggers so that they could not appear against the defendants when they are arraigned Tuesday morning.

Win Many Prizes at Thurston County Fair With Farm Produce

Winnebago, Neb., Sept. 1. (Special)—The Indian can farm successfully when he tries. Twenty first and 16 second prizes carried away from the Thurston county fair by Winnebago Indians are conclusive proof of this.

For years the government has striven to interest the Indians in agricultural pursuits and to get them to farm their allotments of rich land in Thurston county and it seems that these efforts are bearing fruit.

In poultry as well as in agricultural and horticultural exhibits the Indians scored a success this year.

Joe Payer, who is said to be the first Indian farmer on the reservation, and who is now a veteran exhibitor and has won many prizes in county, state, interstate and international fairs, led the list with seventeen premiums to his credit, nine firsts and eight seconds. These were garden vegetables and orchard fruits.

In addition to products of farm and orchard, there were specimens of canning, jellies and jams, and Indian handicraft exhibited by the reservation women.

RAPIRE FIRES MUCH FEARED

Danger Is Seen in Open Country Sections of South Dakota

Pierre, S. D., Sept. 1. (Special)—Considerable anxiety is felt in this section of the state as to the dry condition of the prairies which are in excellent shape to cause big prairie fires unless great care is exercised. While the grass has a green tinge all native grass has cured without being cut due to the few hot sunny days. Many ranchmen and farmers are cutting and raking at the same operation as wild hay, unlike any of the tame forage plants, cures with as much nutrition without being cut as by being cut green and cured on the ground.

OATS IN STACKS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Hawarden, Ia., Sept. 1. (Special) Eight stacks of oats on the Emil Schimming farm, tenanted by F. A. Cooper, five miles northeast of Hawarden, were destroyed by fire Thursday afternoon. It is believed the fire was started by the four-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cooper who had been playing with matches. The loss represented the crop from about 40 acres. The oats were insured and Mr. Cooper will receive $494.75 in partial payment for the crop, it being the policy of the company to pay only up to 75 per cent of the total loss.

STATE'S FUNDS IN GOOD SHAPE

More Than $3,500,000 in Treasury of Depositories Of Nebraska

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 1. (Special)—The state treasury is again bulging with cash, or would be if the more than $3,500,000 it owns were not well distributed among the banks of the state. This is the condition despite the fact that only $703,000 was received during the month while $1,022,000 was expended. Permanent trust funds show a slight increase. The new statehouse fund has a balance of nearly $2,000,000, but the state general fund has dropped from $600,000 to $231,000. The permanent trust funds, from which interest is derived, now total very close to $13,000,000.

The Adventures of Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy by Johnny Gruelle

Raggedy Andy went ahead through the deep, deep woods, and behind him came Raggedy Ann, Mrs. Mungle, the Thingum and the Zumzee.

They were following the crooked legged man and the Snickle to the man's new house where he had taken Mrs. Mungle's magic cupboard and the magical hobby horse.

"What do you want?" the voice of the Genil cried. "Don't you know that I capture everyone who comes this way?"

"You just come out here a minute, Mr. Genil!" Raggedy Ann said.

When the Genil came out, he tried to grab Raggedy Ann, but Raggedy Andy gave him a thump upon his wrist with a stick. "Wow!" the Genil howled as he tried to grab Raggedy Andy. But Mrs. Mungle gave the Genil another hard crack with her stick.

And we shall have the magic cupboard all for our very own!" the Snickle laughed. "I could eat a lot of cream pie right now if I had some!"

"Ha! Then we will go right to my house and get some out of the magic cupboard!" the crooked legged man said.

In a short time the two came to the new house of the crooked legged man and went inside. So Raggedy Andy held up his rag hand for his friends to stop.

"We will slip up quietly to the door," Raggedy Andy said. "Then when I hold up my hands, we must all rush inside the house and surprise the crooked legged man and the Snickle."

So all, walking upon their tiptoes slipped up to the crooked legged man's house and stood waiting for Raggedy Andy to give the signal for them all to rush inside.

But just as Raggedy Andy was about to lift his hand as a signal, the door flew open and the crooked legged man and the Snickle came flying out, turning head over heels as they came.

When they quit rolling, the crooked legged man and the Snickle stopped, the crooked legged man holding his hand as a signal, the door flew open and the crooked legged man and the Snickle came flying out, turning head over heels as they came.

"Well!" Mrs. Mungle said. "I wonder what happened?"

"I don't know!" Raggedy Andy said. "They seemed afraid of something; didn't they?"

"Ha, ha, ha!" the magical hobby horse laughed as he heard Raggedy Andy's voice and came to the door. "I guess they were afraid!" Then because the Raggedys and their friends did not know the cause of the fright, the hobby horse said:

"When the crooked legged man locked me up with the magic cupboard here in the house and went to hunt the Snickle, I climbed into the cupboard so when he came back and opened the cupboard, I gave both the man and the Snickle two hard thumps with my wooden legs! They expected to get two cream puffs and when they received the hard thumps, they went rolling out the door!"

"Thank you, hobby horse!" Mrs. Mungle said. "Now we must put the cupboard upon the wagon again and hurry away before they return!" So in a few moments the Raggedys and their friends were far down the path leaving the mean little crooked legged man and the Snickle far behind.

"Well!" Mr. Mungle said as he came to a stop and looked through the trees to where a large castle stood upon a hill. "I wonder if that is a giant's castle?"

"It isn't large enough for a giant's castle," Raggedy Ann said.

Then the Genil led the way into his magic room and showed the Raggedys and Mrs. Mungle and Mr. Mungle his wonderful magic merry-go-round, his magic chute the chute and swings and soda water fountain and talking picture book. Then when all were listening to the magic talking picture book, the Genil passed around a box of chocolate candy.

It was magic candy, but the Raggedys and Mrs. Mungle and Mr. Mungle sat feeding the crumbs to the little ants. "Won't you come into my castle and see the nice things I have in there?" he asked our friends.

"Thank you, Mr. Genil!" Raggedy Ann said. "We would be pleased to see the wonderful things!"

So the Genil led the way into the castle and slyly locked the door and put the key in his pocket. Raggedy Ann saw him do this, but she did not say anything.
